Part II.

Of Domicile.

5. Succession to the immoveable property in British India of a person deceased is regulated by the law of British India wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. Succession to the moveable property of a person deceased is regulated by the law of the country in which he had his domicile at the time of his death.

Law regulating succession to a deceased person's immoveable and moveable property, respectively.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having his domicile in British India, dies in France, leaving moveable property in France, property in England, and property, both moveable and immoveable, in British India. The succession to the whole is regulated by the law of British India.

(b) A, an Englishman, having his domicile in France, dies in British India, and leaves property, both moveable and immoveable, in British India. The succession to the moveable property is regulated by the rules which govern in France the succession to the moveable property of an Englishman dying domiciled in France, and the succession to the immoveable property is regulated by the law of British India.

6. A person can only have one domicile for the purpose of succession to his moveable property.

One domicile only affects succession to moveables.

7. The domicile of origin of every person of legitimate birth is in the country in which, at the time of his birth, his father was domiciled; or, if he is a posthumous child, in the country in which his father was domiciled at the time of the father's death.

Domicile of origin of person of legitimate birth.

Illustration.

At the time of the birth of A his father was domiciled in England. A's domicile of origin is in England, whatever may be the country in which he was born.

8. The domicile of origin of an illegitimate child is in the country in which, at the time of his birth, his mother was domiciled.

Domicile of origin of illegitimate child.

9. The domicile of origin prevails until a new domicile has been acquired.

Continuance of domicile of origin.

10. A man acquires a new domicile by taking up his fixed habitation in a country which is not that of his domicile of origin.

Acquisition of new domicile.

Explanation.—A man is not to be considered as having taken up his fixed habitation in British India merely by reason of his residing there in Her Majesty's Civil or Military Service, or in the exercise of any profession or calling.

Illustrations.

(a) A, whose domicile of origin is in England proceeds to British India, where he settles as a Barrister or a Merchant, intending to reside there during the remainder of his life. His domicile is now in British India.

(b) A, whose domicile is in England, goes to Austria and enters the Austrian service, intending to remain in that service. A has acquired a domicile in Austria.

(c) A, whose domicile of origin is in France, comes to reside in British India under an engagement with the British Indian Government for a certain number of years. It is his intention to return to France at the end of that period. He does not acquire a domicile in British India.

(d) A, whose domicile is in England, goes to reside in British India for the purpose of winding up the affairs of a partnership which has been dissolved, and with the intention of returning to England as soon as that purpose is accomplished. He does not by such residence acquire a domicile in British India however long the residence may last.

(e) A having gone to reside in British India under the circumstances mentioned in the last preceding illustration, afterwards alters his intention and takes up his fixed habitation in British India. A has acquired a domicile in British India.

(f) A, whose domicile is in the French Settlement of Chandernagore, is compelled by political events to take refuge in Calcutta, and resides in Calcutta for many years in the hope of such political changes as may enable him to return with safety to Chandernagore. He does not by such residence acquire a domicile in British India.

(g) A, having come to Calcutta under the circumstances stated in the last preceding illustration, continues to reside there after such political changes have occurred as would enable him to return with safety to Chandernagore, and he intends that his residence in Calcutta shall be permanent. A has acquired a domicile in British India.

Special mode of acquiring domicile in British India.

11. Any person may acquire a domicile in British India by making and depositing in some Office in British India (to be fixed by the Local Government) a declaration in writing under his hand of his desire to acquire such domicile, provided that he shall have been resident in British India for one year immediately preceding the time of his making such declaration.

Domicile not acquired by residence in a country merely as the representative of a foreign Government, or by residence with him as part of his family or as a servant.

12. A person who is appointed by the Government of one country to be its ambassador, consul, or other representative in another country does not acquire a domicile in the latter country by reason only of residing there in pursuance of his appointment; nor does any other person acquire such domicile by reason only of residing with him as part of his family or as a servant.

Continuance of new domicile.

13. A new domicile continues until the former domicile has been resumed, or another has been acquired.

Minor's domicile.

14. The domicile of a minor follows the domicile of the parent from whom he derived his domicile of origin.

Exception.—The domicile of a minor does not change with that of his parent if the minor is married or holds any office or employment in the service of Her Majesty, or has set up, with the consent of the parent, in any distinct business.

Domicile acquired by a woman on marriage.

15. By marriage a woman acquires the domicile of her husband if she had not the same domicile before.

Wife's domicile during marriage.

16. The wife's domicile during the marriage follows the domicile of her husband.

Exception.—The wife's domicile no longer follows that of her husband if they be separated by the sentence of a competent Court, or if the husband is undergoing a sentence of transportation.

Except in cases stated, cannot acquire a domicile.

17. Except in the cases above provided for, a person cannot during minority acquire a new domicile.

Wife's acquisition of domicile.

An insane person cannot acquire a new domicile in any other way than by his domicile following the domicile of another person.

Succession to a person's moveable property in India in absence of proof of his domicile elsewhere.

If a man dies leaving moveable property in British India, in the absence of proof of any domicile elsewhere succession to the property is regulated by the law of British India.

Part III.

Of Consanguinity.

Kindred or consanguinity.

20. Kindred or consanguinity is the connexion or relation of persons descended from the same stock or common ancestor.

Lineal consanguinity.

21. Lineal consanguinity is that which subsists between two persons, one of whom is descended in a direct line from the other as between a man and his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, and so upwards in the direct ascending line; or between a man, his son, grandson, great-grandson, and so downwards in the direct descending line. Every generation constitutes a degree either ascending or descending. A man's father is related to him in the first degree, and so likewise is his son; his grandfather and grandson in the second degree; his great-grandfather and great-grandson in the third.

Collateral consanguinity.

22. Collateral consanguinity is that which subsists between two persons who are descended from the same stock or ancestor, but neither of whom is descended in a direct line from the other. For the purpose of ascertaining in what degree of kindred any collateral relative stands to a person deceased, it is proper to reckon upwards from the person deceased to the common stock, and then downwards to the collateral relative, allowing a degree for each person, both ascending and descending.

Persons held for purpose of succession to be similarly related to the deceased.

23. For the purpose of succession there is no distinction between those who are related to a person deceased through his father and those who are related to him through his mother; nor between those who are related to him by the full blood and those who are related to him by the half blood; nor between those who were actually born in his lifetime and those who, at the date of his death, were only conceived in the womb, but who have been subsequently born alive.

Mode of computing degrees of kindred.

24. In the annexed table of kindred the degrees are computed as far as the sixth, and are marked by numeral figures.

The person whose relatives are to be reckoned, and his cousin-german or first cousin are, as shewn in the table, related in the fourth degree, there being one degree of ascent to the father, and another to the common ancestor, the grandfather, and from him one of descent to the uncle and another to the cousin-german, making in all four degrees.

A grandson of the brother and a son of the uncle, i. e. a great nephew and a cousin-german, are in equal degree, being each four degrees removed.

A grandson of a cousin-german is in the same degree as the grandson of a great uncle, for they are both in the sixth degree of kindred.

TABLE OF CONSANGUINITY.

Of Intestacy.

25. A man is considered to die intestate in respect of all property of which he has not made a testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

As to what property a deceased person is considered to have died intestate.

Illustrations.

(a) A has left no Will. He has died intestate in respect of the whole of his property.

(b) A has left a Will whereby he has appointed B his executor; but the Will contains no other provisions. A has died intestate in respect of the distribution of his property.

(c) A has bequeathed his whole property for an illegal purpose. A has died intestate in respect of the distribution of his property.

(d) A has bequeathed 1,000*l* to B, and 1000*l* to the eldest son of C, and has made no other bequest, and has died leaving the sum of 2,000*l* and no other property. C died before A without having ever had a son. A has died intestate in respect of the distribution of 1,000*l*.

26. Such property devolves upon the wife or husband, or upon those who are of the kindred of the deceased, in the order and according to the rules herein prescribed.

Devolution of such property.

Explanation.—The widow is not entitled to the provision hereby made for her if, by a valid contract made before her marriage, she has been excluded from her distributive share of her husband's estate.

27. Where the intestate has left a widow, if he has also left any lineal descendants, one-third of his property shall belong to his widow, and the remaining two-thirds shall go to his lineal descendants according to the rules herein contained. If he has left no lineal descendant, but has left persons who are of kindred to him, one-half of his property shall belong to his widow, and the other half shall go to those who are of kindred to him in the order and according to the rules herein contained If he has left none who are of kindred to him, the whole of his property shall belong to his widow.

Where the intestate has left a widow and lineal descendants, or a widow and kindred only, or a widow and no kindred.

28. Where the intestate has left no widow, his property shall go to his lineal descendants or to those who are of kindred to him, not being lineal descendants, according to the rules herein contained; and if he has left none who are of kindred to him, it shall go to the Crown.

Where the intestate has left no widow, and where he has left no kindred.

Part V.

Of the Distribution of an Intestate's Property.

29. The rules for the distribution of the intestate's property (after deducting the widow's share, if he has left a widow) amongst his lineal descendants are as follows:—

Rules of distribution.

30. Where the intestate has left surviving him a child or children, but no more remote lineal descendant through a deceased child, the property shall belong to his surviving child, if there be only one, or shall be equally divided among all his surviving children.

Where the intestate has left a child or children only.

31. Where the intestate has not left surviving him any child, but has left a grandchild or grandchildren, and no more remote descendant through a deceased grandchild, the property shall belong to his surviving grandchild, if there be only one, or shall be equally divided among all his surviving grandchildren.

Where the intestate has left no child, but a grandchild or grandchildren

Illustrations.

(a) A has three children and no more, John, Mary, and Henry. They all die before the father, John leaving two children, Mary three, and Henry four. Afterwards A dies intestate, leaving those nine grandchildren and no descendant of any deceased grandchild. Each of his grandchildren shall have one-ninth.

(b) But if Henry has died leaving no child, then the whole is equally divided between the intestate's five grandchildren, the children of John and Mary.

(c) A has two children and no more, John and Mary. John dies before his father, leaving his wife pregnant. Then A dies, leaving Mary surviving him, and in due time a child of John is born. A's property is to be equally divided between Mary and such posthumous child.

Where the intestate has left only great-grandchildren or lineal descendants in a remoter degree.

33. If the intestate has left lineal descendants who do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to him, and the persons through whom the more remote are descended from him are dead, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as may correspond with the number of the lineal descendants of the intestate who either stood in the nearest degree of kindred to him at his decease, or, having been of the like degree of kindred to him, died before him, leaving lineal descendants who survived him; and one of such shares shall be allotted to each of the lineal descendants who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at his decease; and one of such shares shall be allotted in respect of each of such deceased lineal descendants; and the share allotted in respect of each of such deceased lineal descendants shall belong to his surviving child or children or more remote lineal descendants, as the case may be, such surviving child or children or more remote lineal descendants always taking the share which his or their parent or parents would have been entitled to respectively if such parent or parents had survived the intestate.

Where the intestate leaves lineal descendants not all in the same degree of kindred to him, and those through whom the more remote descend are dead

Illustrations.

(a) A had three children, John, Mary, and Henry; John died, leaving four children, and Mary died, leaving one, and Henry alone survived the father. On the death of A intestate, one-third is allotted to Henry, one-third to John's four children, and the remaining third to Mary's one child.

(b) A left no child, but left eight grandchildren and two children of a deceased grandchild. The property is divided into nine parts, one of which is allotted to each grandchild, and the remaining one-ninth is equally divided between the two great-grandchildren.

(c) A has three children, John, Mary, and Henry. John dies leaving four children, and one of John's children dies leaving two children. Mary dies leaving one child. A afterwards dies intestate. One-third of his property is allotted to Henry; one-third to Mary's child; and one-third is divided into four parts, one of which is allotted to each of John's three surviving children, and the remaining part is equally divided between John's two grandchildren.

(b) Where the Intestate has left no lineal descendants

34. Where an intestate has left no lineal descendants, the rules for the distribution of his property (after deducting the widow's share, if he has left a widow) are as follows :—

Rules of distribution where the intestate has left no lineal descendants.

35. If the intestate's father be living, he shall succeed to the property.

Where intestate's father is living.

36. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and there are also brothers or sisters of the intestate living, and there is no child living of any deceased brother or sister, the mother and each living brother or sister shall succeed to the property in equal shares.

Where intestate's father is dead, but his mother, brothers, and sisters are living.

Illustration.

A dies intestate, survived by his mother and two brothers of the full blood, John and Henry, and a sister Mary, who is the daughter of his mother, but not of his father. The mother takes one-fourth, each brother takes one-fourth, and Mary, the sister of half blood, takes one-fourth.

37. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and if any brother or sister, and the child or children of any brother or sister who may have died in the intestate's life-time are also living, then the mother and each living brother or sister, and the living child or children of each deceased brother or sister, shall be entitled to the property in equal shares, such children (if more than one) taking in equal shares only the shares which their respective parents would have taken if living at the intestate's death.

Where intestate's father is dead, and his mother, a brother or sister, and children of any deceased brother or sister are living.

Illustration.

A, the intestate, leaves his mother, his brothers John and Henry, and also one child of a deceased sister Mary, and two children of George, a deceased brother of the half blood, who was the son of his father but not of his mother. The mother takes one-fifth, John and Henry each take one-fifth, the child of Mary takes one-fifth, and the two children of George divide the remaining one-fifth equally between them.

38. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and the brothers and sisters are all dead, but all or any of them have left children who survived the intestate, the mother and the child or children of each deceased brother or sister shall be entitled to the property in equal shares, such children (if more than one) taking in equal shares only the share which their respective parents would have taken if living at the intestate's death.

Where intestate's father is dead and his mother and the children of any deceased brother or sister are living.

Illustration.

A, the intestate, leaves no brother or sister, but leaves his mother and one child of a deceased sister Mary, and two children of a deceased brother George. The mother takes one-third, the child of Mary takes one-third, and the children of George divide the remaining one-third equally between them.

39. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and there is neither brother nor sister, nor child of any brother or sister of the intestate, the property shall belong to the mother.

Where intestate's father is dead, but his mother is living and there is no brother nor sister nor nephew.

40. Where the intestate has left neither lineal descendant nor father nor mother, the property is divided equally between his brothers and sisters and the child or children of such of them as may have died before him, such children (if more than one) taking in equal shares only the share which their respective parents would have taken if living at the intestate's death.

Where intestate has left neither lineal descendant nor father nor mother.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the intestate, has left a grandfather and a grandmother, and no other relative standing in the same or a nearer degree of kindred to him. They, being in the second degree, will be entitled to the property in equal shares, exclusive of any uncle or aunt of the intestate, uncles and aunts being only in the third degree.

(b) A, the intestate, has left a great-grandfather or great-grandmother, and uncles and aunts, and no other relative standing in the same or a nearer degree of kindred to him. All of these being in the third degree shall take equal shares.

(c) A, the intestate, left a great grandfather, an uncle, and a nephew, but no relative standing in a nearer degree of kindred to him. All of these being in the third degree shall take equal shares.

(d) Ten children of one brother or sister of the intestate, and one child of another brother or sister of the intestate, constitute the class of relatives of the nearest degree of kindred to him. They shall each take one-eleventh of the property.

42. Where a distributive share in the property of a person who has died intestate shall be claimed by a child, or any descendant of a child of such person, no money or other property which the intestate may during his life have paid, given, or settled to or for the advancement of the child by whom or by whose descendant the claim is made, shall be taken into account in estimating such distributive share.

Children's advancements not to be brought into hotchpot.

Part VI.

Of the Effect of Marriage and Marriage Settlements on Property.

43. The husband surviving his wife has the same rights in respect of her property, if she die intestate, as the widow has in respect of her husband's property, if he die intestate.

Rights of widower and window respectively.

44. If a person whose domicile is not in British India marries in British India a person whose domicile is in British India, neither party acquires by the marriage any rights in respect of any property of the other party not comprised in a settlement made previous to the marriage which he or she would not acquire thereby if both where domiciled in British India at the time of the marriage.

No rights to property not comprised in an antenuptial settlement acquired by marriage between a person domiciled and a person not domiciled in British India.

45. The property of a minor may be settled in contemplation of marriage, provided the settlement be made by the minor with the approbation of the minor's father, or if he be dead or absent from British India, with the approbation of the High Court.

Settlement of minor's property in contemplation of marriage.

Part VII.

Of Wills and Codicils.

Persons capable of making Wills.

46. Every person of sound mind and not a minor may dispose of his property by Will.

Explanation 1.—A married woman may dispose by Will of any property which she could alienate by her own act during her life.

Explanation 2.—Persons who are deaf, or dumb, or blind are not thereby incapacitated for making a Will if they are able to know what they do by it.

Explanation 3.—One who is ordinarily insane may make a Will during an interval in which he is of sound mind.

Explanation 4.—No person can make a Will while he is in such a state of mind, whether arising from drunkenness, or from illness, or from any other cause, that he does not know what he is doing.

Illustrations.

(a) A can perceive what is going on in his immediate neighbourhood, and can answer familiar questions, but has not a competent understanding as to the nature of his property, or the persons who are of kindred to him, or in whose favor it would be proper that he should make his Will. A cannot make a valid Will.

(b) A executes an instrument purporting to be his Will, but he does not understand the nature of the instrument nor the effect of its provisions. This instrument is not a valid Will.

(c) A being very feeble and debilitated, but capable of exercising a judgment as to the proper mode of disposing of his property, makes his Will. This is a valid Will.

Testamentary guardian.

47. A father, whatever his age may be, may by Will appoint a guardian or guardians for his child during minority.

Will obtained by fraud, coercion or importunity.

48. A Will or any part of a Will the making of which has been caused by fraud or coercion, or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator, is void.

Illustrations.

(a) A falsely and knowingly represents to the testator that the testator's only child is dead, or that he has done some undutiful act, and thereby induces the testator to make a Will in his, A's favor; such Will has been obtained by fraud and is invalid.

(b) A by fraud and deception prevails upon the testator to bequeath a legacy to him. The bequest is void.

(c) A, being a prisoner by lawful authority, makes his Will. The Will is not invalid by reason of the imprisonment.

(d) A threatens to shoot B. or to burn his house, or to cause him to be arrested on a criminal charge, unless he makes a bequest in favor of C. B in consequence makes a bequest in favor of C. The bequest is void, the making of it having been caused by coercion.

(e) A being of sufficient intellect, if undisturbed by the influence of others, to make a Will, yet being so much under the control of B. that he is not a free agent, makes a Will dictated by B. It appears that he would not have executed the Will but for fear of B. The Will is invalid.

(f) A being in so feeble a state of health as to be unable to resist importunity, is pressed by B. to make a Will of a certain purport, and does so merely to purchase peace, and in submission to B. The Will is invalid.

(g) A being in such a state of health as to be capable of exercising his own judgment and volition, B uses urgent intercession and persuasion with him to induce him to make a Will of a certain purport. A, in consequence of the intercession and persuasion, but in the free exercise of his judgment and volition, makes his Will in the manner recommended by B. The Will is not rendered invalid by the intercession and persuasion of B.

(h) A with a view to obtaining a legacy from B, pays him attention and flatters him, and thereby produces in him a capricious partiality to A. B, in consequence of such attention and flattery, makes his Will, by which he leaves a legacy to A. The bequest is not rendered invalid by the attention and flattery of A.

Will may be revoked or altered.

49. A Will is liable to be revoked or altered by the maker of it at any time when he is competent to dispose of his property by Will.

Part VIII.

Of the Execution of unprivileged Wills.

Execution of unprivileged Wills.

50. Every testator, not being a soldier employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or a mariner at sea, must execute his Will according to the following rules:—

First.—The testator shall sign or shall affix his mark to the Will, or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction.

Second.—The signature or mark of the testator or the signature of the person signing for him shall be so placed that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a Will.

Third.—The Will shall be attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom must have seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the Will, or have seen some other person sign the Will in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or have received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses must sign the Will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary.

Incorporation of papers by reference.

51. If a testator, in a Will or Codicil duly attested, refers to any other document than actually written, as expressing any part of his intentions, such document shall be considered as forming a part of the Will or Codicil in which it is referred to.

Part IX.

Of Privileged Wills.

Privileged Will.

52. Any soldier being employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or any mariner being at sea, may, if he has completed the age of eighteen years, dispose of his property by a Will made as is mentioned in the fifty-third Section. Such Wills are called privileged Wills.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the surgeon of a regiment, is actually employed in an expedition. He is a soldier actually employed in an expedition and can make a privileged Will.

(b) A is at sea in a merchant ship, of which he is the purser. He is a mariner, and being at sea can make a privileged Will.

(c) A, a soldier serving in the field against insurgents, is a soldier engaged in actual warfare, and as such can make a privileged Will.

(d) A, a mariner of a ship in the course of a voyage, is temporarily on shore while she is lying in harbour. He is, in the sense of the words used in this clause, a mariner at sea and can make a privileged Will.

(e) A, an admiral who commands a naval force, but who lives on shore, and only occasionally goes on board his ship, is not considered as at sea and cannot make a privileged Will.

(f) A, a mariner serving on a Military expedition, but not being at sea, is considered as a soldier and can make a privileged Will.

53. Privileged Wills may be in writing, or may be made by word of mouth. The execution of them shall be governed by the following rules:—

Mode of making, and rules for executing privileged Wills.

First.—The Will may be written wholly by the testator with his own hand. In such case it need not be signed nor attested

Second.—It may be written wholly or in part by another person and signed by the testator. In such case it need not be attested.

Third.—If the instrument purporting to be a Will is written wholly or in part by another person, and is not signed by the testator, it shall be considered to be his Will, if it be shewn that it was written by the testator's directions, or that he recognized it as his Will. If it appear, on the face of the instrument, that the execution of it in the manner intended by him was not completed, the instrument shall not, by reason of that circumstance, be invalid, provided that his non-execution of it can be reasonably ascribed to some cause other than the abandonment of the testamentary intentions expressed in the instrument.

Fourth.—If the soldier or mariner shall have written instructions for the preparation of his Will, but shall have died before it could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his Will.

Fifth.—If the soldier or mariner shall, in the presence of two witnesses, have given verbal instructions for the preparation of his Will, and they shall have been reduced into writing in his life-time, but he shall have died before the instrument could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his Will although they may not have been reduced into writing in his presence, nor read over to him.

Sixth.—Such soldier or mariner as aforesaid may make a Will by word of mouth by declaring his intentions before two witnesses present at the same time.

Seventh.—A Will made by word of mouth shall be null at the expiration of one month after the testator shall have ceased to be entitled to make a privileged Will.

Part X.

Of the Attestation, Revocation, Alteration, and Revival of Wills.

54. A Will shall not be considered as insufficiently attested by reason of any benefit thereby given, either by way of bequest or by way of appointment, to any person attesting it, or to his or her wife or husband; but the bequest or appointment shall be void so far as concerns the persons so attesting, or the wife or husband of such person, or any person claiming under either of them.

Effect of gift to attesting witness.

Explanation.—A legatee under a Will does not lose his legacy by attesting a Codicil which confirms the Will.

55. No person, by reason of interest in, or of his being an executor of, a Will is disqualified as a witness to prove the execution of the Will or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof.

Witness not disqualified by interest or by being executor.

56. Every Will shall be revoked by the marriage of the maker, except a Will made in exercise of a power of appointment, when the property over which the power of appointment is exercised would not, in default of such appointment, pass to his or her executor, or administrator, or to the person entitled in case of intestacy.

Revocation of Will by testator's marriage.

Explanation.—Where a man is invested with power to determine in the disposition of property of which he is not the owner, he is said to have power to appoint such property.

Power of appointment defined.

57. No unprivileged Will or Codicil, nor any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than by marriage, or by another Will or Codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which an unprivileged Will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Revocation of unprivileged Will or Codicil.

Illustrations.

(a) A has made an unprivileged Will; afterwards A makes another unprivileged Will which purports to revoke the first. This is a revocation.

(b) A has made an unprivileged Will. Afterwards A, being entitled to make a privileged Will, makes a privileged Will, which purports to revoke his unprivileged Will. This is a revocation.

58. No obliteration, interlineation, or other alteration made in any unprivileged Will after the execution thereof shall have any effect except so far as the words or meaning of the Will shall have been thereby rendered illegible or undiscernible, unless such alteration shall be executed in like manner as hereinbefore is required for the execution of the Will, save that the Will, as so altered, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin or on some other part of the Will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of, or opposite to, a memorandum referring to, such alteration, and written at the end of some other part of the Will.

Effect of obliteration, interlineation, or alteration in unprivileged Will.

59. A privileged Will or Codicil may be revoked by the testator by an unprivileged Will or Codicil or by any act expressing an intention to revoke it, and accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged Will, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Revocation of privileged Will or Codicil.

Explanation.—In order to the revocation of a privileged Will or Codicil by an act accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged Will, it is not necessary that the testator should, at the time of doing that act, be in a situation which entitles him to make a privileged Will.

60. No unprivileged Will or Codicil, nor any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a Codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and shewing an intention to revive the same; and when any Will or Codicil which shall be partly revoked, and afterwards wholly revoked, shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shewn by the Will or Codicil.

Extent of revival of Will or Codicil partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked.

PART XI.

Of the Construction of Wills.

61. It is not necessary that any technical words or terms of art shall be used in a Will, but only that the wording shall be such that the intentions of the testator can be known therefrom.

Wording of Will.

62. For the purpose of determining questions as to what person or what property is denoted by any words used in a Will, a Court must inquire into every material fact relating to the persons who claim to be interested under such Will, the property which is claimed as the subject of disposition, the circumstances of the testator and of his family, and into every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words which the testator has used.

Enquiries to determine questions as to object or subject of Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A, by his Will, bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to his eldest son, or to his youngest grandchild, or to his cousin Mary. A Court may make inquiry in order to ascertain to what person the description in the Will applies.

(b) A, by his Will, leaves to B "his estate called Black Acre." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what is the subject-matter of the bequest, that is to say, what estate of the testator's is called Black Acre.

(c) A, by his Will, leaves to B "the estate which he purchased of C." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

63. Where the words used in the Will to designate or describe a legatee, or a class of legatees, sufficiently shew what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect. A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son, whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C." C has no legimitate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect although they are illegitimate.

(d) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "his seven children," and proceeding to enumerate them mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e) The testator having six grandchildren, makes a bequest to "his six grandchildren," and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names mentions one twice over, omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f) The testator bequeaths "1,000 Rupees to each of the three children of A." At the date of the Will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 Rupees.

64. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted it may be supplied by the context.

When words may be supplied.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred Rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred Rupees.

65. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the Will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of subject.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, but had no marsh lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous and the marsh lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b) The testator bequeaths to A "his zamíndárí of Rampore." He had an estate at Rampore, but it was a taluk and not a zamíndárí. The taluk passes by this bequest.

66. If the Will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this Section, any words which would be liable to rejection under the sixty-fifth Section are to be considered as struck out of the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 beegahs of land." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the Will, and such of the testator's marsh lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

67. Where the words of the Will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications, one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to shew which of these applications was intended.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in case of latent ambiguity.

Illustrations.

(a) A man having two cousins of the name of Mary bequeaths a sum of money to "his cousin Mary." It appears that there are two persons, each answering the description in the Will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to shew which of the two applications was intended.

(b) A, by his Will, leaves to B "his estate called Sultánpur Khurd." It turns out that he had two estates called Sultánpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to shew which estate was intended.

68. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in cases of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a) A man has an aunt Caroline and a cousin Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his Will he bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "his aunt Caroline" and 1,000 Rupees to "his cousin Mary," and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 Rupees to "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." There is no person to whom the description given in the Will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to shew who was meant by "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under the seventy-sixth Section.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to , leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to shew what name the testator intended to insert.

(c) A bequeaths to B Rupees, or "his estate of ." Evidence is not admissible to shew what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

69. The meaning of any clause in a Will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other, and for this purpose a Codicil is to be considered as part of the Will.

Meaning of any clause to be collected from entire Will.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the death of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life, and after his decease in B, it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b) Where a testator having an estate, one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his Will bequeaths Black Acre to B, the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first, as if he had said. "I give Black Acre to B, and all the rest of my estate to A."

70. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the Will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear where it may be collected from the other words of the Will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

When words may be understood in a restricted sense, and when in a sense wider than usual.

Illustrations.

(a) A testator gives to A "his farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all his marsh lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh lands in L. The general words, "all his marsh lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including that portion of the farm which consists of marsh lands in L.

(b) The testator, a sailor on ship-board, bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons, and chest of clothes, and to his friend A, (a shipmate) his red box, clasp-knife, and all things not before bequeathed The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c) A, by his Will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures, and all other goods of whatever kind, and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

71. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings, according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other it can have none, the former is to be preferred.

When a clause is open to two constructions, that which has some effect is to be preferred.

72. No part of a Will is to be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

No part of Will to be rejected if reasonable construction can be put on it.

73. If the same words occur in different parts of the same Will, they must be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense unless there appears an intention to the contrary.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of Will.

74. The intention of the testator is not to be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

Illustration.

The testator, by a Will made on his death-bed, bequeathed all his property to C D for life, and after his decease to a certain hospital. The intention of the testator cannot take effect to its full extent because the gift to the hospital is void under the hundred and fifth Section, but it shall take effect so far as regards the gift to C D.

75. Where two clauses or gifts in a Will are irreconcileable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator, by the first clause of his Will, leaves his estate of Rámnagar "to A," and by the last clause of his Will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b) If a man, at the commencement of his Will, gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

76. A Will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty.

Illustration.

If a testator says—"I bequeath goods to A;" or "I bequeath to A," or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in a Schedule," and no Schedule is found; or "I bequeath 'money,' 'wheat,' 'oil,' or the like," without saying how much, this is void.

77. The description contained in a Will of property the subject of gift, shall, unless a contrary intention appear by the Will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

Words describing subject refer to property answering that description at testator's death.

78. Unless a contrary intention shall appear by the Will, a bequest of the estate of the testator shall be construed to include any property which he may have power to appoint by Will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power; and a bequest of property described in a general manner shall be construed to include any property to which such description may extend which he may have power to appoint by Will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power.

Power of appointment executed by general bequest.

79. Where property is bequeathed to or for the benefit of such of certain objects as a specified person shall appoint, or for the benefit of certain objects in such proportions as a specified person shall appoint, and the Will does not provide for the event of no appointment being made; if the power given by the Will be not exercised, the property belongs to all the objects of the power in equal shares.

Illustration.

A, by his Will, bequeaths a fund to his wife for her life, and directs that at her death it shall be divided among his children in such proportions as she shall appoint. The widow dies without having made any appointment. The fund shall be divided equally among the children.

Bequest to "heirs," &c., of a particular person without qualifying terms.

80. Where a bequest is made to the "heirs," or "right heirs," or "relations," or "nearest relations," or "family," or "kindred," or "nearest of kin" or "next of kin," of a particular person, without any qualifying terms, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

Illustrations.

(a) A leaves his property "to his own nearest relations." The property goes to those who would be entitled to it if A had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(b) A bequeaths 10,000 Rupees "to B for his life, and after the death of B, to his own right heirs." The legacy after B's death belongs to those who would be entitled to it if it had formed part of A's unbequeathed property.

(c) A leaves his property to B, but if B dies before him, to B's next of kin. B dies before A, the property devolves as if it had belonged to B and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(d) A leaves 10,000 Rupees "to B for his life, and after his decease to the heirs of C." The legacy goes as if it had belonged to C and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of the legacy.

Bequest to "representatives," &c., of a particular person.

81. Where a bequest is made to the "representatives," or "legal representatives," or "personal representatives," or "executors or administrators" of a particular person, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it.

Illustration.

(a) A bequest is made to the "legal representatives of A." A has died intestate and insolvent. B is his administrator. B is entitled to receive the legacy, and shall apply it in the first place to the discharge of such part of A's debts as may remain unpaid: if there be any surplus, A shall pay it to those persons who at A's death would have been entitled to receive any property of A's which might remain after payment of his debts, or to the representatives of such persons.

Bequest without words of limitation.

82. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the Will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Bequest in the alternative.

83. Where property is bequeathed to a person, with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons;—if a contrary intention does not appear by the Will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy if he be alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he be then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made to A or to B. A survives the testator. B takes nothing.

(b) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the Will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the Will. The legacy goes to B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

(f) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. A and B survive the testator. B dies in A's lifetime. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

(g) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. B dies in the testator's lifetime. A survives the testator. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

Effect of words describing a class added to a bequest to a person.

84. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons, but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made—

to A and his children,
to A and his children by his present wife,
to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives,
to A and his personal representatives,
to A, his executors and administrators.

In each of these cases A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

(c) A bequest is made to A for life, and after his death to his issue. At the death of A the property belongs in equal shares to all persons who shall then answer the description of issue of A.

Bequest to a class of persons under a general description only.

85. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

Construction of terms.

86. The word "children" in a Will applies only to lineal descendants in the first degree; the word "grandchildren" applies only to lineal descendants in the second degree of the person whose "children," or "grandchildren," are spoken of; the words "nephews" and "nieces" apply only to children of brothers or sisters; the words "cousins" or "first cousins," or "cousins-german" apply only to children of brothers or of sisters of the father or mother of the person whose "cousins," or "first cousins," or "cousins-german" are spoken of; the words "first cousins once removed" apply only to children of cousins-german or to cousins-german of a parent of the person whose "first cousins once removed" are spoken of; the words "second cousins" apply only to grandchildren of brothers or of sisters of the grandfather or grandmother of the person whose "second cousins" are spoken of; the words

"issue" and "descendants" apply to all lineal descendants whatever of the person whose "issue" or "descendants" are spoken of. Words expressive of collateral relationship apply alike to relatives of full and of half blood. All words expressive of relationship apply to a child in the womb who is afterwards born alive.

Words expressing relationship denote only legitimate relatives, or failing such, relatives reputed legitimate.

87. In the absence of any intimation to the contrary in the Will, the term "child," "son," or "daughter," or any word which expresses relationship, is to be understood as denoting only a legitimate relative, or where there is no such legitimate relative, a person who has acquired, at the date of the Will, the reputation of being such relative.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having three children, B, C, and D, of whom B and C are legitimate and D is illegitimate, leaves his property to be equally divided among "his children." The property belongs to B and C in equal shares, to the exclusion of D.

(b) A, having a niece of illegitimate birth, who has acquired the reputation of being his niece, and having no legitimate niece, bequeaths a sum of money to his niece. The illegitimate niece is entitled to the legacy.

(c) A, having in his Will enumerated his children, and named as one of them B, who is illegitimate, leaves a legacy to "his said children." B will take a share in the legacy along with the legitimate children.

(d) A leaves a legacy to the "children of B." B is dead and has left none but illegitimate children. All those who had, at the date of the Will, acquired the reputation of being the children of B are objects of the gift.

(e) A bequeathed a legacy to "the children of B." B never had any legitimate child. C and D had, at the date of the Will, acquired the reputation of being children of B. After the date of the Will, and before the death of the testator, E and F were born and acquired the reputation of being children of B. Only C and D are objects of the bequest.

(f) A makes a bequest in favor of his child by a certain woman, not his wife. B had acquired at the date of the Will the reputation of being the child of A by the woman designated. B takes the legacy.

(g) A makes a bequest in favor of the child to be born of a woman who never becomes his wife. The bequest is void.

(h) A makes a bequest in favor of the child of which a certain woman, not married to him, is pregnant. The bequest is valid.

Rules of construction where a Will purports to make two bequests to the same person.

88. Where a Will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of, or in addition to, the first; if there is nothing in the Will to shew what he intended, the following rules shall prevail in determining the construction to be put upon the Will:—

First.—If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same Will, or in the Will and again in a Codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

Second.—Where one and the same Will or one and the same Codicil purports to make in two places a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

Third.—Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same Will, or in the same Codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

Fourth.—Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a Will and the other by a Codicil, or each by a different Codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In the four last rules the word Will does not include a Codicil.

Illustrations.

(a) A having ten shares, and no more, in the Bank of Bengal, made his Will, which contains, near its commencement, the words, "I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." After other bequests, the Will concludes with the words, "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Bank of Bengal.

(b) A having one diamond ring, which was given him by B, bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. A afterwards made a Codicil to his Will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond ring which was given to A by B.

(c) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and afterwards, in the same Will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 Rupees only.

(d) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and afterwards, by the same Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 Rupees. B is entitled to 11,000 Rupees.

(e) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B 5,000 Rupees, and by a Codicil to the Will he bequeaths to him 5,000 Rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 Rupees.

(f) A, by one Codicil to his Will, bequeaths to B 5,000 Rupees, and by another Codicil bequeaths to him 6,000 Rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 Rupees.

(g) A, by his Will, bequeaths "500 Rupees to B because she was his nurse," and in another part of the Will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with his children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 Rupees.

(h) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and also, in another part of the Will, an annuity of 400 Rupees. B is entitled to both legacies.

(i) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 Rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 Rupees, and takes a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 Rupees.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

89. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that shew an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

Illustrations.

(a) A makes her Will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, &c., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to." B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b) A makes his Will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my "banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I "hereby desire B to do and keep the residue for her own "use and pleasure." B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

Property to which a residuary legatee is entitled.

90. Under a residuary bequest the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Illustration.

A by his Will, bequeaths certain legacies, one of which is void under the hundred and fifth Section, and another lapses by the death of the legatee. He bequeaths the residue of his property to B. After the date of his Will B purchases a zamínadári, which belongs to him at the time of his death. B is entitled to the two legacies and the zamíndárí as part of the residue.

Time of vesting of legacy in general terms.

having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

92. If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appear by the Will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person. In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

In what case a legacy lapses.

Illustrations

(a) The testator bequeaths to B "500 Rupees which B owes him." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator, or happens to be dead when the Will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c) A legacy is given to A, and in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator The legacy goes to B.

(d) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator; B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e) A sum of money is bequeathed to a on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year, and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f) The testator and the legatee perished in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to show which died first. The legacy will lapse.

93. If a legacy be given to two persons jointly, and one of them die before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

A legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before the testator.

Illustration.

The legacy is simply to a A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

94. But where a legacy is given to legatees in words which shew that the testator intended to give them distinct shares of it, then if any legatee die before the testator, so much of the legacy as was intended for him shall fall into the residue of the testator's property.

Effect in such a case of words shewing testator's intention that the shares should be distinct.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B, and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

95. Where the share that lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the Will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B, and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one-third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

96. Where a bequest shall have been made to any child or other lineal descendant of the testator, and the legatee shall die in the lifetime of the testator, but any lineal descendant of his shall survive the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the Will.

When a bequest to testator's child or lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

Illustration.

A makes his Will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son B for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son C, who survives A, and having made his Will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow D. The money goes to D.

97. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Bequest to A for the benefit of B does not lapse by A's death in testator's lifetime.

98. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as shall be alive at the testator's death.

Survivorship in case of bequest to a described class.

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a class of persons described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but their possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator, by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise, the property shall at that time go to such of them as shall be then alive, and to the representatives of any of them who have died since the death of the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the Will, leaving three children, C, D, and E. E died after the date of the Will, but before the death of A. C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death B has no children. The bequest is void.

(c) A lease for years of a house was bequeathed to A for his life, and after his decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator B had two children living, C and D, and he never had any other child. Afterwards, during the lifetime of A, C died, leaving E his executor. D has survived A. D and E are jointly entitled to so much of the leasehold term as remains unexpired.

(d) A sum of money was bequeathed to A for her life, and after her decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator B had two children living, C and D, and after that event, two children, E and F, were born to B. C and E died in the lifetime of A, C having made a Will, E having made no Will. A has died, leaving D and F surviving her. The legacy is to be divided into four equal parts, one of which is to be paid to the executor of C, one to D, one to the administrator of E, and one to F.

(e) A bequeaths one-third of his lands to B for his life, and after his decease to the sisters of B. At the death of the testator B had two sisters living, C and D, and after that event another sister E was born. C died during the life of B; D and E have survived B. One-third of A's lands belongs to D, E, and the representatives of C in equal shares.

(f) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to be divided equally among the children of C. Up to the death of B, C had not had any child. The bequest after the death of B is void.

(g) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "all the children born or to be born" of B, to be divided among them at the death of C. At the death of the testator B has two children living, D and E. After the death of the testator, but in the lifetime of C, two other children, F and G, are born to B. After the death of C another child is born to B. The legacy belongs to D, E, F, and G to the exclusion of the after-born child of B.

(h) A bequeaths a fund to the children of B, to be divided among them when the eldest shall attain majority. At the testator's death B had one child living, named C. He afterwards had two other children, named D and E. E died, but C and D were living when C attained majority. The fund belongs to C, D, and the representatives of E to the exclusion of any child who may be born to B after C's attaining majority.

PART XII.

Of void Bequests.

99. Where a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Bequest to a person by a particular description who is not in existence at the testator's death.

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a person described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but his possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise; and if a person answering the description is alive at the death of the testator, or comes into existence between that event and such later time, the property shall, at such later time, go to that person, or if he be dead, to his representatives.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to the eldest son of B. At the death of the testator B has no son. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son is born to C. Upon B's death the legacy goes to C's son.

(c) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son named D is born to C. D dies, then B dies. The legacy goes to the representative of D.

(d) A bequeaths his estate of Green Acre to B for life, and at his decease to the eldest son of C. Up to the death of B, C has had no son. The bequest to C's eldest son is void.

(e) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to the eldest son of C, to be paid to him after the death of B. At the death of the testator C has no son, but a son is afterwards born to him during the life of B and is alive at B's death. C's son is entitled to the 1,000 Rupees.

Bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest.

100. Where a bequest is made to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest contained in the Will, the later bequest shall be void, unless it comprises the whole of the remaining interest of the testator in the thing bequeathed.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his eldest son for life, and after the death of the latter to his eldest son. At the time of the testator's death A has no son. Here the bequest to A's eldest son is a bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death. It is not a bequest of the whole interest that remains to the testator. The bequest to A's eldest son for his life is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters. A survives the testator. A has daughters some of whom were not in existence at the testator's death. The bequest to A's daughters comprises the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The bequest to A's daughters is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters, with a direction that if any of them marries under the age of eighteen her portion shall be settled, so that it may belong to herself for life and may be divisible among her children after her death. A has no daughters living at the time of the testator's death, but has daughters born afterwards who survive him. Here the direction for a settlement has the effect in the case of each daughter who marries under eighteen of substituting for the absolute bequest to her a bequest to her merely for her life, that is to say, a bequest to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund is void.

(d) A bequeaths a sum of money to B for life, and directs that upon the death of B the fund shall be settled upon his daughters, so that the portion of each daughter may belong to herself for life, and may be divided among her children after her death. B has no daughter living at the time of the testator's death. In this case the only bequest to the daughters of B is contained in the direction to settle the fund, and this direction amounts to a bequest, to persons not yet born, of a life-interest in the fund, that is to say, of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund upon the daughters of B is void.

Rule against perpetuity.

101. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the lifetime of one or more persons living at the testator's decease, and the minority of some person who shall be in existence at the expiration of that period, and to whom, if he attains full age, the thing bequeathed is to belong.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life; and after B's death to such of the sons of B as shall first attain the age of 25. A and B survive the testator. Here the son of B who shall first attain the age of 25 may be a son born after the death of the testator; such son may not attain 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed from the death of the longer liver of A and B, and the vesting of the fund may thus be delayed beyond the lifetime of A and B, and the minority of the sons of B. The bequest after B's death is void

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life, and after B's death to such of B's sons as shall first attain the age of 25. B dies in the lifetime of the testator, leaving one or more sons. In this case the sons of B are persons living at the time of the testator's decease, and the time when either of them will attain 25 necessarily falls within his own lifetime. The bequest is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life with a direction that after B's death it shall be divided amongst such of B's children as shall attain the age of 18; but that if no child of B shall attain that age, the fund shall go to C. Here the time for the division of the fund must arrive at the latest at the expiration of 18 years from the death of B, a person living at the testator's decease. All the bequests are valid.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to trustees for the benefit of the testator's daughters, with a direction that if any of them marry under age her share of the fund shall be settled so as to devolve, after her death, upon such of her children as shall attain the age of 18. Any daughter of the testator to whom the direction applies must be in existence at his decease, and any portion of the fund which may eventually be settled as directed must vest not later than 18 years from the death of the daughter whose share it was. All these provisions are valid.

Bequest to a class some of whom may come under the rules in the Sections 100, 101.

102. If a bequest is made to a class of persons with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the two last preceding Sections, or either of them, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to all his children who shall attain the age of 25. A survives the testator and has some children living at the testator's death. Each child of A's living at the testator's death must attain the age of 25 (if at all) within the limits allowed for a bequest. But A may have children after the testator's decease some of whom may not attain the age of 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed after the decease of A. The bequest to A's children, therefore, is inoperative as to any child born after the testator's death; and as it is given to all his children as a class, it is not good as to any division of that class, but is wholly void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B, C, D, and all other the children of A who shall attain the age of 25. B, C, D are children of A living at the testator's decease. In all other respects the case is the same as that supposed in Illustration (a). The mention of B, C, and D by name does not prevent the bequest from being regarded as a bequest to a class, and the bequest is wholly void.

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under Sections 100, 101, or 102.

103. Where a bequest is void by reason of any of the rules contained in the three last preceding Sections, any bequest contained in the same Will, and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest, is also void.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25 for his life, and after the decease of such son, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect after the bequest to such of the sons of A as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under Section 101. The bequest to B is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25 and if no son of A shall attain that age, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect upon failure of the bequest to such of A's sons as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under Section 101. The bequest to B is void.

Effect of direction for accumulation.

104. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void, and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death, and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a) The Will directs that the sum of 10,000 Rupees shall be invested in Government securities and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B, and C. A, B, and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 Rupees at the end of the year from the testator's death.

(b) The Will directs that 10,000 Rupees shall be invested, and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 Rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c) The Will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultânpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive at the end of one year from the testator's death the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

(d) The Will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultânpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulations shall then be paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator A has no son. The bequest is void.

(e) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B, and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the Will, but in consequence of B's minority.

Bequest to religious or charitable uses.

105. No man having a nephew or niece or any nearer relative shall have power to bequeath any property to religious or charitable uses, except by a Will executed not less than twelve months before his death, and deposited, within six months from its execution, in some place provided by law for the safe custody of the Wills of living persons.

Illustration.

A having a nephew makes a bequest by a Will not executed nor deposited as required—

For the relief of poor people;
For the maintenance of sick soldiers;
For the erection or support of a hospital;
For the education and preferment of orphans;
For the support of scholars;
For the erection or support of a school;
For the building and repairs of a bridge;
For the making of roads;
For the erection or support of a church;
For the repairs of a church;
For the benefit of ministers of religion;
For the formation or support of a public garden.

All these bequests are void.

PART XIII.

Of the Vesting of Legacies.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed.

106. Where, by the terms of a bequest, the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the Will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy. And in such cases the legacy is, from the testator's death, said to be vested in interest.

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that if a particular event shall happen the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B 100 Rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths to B 100 Rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18, and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f) A fund is bequeathed to A, B, and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18 respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator the shares vest in interest in A, B, and C, subject to be devested in case A, B, and C shall all die under 18, and upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

Date of vesting when legacy is contingent upon a specified uncertain event.

107. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible. In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the Will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B, and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B, and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18," or, "when he shall attain the age of 18." A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall then be living, but if B shall not be then living, to C. A, B, and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other shall have happened.

(d) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that if she shall not attain 18, or marry under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy, although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by A's marrying.

(g) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of the Act.

(h) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 Rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 Rupees to B.

(i) A leaves his farm of Sultânpur Khurd to B if B shall convey his own farm of Sultânpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the lattor farm to C.

(j) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence, within that period, of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by Will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l) A bequeaths to B 500 Rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m) A bequeaths to B 500 Rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum out of another fund shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

Vesting of interest in a bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age.

108. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

Illustration.

A fund is bequeathed to such of the children of A as shall attain the age of 18, with a direction that while any child of A shall be under the age of 18 the income of the share to which it may be presumed he will be eventually entitled shall be applied for his maintenance and education. No child of A who is under the age of 18 has a vested interest in the bequest.

PART XIV.

Of Onerous Bequests.

Onerous bequest.

109. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Illustration.

A having shares in (X) a prosperous joint stock company and also shares in (Y) a joint stock company in difficulties in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies. B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and the other refused.

110. Where a Will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

Illustration.

A having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

PART XV.

Of Contingent Bequests.

Bequests contingent upon a specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned for its occurrence.

111. Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned in the Will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death to B. If A survives the testator the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children, to B, If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and "in case of B's death without children," to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B shall die without children during the lifetime of A.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and "in case of B's death." to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B shall die in the lifetime of A."

Bequests to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

112. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period, but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as shall be alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appear by the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A and B, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

(c) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, or the survivor, with a direction that if B should not survive the testator, his children are to stand in his place. C dies during the life of the testator; B survives the testator, but dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, with a direction that in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

PART XVI.

Of Conditional Bequests.

Bequest upon impossible condition.

113. A bequest upon an impossible condition is void.

Illustrations.

(a) An estate is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall walk one hundred miles in an hour. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 500, Rupees to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter. A's daughter was dead at the date of the Will. The bequest is void.

Bequest upon illegal or immoral condition.

114. A bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void.

Illustration.

(a) A bequeaths 500 Rupees to B on condition that he shall murder C. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 5,000 Rupees to his niece if she will desert her husband. The bequest is void.

Fulfilment of condition precedent to the vesting of a legacy.

115. Where a Will imposes a condition to be fulfilled before the legatee can take a vested interest in the thing bequeathed, the condition shall be considered to have been fulfilled if it has been substantially complied with.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D, and E. A marries with the written consent of B. C is present at the marriage. D sends a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentations, and has made no objection. A has fulfilled the condition.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies. A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.

In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 Rupees, and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultânpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. But the executor or administrator shall pay all such debts as he knows of, including his own, equally and rateably, as far as the assests of the deceased will extend.

Application of moveable property to payment of debts where the deceased's domicile was not in British India.

283. If the domicile of the deceased was not in British India, the application of his moveable property to the payment of his debts is to be regulated by the law of the country in which he was domiciled.

Illustration.

A dies, having his domicile in a country where instruments under seal have priority over instruments not under seal, leaving moveable property to the value of 10,000 Rupees, immoveable property to the value of 5,000 Rupees, debts on instruments under seal to the amount of 10,000 rupees, and debts on instruments not under seal to the same amount. The debts on the instruments under seal are to be paid in full out of the moveable estate, and the proceeds of the immoveable estate are to be applied, as far as they will extend, towards the discharge of the debts not under seal. Accordingly, one-half of the amount of the debts not under seal is to be paid out of the proceeds of the immoveable estate.

Creditor paid in part under Section 283 to bring such payment into account before sharing in proceeds of immoveable property.

284. No creditor who has received payment of a part of his debt by virtue of the last preceding Section shall be entitled to share in the proceeds of the immoveable estate of the deceased unless he brings such payment into account for the benefit of the other creditors.

Illustration.

A dies, having his domicile in a country where instruments under seal have priority over instruments not under seal, leaving moveable property to the value of 5,000 Rupees, and immoveable property to the value of 10,000 Rupees, debts on instruments under seal to the amount of 10,000 Rupees, and debts on instruments not under seal to the same amount. The creditors holding instruments under seal receive half of their debts out of the proceeds of the moveable estate. The proceeds of the immoveable estate are to be applied in payment of the debts on instruments not under seal until one-half of such debts has been discharged. This will leave 5,000 Rupees which are to be distributed rateably amongst all the creditors without distinction in proportion to the amount which may remain due to them.

Debts to be paid before legacies.

285. Debts of every description must be paid before any legacy.

Executor or administrator not bound to pay legacies without indemnity.

286. If the estate of the deceased is subject to any contingent liabilities, an executor or administrator is not bound to pay any legacy without a sufficient indemnity to meet the liabilities whenever they may become due.

287. If the assets, after payment of debts, necessary expenses, and specific legacies, are not sufficient to pay all the general legacies in full, the latter shall abate or be diminished in equal proportions, and the executor has no right to pay one legatee in preference to another, nor to retain any money on account of a legacy to himself or to any person for whom he is a trustee.

Abatement of general legacies.

Executor not to pay one legatee in preference to another.

288. Where there is a specific legacy, and the assets are sufficient for the payment of debts and necessary expenses, the thing specified must be delivered to the legatee without any abatement.

Non-abatement of specific legacy when assets sufficient to pay debts.

289. Where there is a demonstrative legacy and the assets are sufficient for the payment of debts and necessary expenses, the legatee has a preferential claim for payment of his legacy out of the fund from which the legacy is directed to be paid until such fund is exhausted, and if after the fund is exhausted part of the legacy still remains unpaid, he is entitled to rank for the remainder against the general assets as for a legacy of the amount of such unpaid remainder.

Right under demonstrative legacy when the assets are sufficient to pay debts and necessary expenses.

290. If the assets are not sufficient to answer the debts and the specific legacies, an abatement shall be made from the latter rateably in proportion to their respective amounts.

Rateable abatement of specific legacies.

Illustration.

A has bequeathed to B a diamond ring valued at 500 Rupees, and to C a horse valued at 1,000 Rupees. It is found necessary to sell all the effects of the testator, and his assets, after payment of debts, are only 1,000 Rupees. Of this sum Rupees 333-5-4 are to be paid to B, and Rupees 666-10-8 to C.

291. For the purpose of abatement, a legacy for life, a sum appropriated by the Will to produce an annuity and the value of an annuity when no sum has been appropriated to produce it, shall be treated as general legacies.

Legacies treated as general for purpose of abatement.

PART XXXV.

Of the Executor's Assent to a Legacy.

292. The assent of the executor is necessary to complete a legatee's title to his legacy.

Executor's assent necessary to complete legatee's title.

Illustrations.

(a) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B his Government paper which is in deposit with the Bank of Bengal. The Bank has no authority to deliver the securities, nor B a right to take possession of them, without the assent of the executor.

(b) A, by his Will, has bequeathed to C his house in Calcutta in the tenancy of D. C is not entitled to receive the rents without the assent of the executor.

293. The assent of the executor to a specific bequest shall be sufficient to devest his interest as executor therein, and to transfer the subject of the bequest to the legatee, unless the nature or the circumstances of the property require that it shall be transferred in a particular way. This assent may be verbal, and it may be either express or implied from the conduct of the executor.

Effect of executor's assent to specific legacy.

Assent may be verbal, and either express or implied.

Illustrations.

(a) A horse is bequeathed. The executor requests the legatee to dispose of it, or a third party proposes to purchase the horse from the executor, and he directs him to apply to the legatee. Assent to the legacy is implied.

(b) The interest of a fund is directed by the Will to be applied for the maintenance of the legatee during his minority. The executor commences so to apply it. This is an assent to the whole of the bequest.

(c) A bequest is made of a fund to A, and after him to B. The executor pays the interest of the fund to A. This is an implied assent to the bequest to B.

(d) Executors die after paying all the debts of the testator, but before satisfaction of specific legacies. Assent to the legacies may be presumed.

(e) A person to whom a specific article has been bequeathed takes possession of it and retains it without any objection on the part of the executor. His assent may be presumed.

Conditional assent.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B his lands of Saltanpur, which, at the date of the Will and at the death of A, were subject to a mortgage for 10,000 Rupees. The executor assents to the bequest on condition that B shall, within a limited time, pay the amount due on the mortgage at the testator's death. The amount is not paid. There is no assent.

(b) The executor assents to a bequest on condition that the legatee shall pay him a sum of money. The payment is not made. The assent is nevertheless valid.

295. When the executor is a legatee, his assent to his own legacy is necessary to complete his title to it in the same way as it is required when the bequest is to another person, and his assent may in like manner be express or implied. Assent shall be implied if in his manner of administering the property he does any act which is referable to his character of legatee and is not referable to his character of executor.

300. Where there is a direction that the first payment of an annuity shall be made within one month or any other division of time from the death of the testator, or on a day certain, the successive payments are to be made on the anniversary of the earliest day on which the Will authorizes the first payment to be made; and if the annuitant should die in the interval between the times of payment, an apportioned share of the annuity shall be paid to his representative.

Investment of amount of general legacy to be paid at a future time.

Intermediate interest.

302. Where a general legacy is given to be paid at a future time, the executor shall invest a sum sufficient to meet it in securities of the kind mentioned in the last preceding Section. The intermediate interest shall form part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Procedure when no fund is charged with or appropriated to an annuity.

303. Where an annuity is given and no fund is charged with its payment or appropriated by the Will to answer it, a Government annuity of the specified amount shall be purchased, or, if no such annuity can be obtained, then a sum sufficient to produce the annuity shall be invested for that purpose in such securities as the High Court may, by any general rule to be made from time to time, authorize or direct.

Transfer to residuary legatee of amount of contingent bequest.

304. Where a bequest is contingent, the executor is not bound to invest the amount of the legacy, but may transfer the whole residue of the estate to the residuary legatee on his giving sufficient security for the payment of the legacy if it shall become due.

305. Where the testator has bequeathed the residue of his estate to a person for life without any direction to invest it in any particular securities, so much thereof as is not, at the time of the testator's decease, invested in such securities as the High Court may, for the time being, regard as good securities, shall be converted into money and invested in such securities.

Investment of residue bequeathed to a person for life, with direction to invest in specified securities.

306. Where the testator has bequeathed the residue of his estate to a person for life with a direction that it shall be invested in certain specified securities, so much of the estate as is not, at the time of his death, invested in securities of the specified kind shall be converted into money and invested in such securities.

Time and manner of the conversion and investment.

307. Such conversion and investment as are contemplated by the two last preceding Sections shall be made at such times and in such manner as the executor shall in his discretion think fit; and until such conversion and investment shall be completed, the person who would be for the time being entitled to the income of the fund when so invested shall receive interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum upon the market value (to be computed as of the date of the testator's death) of such part of the fund as shall not yet have been so invested.

Interest payable until investment.

Procedure where minor is entitled to immediate payment or possession of bequest, and there is no direction to pay to any person on his behalf.

308. Where, by the terms of a bequest, the legatee is entitled to the immediate payment or possession of the money or thing bequeathed, but is a minor, and there is no direction in the Will to pay it to any person on his behalf, the executor or administrator shall pay or deliver the same into the Court of the District Judge, by whom the probate was, or letters of administration, with the Will annexed, were granted, to the account of the legatee, unless the legatee be a ward of the Court of Wards; and if the legatee be a ward of the Court of Wards the legacy shall be paid into that Court to his account, and such payment into the Court of the District Judge, or into the Court of Wards, as the case may be, shall be sufficient discharge for the money so paid; and such money when paid in shall be invested in the purchase of Government securities, which, with the interest thereon, shall be transferred or paid to the person entitled thereto, or otherwise applied for his benefit, as the Judge or the Court of Wards, as the case may be, may direct.

PART XXXVIII.

Of the Produce and Interest of Legacies.

Legatee of a specific legacy entitled to produce thereof from testator's death.

309. The legatee of a specific legacy is entitled to the clear produce thereof, if any, from the testator's death.

Exception.—A specific bequest, contingent in its terms, does not comprise the produce of the legacy between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy. The clear produce of it forms part of the residue of the testator's estate.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths his flock of sheep to B. Between the death of A and delivery by his executor the sheep are shorn, or some of the ewes produce lambs. The wool and lambs are the property of B.

(c) The testator bequeaths all his four per cent. Government promissory notes to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he completes that age, is entitled to receive the notes, but the interest which accrues in respect of them between the testator's death and A's completing 18 forms part of the residue.

Residuary legatee entitled to produce of residuary fund from testator's death.

310. The legatee under a general residuary bequest is entitled to the produce of the residuary fund from the testator's death.

Exception.—A general residuary bequest contingent in its terms does not comprise the income which may accrue upon the fund bequeathed between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy. Such income goes as undisposed of.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator bequeaths the residue of his property to A, a minor, to be paid to him when he shall complete the age of 18. The income from the testator's death belongs to A.

(5) The testator bequeaths the residue of his property to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he complete that age, is entitled to receive the residue. The income which has accrued in respect of it since the testator's death goes as undisposed of.

311. Where no time has been fixed for the payment of a general legacy, interest begins to run from the expiration of one year from the testator's death.

Exceptions. (1.)—Where the legacy is bequeathed in satisfaction of a debt, interest runs from the death of the testator.

(2.)—Where the testator was a parent or a more remote ancestor of the legatee, or has put himself in the place of a parent of the legatee, the legacy shall bear interest from the death of the testator.

(3.) Where a sum is bequeathed to a minor with a direction to pay for his maintenance out of it, interest is payable from the death of the testator.

No interest payable on arrears of annuity within first year after testator's death.

314. No interest is payable on the arrears of an annuity within the first year from the death of the testator, although a period earlier than the expiration of that year may have been fixed by the Will for making the first payment of the annuity.

315. Where a sum of money is directed to be invested to produce an annuity, interest is payable on it from the death of the testator.

PART XXXIX.

Of the Refunding of Legacies.

Refund of legacy paid under Judge's order.

316. When an executor has paid a legacy under the order of a Judge, he is entitled to call upon the legatee to refund in the event of the assets proving insufficient to pay all the legacies.

No refund if legacy paid voluntarily.

317. When an executor has voluntarily paid a legacy, he cannot call upon a legatee to refund in the event of the assets proving insufficient to pay all the legacies.

Refund when legacy has become due on performance of a condition within further time allowed under Section 124.

318. When the time prescribed by the Will for the performance of a condition has elapsed without the condition having been performed, and the executor has thereupon, without fraud, distributed the assets; in such case, if further time has been allowed under the one hundred and twenty-fourth Section for the performance of the condition, and the condition has been performed accordingly, the legacy cannot be claimed from the executor, but those to whom he has paid it are liable to refund the amount.

When each legatee is compellable to refund in proportion.

Distribution of assets.

320. Where an executor or administrator has given such notices as would have been given by the High Court in an administration suit for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets, or any part thereof, in discharge of such lawful claims as he knows of, and shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he shall not have had notice at the time of such distribution; but nothing herein contained shall prejudice the right of any creditor or claimant to follow the assets, or any part thereof, in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

Creditor may follow assets.

Within what period a creditor may call upon a legatee to refund.

321. A creditor who has not received payment of his debt may, within two years after the death of the testator, or one year after the legacy has been paid, call upon a legatee who has received payment of his legacy to refund, whether the assets of the testator's estate were or were not sufficient, at the time of his death, to pay both debts and legacies, and whether the payment of the legacy by the executor was voluntary or not.

When a legatee who has not received payment or who has been compelled to refund under Section 321 cannot oblige one who has received payment in full to refund.

322. If the assets were sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy, or who has been compelled to refund under the last preceding Section, cannot oblige one who has received payment in full to refund, whether the legacy were paid to him with or without suit, although the assets have subsequently become deficient by the wasting of the executor.

When an unsatisfied legatee must first proceed against executor if solvent.

323. If the assets were not sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy must, before he can call on a satisfied legatee to refund, first proceed against the executor if he is solvent; but if the executor is insolvent or not liable to pay, the unsatisfied legatee can oblige each satisfied legatee to refund in proportion.

Limit to the refunding of one legatee to another.

324. The refunding of one legatee to another shall not exceed the sum by which the satisfied legacy ought to have been reduced if the estate had been properly administered.

Illustration.

A has bequeathed 240 Rupees to B, 480 Rupees to C, and 720 Rupees to D. The assets are only 1,200 Rupees, and if properly administered would give 200 Rupees to B, 400 Rupees to C, and 600 Rupees to D. C and D have been paid their legacies in full, leaving nothing to B. B can oblige C to refund 80 Rupees, and D to refund 120 Rupees.

Refunding to be without interest.

325. The refunding shall in all cases be without interest.

326. The surplus or residue of the deceased's property after payment of debts and legacies shall be paid to the residuary legatee when any has been appointed by the Will.

Residue of the deceased's property after usual payments to be paid to residuary legatee.

PART XL.

Of the Liability of an Executor or Administrator for Devastation.

327. When an executor or administrator misapplies the estate of the deceased, or subjects it to loss or damage, he is liable to make good the loss or damage so occasioned.

Liability of executor or administrator for devastation.

Illustrations.

328. When an executor or administrator occasions a loss to the estate by neglecting to get in any part of the property of the deceased he is liable to make good the amount.

For neglect to get in any part of the deceased's property.

(b) The executor neglects to sue for a debt till the debtor is able to plead the Act for the limitation of suits, and the debt is thereby lost to the estate. The executor is liable to make good the amount.

PART XLI.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th March 1865, and was referred to a Select Committee, with instructions to make their report thereon in a fortnight :—

No. 9 OF 1865.

A Bill to amend Act No. X of 1862 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties.)

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act No. X of 1862 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties) ; It is enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

1. The thirty-third Section of the said Act No. X of 1862 is hereby repealed, and the following Section shall be read in lieu thereof :—

Act X of 1862, Section 33, repealed.

2. The Governor General of India in Council may, from time to time, by an order to be published in the Official Gazette, direct that, in the whole of the British Territories in India, or in such part thereof as may be specified in the said order, such lower rates of Stamp Duty as he shall prescribe shall be taken on all or any of the Deeds, Instruments, or Writings specified in the Schedules annexed to the said Act, or on any particular class of such Deeds, Instruments, or Writings, or on any of the Deeds, Instruments, or Writings belonging to any such class, or he may altogether exempt the same, and in like manner, as occasion shall require, cancel or vary such order to the extent of the powers hereby given. Such cancelment or variation shall also be notified in the Official Gazette.

Governor General in Council may lower rates of Stamp Duty on any Deeds, &c., mentioned in the Schedules, or on any class of such Deeds, &c.

3. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of the said Act No. X of 1862.

This Act to be taken as part of Act X of 1862.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE part of the Stamp Act which the present Bill proposes to amend is the thirty-third Section. By that Section the Governor General of India in Council is empowered to reduce the rate of Stamp Duty on all or any of the Deeds, Instruments, and Writings described in the Schedules at the end of the Act, or altogether to exempt them from Stamp Duty. The Section, as now framed, might be supposed to be sufficiently large and comprehensive to enable the Government of India to do all that is necessary in the direction of the Section, and to meet every case in which a reduction of Stamp Duty might be deemed just or reasonable; but experience has shewn that the wording of the Section is too restrictive and that the power given by it requires to be enlarged. An application has recently been made to the Government of India to reduce the Stamp Duty chargeable on bonds which are taken under the Indian Customs Act of 1863. These bonds are now liable to the same Stamp Duty as all other bonds or obligations for the payment of money. Compared with England the amount of Stamp Duty on bonds in this Country is high, and as levied on the class of bonds just mentioned, it is found to press heavily upon trade, and particularly upon the bonders of Salt cargoes. Looking to the circumstances under which these bonds are taken, and to the fact that actions to enforce them are very rare, the Government are disposed to view favorably the proposition that has been made for the reduction of the rate of Stamp Duty to which they are now liable, and to follow, to some extent, the English practice in respect of such bonds; but they are advised that, although they have power to lower the rate of Stamp Duty on bonds generally in the whole or any part of British India, they have not power to reduce the rate of Stamp Duty on any particular class of bonds. The object of the present Bill is to invest the Government of India with this power as regards not only bonds, but also all other Deeds, Instruments, and Writings liable to Stamp Duty.

Whoever, during the period for which any such license is suspended, or after the same is revoked as aforesaid, slaughters cattle, or allows cattle to be slaughtered in the Slaughter-House to which such license relates, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred Rupees, for every day after the conviction for such offence, during which the said offence is continued.

Penalty for using Slaughter-Houses during suspension or revocation of license.

VIII. The provisions of Act III of 1864, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, in regard to prosecutions for offences and the enforcement of fines and forfeitures, shall be applicable to all prosecutions for offences, and the recovery of fines and forfeitures under this Act; and the Magisterial powers conferred upon the Municipal Commissioners by Section VIII of the above Act shall be exercised by them for all the purposes of this Act.

Certain provisions of Act III of 1864 rendered applicable.

IX. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to extend, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, the provisions of this Act or of any specific portion thereof, to any Towns or places in which Act III of 1864, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, may be in force.

The provisions of this Act may be extended to places under Act III of 1864.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE existing law contains no provision for the effective control of the management of Slaughter-Houses, and the Conservancy arrangements essential to their being kept in a clean and healthy condition beyond the limits of the jurisdiction of the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta. The Slaughter-Houses from which the entire meat consumed within the Town is supplied, are in the Suburbs; and it has been found, after a careful examination and consideration of the question by a Committee appointed by Government, that this locality offers the most suitable site for these establishments, but that as at present constituted, owing to the absence of proper management and any kind of Conservancy arrangements, they present an intolerable nuisance to the surrounding neighbourhood and render a supply of pure and wholesome meat, to the various bazars and markets, impossible.

To remedy this state of things, it is proposed to construct buildings, in the Suburbs of the Town of Calcutta to be used as Public Slaughter-Houses, and the object of this Bill, which contains in a somewhat amended form, the substance of Sections CXCVI to CXCIX, and Sections CCII and CCIII of Act VI of 1863, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, is to provide for the closing of all existing Slaughter-Houses, the prohibition of the use of any place as a Slaughter-House except when duly licensed, and the exercise by the Municipal Commissioners of an effective control over the management, regulation, and conservancy of the new establishments, as well as of the meat bazars and markets supplied by them.

SIR,—IN accordance with the suggestion made in your letter in the Foreign Department, (General,) dated 19th September, (No. 17) 1864, I have consulted the Law Officers of the Crown and the Standing Counsel to this Department on the question whether the restrictions as to salaries in India imposed by Acts 33 George III., Cap. 52, Section 57,—and 53 George III., Cap. 155,—Section 82, have been repealed by Act 24 and 25 Victoria, Cap. 54; and it is the opinion of those Functionaries that the enactments in question have been wholly repealed by Section 7 of the lastmentioned Act.

2. It will be proper, in accordance with this opinion, that any sums which, since the passing of Act 24 and 25 Victoria, Cap. 54, have been withheld from any Junior Civilians in any of the Presidencies, under the view of the Law which has now been declared to be erroneous, should be paid to them, and that any sums retrenched on the same account should be refunded; and having considered the subject in Council I have to request that you will cause an adjustment of the salaries of the Civil Servants in question to be effected in conformity with this view.

3. I shall address you hereafter on the general subject of the limitation of salaries in relation to length of service.

I have, &c.,

The following Rules relating to Emigration from the Port of Calcutta have been made by the Governor General in Council under the provisions of Section 63 of Act No. XIII. of 1864, and are published for general information :—

Rules for the guidance of the Protector, Medical Inspector of Emigrants, and Colonial Emigration Agents at the Port of Calcutta, under the provisions of Act No. XIII. of 1864.

1. PROTECTOR OF EMIGRANTS.—The Protector of Emigrants shall at least once a week inspect the Emigrants in the various Depôts, examine into the state of each Depôt, and note the manner in which the Emigrants are lodged, fed, and clothed, and otherwise provided for.

2. He shall examine all intending Emigrants recruited in Calcutta, and if satisfied that the nature of the engagement is comprehended, register the same in a Book kept for the purpose. One copy of every Registration shall be furnished to the Emigrant, and one to the Emigration Agent of the Depôt for which the Emigrant has been engaged.

3. He shall take such steps as he shall think necessary for the conveyance to the place of first registration of all Emigrants who have been pronounced unqualified for Emigration by the Medical Inspector.

4. It shall be his duty to see that no restraint is put on any Emigrant, whether in Depôt or at the time of embarkation, and that none are detained or embarked against their will.

5. He will see that every Vessel licensed to carry Emigrants has been carefully surveyed, and ascertain that she is properly ventilated and is supplied with all necessaries requisite for the voyage.

6. He shall report in full on the survey to the Local Government, and if in every way qualified for the carrying of Emigrants, grant a Certificate to that effect to the Master of the Vessel.

7. It shall be the duty of the Protector of Emigrants to require the Master to enter into a Bond in consideration of his obtaining a License to carry Emigrants.

8. He shall see that the Emigrants are supplied with extra clothing at certain seasons of the year, or between the 1st March and 15th September.

9. It shall be the duty of the Protector to prevent the embarkation of any Emigrant who may be considered by the Medical Inspector incapacitated for labor from any cause whatever. He shall also ascertain that every Emigrant has in his possession a copy of the Registration provided under Section 30 or 33 of the Act.

10. The Protector shall, prior to embarkation, explain to all intending Emigrants the provisions of the Act in so far as they are affected thereby.

11. The Protector shall be personally present at the embarkation, and shall, in conjunction with the Master, compare the Lists supplied by Agents with the Passes, receiving two copies of the List from the Master, and, if correct, sign them, returning one to the Master, the other to be placed as record in the Protector's Office.

12. It shall be his duty to see that no one remains on board who has not a Pass, or whose name is not mentioned in the List.

13. The Protector shall report to the Local Government any discrepancy in the Muster Roll taken by the Officer of Customs or Pilot with the List signed by the Master and filed in the Office of the Protector.

14. The Protector shall furnish to the Protector of Immigrants, or other the proper Government Authority at the place for which the Emigrants embarked, a correct and detailed List of all Emigrants embarked in each Vessel, compiled from the Passes and from the List signed by the Master.

15. The Protector of Emigrants shall, as far as lies in his power, generally protect with his advice or otherwise all intending or return Emigrants, and shall cause all the provisions of the Act to be duly complied with. He shall also inspect Vessels bringing return Emigrants, ascertain the treatment received during their term of Emigration and on the voyage, and shall report thereon to Government.

16. Ships may be allowed to carry their full measurement of Emigrants, computed under Clauses 2 and 5, Section 47 of the Act, with a separate compartment for the married people and children; the space so measured shall be devoted to the exclusive use of the Emigrants, and shall in every part have a height of not less than five feet and a half, and may be either between-decks or in cabins on the upper deck firmly secured and entirely covered in.

17. Government Medical Inspector of Emigrants.—The Medical Inspector of Emigrants shall at least once a week examine into the sanitary state of each Depôt, inspect the Emigrants, and note the manner in which they are lodged, fed, clothed, and otherwise provided for and attended to. He shall report to the Protector any objection he may have to make to any Depôt, as well as any neglect or oppression of the inmates.

18. He shall, as soon as convenient, after the arrival of an Emigrant at a Depot, examine the copy of his Registration, ascertain if he is in a fit state of health to emigrate; and if satisfied of his fitness furnish a Certificate thereof to the Emigration Agent; if otherwise, furnish a Certificate to the contrary effect to the Protector of Emigrants.

19. He shall, in conjunction with the Protector of Emigrants, be personally responsible that all the provisions contained in Section 48 of the Act are complied with.

Colonial Emigration Agents.—Every Colonial Emigration Depôt shall be licensed by the Protector of Emigrants after being inspected and approved of by him and the Medical Inspector of Emigrants, and for every License granted under Act XIII. of 1864 there shall be paid to the Protector a fee of Rupees 10.

21. Every Recruiter must be licensed by the Protector of Emigrants.

22. Each Recruiter shall be licensed to recruit for some particular place to which Emigration is lawful under the Act. Licenses to be granted only on the application of Emigration Agents.

23. No License shall be in force for a longer period than one year, and may be at any time cancelled by the Protector for misconduct. Every License shall be in the form set forth in Schedule B. of the Act, and for every such License there shall be paid to the Protector a fee of Rupees 10.

24. Every Recruiter shall wear a badge in accordance with Section 28 of the Act.

25. Every Recruiter must have his License countersigned by the Magistrate of the District in which he is recruiting.

26. Every intending Emigrant, before leaving his District, must be taken by the Recruiter before the Magistrate for examination and registration, or in the case of recruitment in the Town of Calcutta, must, within forty-eight hours and before removal to an Emigration Depôt, be taken before the Protector of Emigrants for a similar purpose.

27. For the registration of every statute adult Emigrant the Recruiter shall pay to the Magistrate or to the Protector, as the case may be, a fee of 1 Rupee, which fee will be refunded on proof of desertion.

28. Emigrants shall be conveyed with all convenient dispatch to the Depôt of the port of embarkation, accompanied on the journey by the Recruiter or by a competent person appointed by him with the approval of the Magistrate. Such Recruiter or Agent shall throughout the journey provide them with suitable lodging and food.

29. The Emigration Agent shall report to the Protector of Emigrants the arrival of each Emigrant, and shall, as soon as convenient after such arrival, exhibit a copy of his Registration to the Medical Inspector of Emigrants.

30. The Emigration Agent, in the presence of the Protector and within forty-eight hours after the arrival of each Emigrant, shall ascertain whether he has been properly fed and treated during the journey to the Depôt. He shall also inspect and countersign the Emigrant's copy of his Registration.

31. The Emigration Agent shall deliver to all such Emigrants as have been approved by the Medical Inspector of Emigrants a Pass in accordance with Section 42 of the Act.

32. The Emigration Agent shall examine and pass the Emigrants in the presence of the Protector of Emigrants.

33. The Emigration Agent shall furnish a Certificate of compliance with the requisitions of the Act to the Master of the Ship to enable him to obtain his License.

34. The Emigration Agent shall furnish the Master of the Vessel with five copies of a List prepared in conformity with Clause 1, Section 53 of the Act, two copies of which List he shall, after the embarkation, countersign, returning one of them to the Master.

35. The proportion of females shall be 25 per cent. to male Emigrants embarked. Females in an advanced stage of pregnancy should not be embarked, nor, as a general rule, young children who are unable to take ordinary food.

36. Every Emigration Agent shall afford every facility to the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants for the due execution of their duties.

Rules for the guidance of all persons concerned in the Emigration of Native Laborers from Calcutta to the British and Foreign Colonies.

1. Every Vessel for which a License is required shall be surveyed under the instructions of the Protector of Emigrants to whom applications for Survey should be addressed.

2. After a Vessel has been surveyed and passed as fit for the conveyance of Emigrants, the Protector will grant to the Master a Certificate of her fitness, after which the Commander shall send for the inspection of the Protector samples of each description of provisions enumerated in the accompanying Scale No. 1, and the provisions shall be kept 'tween-decks till examined and passed by the Protector and Medical Inspector of Emigrants. Commanders are desired to be particularly careful in inspecting the provisions to satisfy themselves that all are of the best quality, as the examination by the Protector of the samples and of the provisions on board does not in any way lessen their responsibility. They are further required to sign the Certificate affixed to the accompanying Form No. 4. After the provisions have been passed a sample of each sort must be sent to the Emigration Agent. River water drawn from a point above the city by Government Water Tank Boats provided for the purpose is to be laid in for the use of the Coolies and Crews of Ships; the prescribed quantity of drinking water sequired for the voyage,* equal to consumption, is to be carried in Iron Tanks or Casks. Every Vessel employed in the conveyance of Emigrants shall, unless specially exempted by the Protector, be fitted with a Normandy's Apparatus or other Apparatus approved by the Protector of Emigrants for distilling Sea water, and shall also carry thirty tons of English Coal and a sufficiency of stores and tools for the Apparatus in accordance with the List in the Protector's Office. Where a Distilling Apparatus is provided a reduction shall be allowed of one-third in the quantity of water carried in the Tanks. The Agent or Commander of every Vessel engaged to convey Emigrants shall provide medicines, medical comforts, and surgical instruments and appliances according to the annexed scale No. 3. All such medicinal stores shall be examined by the Depôt Surgeon, whose Certificate as to their quantity and quality shall be forwarded to the Office of the Protector of Emigrants at least one week before the Vessel Sails.

3. Every such Vessel shall have one storm hatch and a wind sail for every hatchway, and be otherwise ventilated according to the Regulations of Government. Commanders are required to understand and to be provided with a copy of Piddington's Work on the Law of Storms, and of Colonel Reid's Work, if procurable. They are further to be provided with the provisions and stores prescribed in Schedule No. 1 appended to these Rules. No dogs or wild animals shall be allowed on board a Vessel intended for Emigrants, nor shall any lumber be kept on the upper deck, except Ship's fitting, Long Boat, together with provisions, ghee, oil, &c., and water sufficient for three days' consumption. This supply is always to be kept ready to be served out daily without opening the hatches.

4. Water closets shall be fitted abreast of the forechains inside the Vessel, one for the use of the women, and one for the sick in bad weather; the latter shall on no account be used at any other time or for any other purpose. The space to be occupied by the Emigrants between-decks must be white-washed and entirely cleared, nothing being stowed away in any part or between the beams; platforms, twenty-four feet long, shall be erected in the between-decks abreast of each hatchway on both sides of the Ship, and one must be fitted over the Long Boat. Cabooses shall be constructed so as to afford ample shelter to the Cooks from the weather. When this has been done, and all requisites, including cooking pots, cabooses, &c., have been put on board, and the Vessel is ready for Sea, the Commander shall apply to the Protector to have her surveyed again, and will then obtain a Certificate in the annexed Form No. 5.

5. A qualified European or Native Medical Officer will, subject to the approval of the Protector of Emigrants, be appointed by the Emigration Agents to every Ship engaged for the transport of Emigrants. In cases in which the Medical Officer selected by the Agents has no Diploma, he shall not be employed without the approval of the Director-General of the Medical Department. An Apothecary, or qualified Native Doctor, shall also be appointed to attend on the Emigrants during the voyage.

6. The Medical Officer selected must be sent to the Protector's Office for the purpose of having his Testimonials examined, and the Protector may, if he sees reason for so doing, take the opinion of the Director-General of the Medical Department as to the efficiency of such Medical Officer.

7. Printed instructions for the medical treatment and management of Emigrants will be given to the Medical Officers on application by the Emigration Agent.

8. Government having directed that a second Medical Officer shall accompany each Ship to the Sandheads when disease is prevalent in Calcutta, any Commander not taking such an Assistant will be required to obtain from the Examining Surgeon, on the day of the embarkation of the Emigrants, a Certificate to the effect that they have been generally healthy in the Depôt, and that no epidemic is prevalent among the Coolies there.

9. Fire Buckets to the number required by the Port Regulations, viz. five per 100 tons, shall be provided and arranged on the poop so as to be readily accessible in case of need.

10. Emigrants will not be allowed to embark on any Vessel on board which there is not a third European Officer, whose chief duty it shall be to adopt and superintend precautions against fire, and to have charge of and issue the rations and water of the Emigrants.

11. Prior to taking in cargo or stores, the Vessel's limbers and bilges shall be thoroughly cleared, and the latter shall be purified by means of Burnett's disinfecting fluid.

12. No Gunpowder or inflammable Oil shall be taken on board an Emigrant Vessel on freight.

13. Every Commander of an Emigrant Ship is required to procure a Certificate from the Owners or Managing Agents to the effect that a competent Steam Tug is engaged to take his Vessel to Sea, and that she will be ready to take the Vessel in tow within twenty-four hours after the embarkation of such of the Emigrants as shall have first embarked. Where neither the Commanders nor any of his Officers can speak the Native language an efficient Interpreter must be provided.

14. Commanders are required to have Crew Lists prepared according to Form No. 6. No Native passengers, excepting Emigrants and Cabin passengers' servants, will be received on board an Emigrant Vessel.

15. Three days before the embarkation of Emigrants, Commanders are required to lodge Documents in the Forms Nos. 2, 4, 5, and 6 annexed to the Rules in the Protector's Office, to produce the Registers of their Ships, if required, and to execute the Bond required by the Emigration Act. Two copies of this Act and all Rules with translations will be furnished to them by the Emigration Agent, and must be retained in their possession during the voyage.

16. All requisite Forms will be supplied free of cost, but one Rupee will be charged for each duplicate if any be required to replace lost or spoilt Forms.

17. When all the arrangements required by the above Rules have been completed, and the Vessel is clear and in all respects ready for Sea and in a fit state to receive the Emigrants on board, the Master shall apply in writing, through the Protector of Emigrants to the Local

* i. e. to the first intermediate Port of Calling.

Government, for a License which will be delivered to the Master after the final examination of the Ship.

18. Moorings are specially laid down abreast of the Cooley Embarkation Wharf at Garden Reach, at which Commanders are required to moor their Vessels before the Emigrants embark.

19. Commanders are required to muster their Crew in the presence of the Pilot previous to the embarkation of the Emigrants, in order that their efficiency my be ascertained.

20. Commanders are required to afford to the Preventive Officers and Pilots every assistance in their power in carrying out the separate instructions with which they are charged.

22. For every hundred adults four Sirdars must be appointed, one of them (who, whenever practicable, should be a man who has made a voyage before,) to act as headman. The Emigrants, previous to embarkation, must be divided into lots, and each Sirdar should take charge of a company and also of a division of the lower deck, for the cleanliness of which he is to be held responsible; one Mehter or Topas is to be shipped for every hundred souls, and two* professional Cooks (Bandarees) are to be sent in each Vessel, if the Protector thinks such an arrangement necessary.

23. The Ship's Surgeon shall receive charge of the medicines, medical stores, &c., previously ascertaining that they are of good quality and not short of the quantity stated in the List furnished to him. He shall also give a receipt for such articles of clothing for the use of the sick as may be supplied to him by the Emigration Agent, and on arriving at the Port of debarkation he shall deliver the balance of such stores to the Emigration Agent at that Port, with a Statement of issues during the voyage.

24. Surgeons should see that one-half of the men and women remain constantly on the upper deck during the Vessel's progress down the river, and that the greatest care is taken to prevent their drawing up and drinking the river water from alongside. The platform over the Long Boat and the poop deck being for the express accommodation of the Emigrants, good awnings must be spread over the poop and main deck all day and night until the Vessel is outside Sauger. In Vessels without a poop the space behind the mizen mast is to be given up to the Emigrants during the voyage, and specially while in the river. Surgeons should also see that every Emigrant, male and female, children included, is sent on deck daily in moderate weather, provided there are no urgent sanatory reasons to the contrary.

25. During the voyage Commanders should see that the 'tween-decks are cleared three times every day, fumigated and dry-holy-stoned at least twice a week, and white-washed throughout, every alternate Saturday,—weather permitting; that none of the Crew interfere with the comforts or accommodation of the Emigrants; that the space given up for their use is in no way encroached upon; and that the provisions and water are regularly served out in the presence of an European Officer twice every day at fixed hours, according to the annexed Scale No. 1, so that the Emigrants shall be provided with two cooked meals daily at 9 A. M. and 4 P. M. Commanders should retain in their possession the Certificate and effects of those Emigrants who die during the Vessel's progress down the River and at Sea, and deliver them to the Protector of Emigrants at the Colony to which they are bound, with the counterpart List given to them by the Emigration Agent: great care must be taken not to deface the Certificate or List.

26. Ships that do not make so much water as to require to be pumped out once a week must twice a week have a sufficient quantity of water poured into their hold, and pumped out again for the purpose of keeping the bilges sweet.

27. As the health of the Emigrants and the welfare of all persons on board a Ship materially depend on due care and attention to ventilation, cleanliness, and dry decks the Commander is required to fit Booby hatches to hatchway, and to take care that in bad weather ports, scuttles, and the ordinary hatchways are kept closed. During fine weather the Emigrants should be allowed and encouraged to be as much on deck as possible.

28. The Emigrants are to be allowed the means of bathing daily and of washing their clothes twice a week. They should also be allowed to have such exercise and recreation as the Surgeon may recommend. The Commander of the Vessel should provide them with tubs and buckets, and with a hand-pump to enable them to draw up water either for bathing or washing purposes, as well as with lines for drying their clothes. The Commander should also desire one of his Officers and some of the Crew to render assistance to the Emigrants on these occasions. For the women accommodation for bathing should be made by screening off a place with a sail. During the continuance of rainy weather much fresh water may be saved and reserved for washing clothes, and as at that time the decks and clothes will be much affected by damp, the Commander is required, on the return of fine weather, to dry the decks with hanging stoves, the greatest care being taken that no Emigrants are in the 'tween-decks at the time. The airing and drying of bedding and clothes at least twice a week must be insisted on.

29. As the Surgeon will have the principal charge of the Emigrants, every requisition made by him to the Commander, consistent with good order and discipline, without interfering with the routine duties for which the Commander himself is always the responsible person, must be promptly complied with.

30. Meals, when ready, should be reported to the Surgeon, who should inspect the food to satisfy himself that it has been cooked sufficiently. It must then be served out under the superintendence of the Ship's Officers, the Surgeon going below to assist in keeping order, and seeing that an equal distribution takes place.

* Except when more than 350 Coolies are conveyed in a Ship, in which case a third Cook must be taken.

31. Emigrants must, whenever the weather permits, eat their food on deck and not below, and no one should be permitted on any account to retain any portion of cooked rice or meal for consumption when cold.

32. Cooking utensils should be frequently inspected, and the practice of boiling rice or other articles of food in a mixture of salt and fresh water must be strictly prohibited. Provisions must always be well and properly cooked. Care must be taken to prevent any wastage of the daily allowance of water. The Sirdars should exercise a careful supervision on all these points, and never fail to report to the Commander and Surgeon any instances of neglect.

33. It will be the duty of the Surgeon to enforce on the Emigrants regularity of habits, cleanliness, and good order, and to encourage bathing whenever the weather permits. It is also important to the health and well-being of the Emigrants to keep up their spirits by harmless diversions and exercise. They should be permitted to play on their musical instruments, and sing until eight bells. They must not be allowed to sleep on deck at Sea, unless under cover and well wrapped up.

34. The Surgeon should, as far as possible, guard the Emigrants from harsh treatment by any subordinate person on board the Vessel, by bringing every instance of such treatment to the notice of the Commander, who should enquire into the matter, and administer such punishment as the case calls for. No punishment shall be inflicted on any Emigrant except by order of the Commander.

35. It will be the Surgeon's duty to recommend to the Commander of the Vessel for adoption such arrangements or expedients, either sanatory or otherwise, for the comfort of the Emigrants as may, from time to time appear to him to be necessary or advisable.

36. The Surgeon should request the Commander to have two days every week devoted to the washing and airing of bedding and clothes, and there should be a general muster every week of all personal clothes and bedding belonging to the Emigrants. All warm clothing, according to the scale prescribed in Table No. 2, should at the outset of the voyage, be taken an account of and held in reserve under the Commander's and Surgeon's care, to be served out to the Emigrants when a change of climate necessitates a change of raiment. The warm clothing allotted to each male or female should be marked, and the owner held responsible for its care and preservation. Extra suits of clothing, at the rate of 5 per cent. of strength, should be supplied to re-place clothing irreparably damaged or rendered unfit for wear by sickness. The clothing of every Cooley dying from typhus fever, dysentery, small-pox, and cholera should be destroyed.

37. The Surgeon must keep a watchful eye on the health of the Emigrants to discover the earliest symptoms of scurvy, fever, bowel complaint, or any other disease, in order that he may take prompt measures to stop the progress of sickness among them, and in addition to this general observation he should muster the Emigrants at least twice on the upper deck, and by a personal inspection ascertain their state and condition.

38. On the least suspicion of scorbutic disease, the Surgeon must represent to the Commander the necessity of such change of diet as may be essentially required. He must also take especial care that none of the Emigrants, male or female, wear or lie down in damp clothes, and in short both he and the Commander should always bear in mind that on wholesome diet, cleanliness, ventilation, and recreation materially depend the preservation of health and the comfort of the men, women, and children who are placed under their care and control.

39. The Surgeon must keep two Registers; the one a Daily Journal in the form prescribed by the Medical Inspector of Emigrants, and the other a Special Mortality Record. In the former should be entered the Ship number, disease, and general treatment, very briefly, of every Emigrant sick during the passage. In the latter are to be entered the cases of those who die, specifying the Ship number, name, sex, and caste of every deceased Emigrant, the Villages and District of which he or she was resident, the disease which caused death, and the date of decease. A Medical history of the voyage should also be kept in full detail with a Statement of every fatal and important case occurring on board, as well as of every ocurrence worthy of remark. These Records must be signed by the Surgeon, and, on arrival at the Port of debarkation, handed to the Protector of Emigrants or other proper Government Authority for transmission to the Protector of Emigrants at Calcutta.

40. The Hospital accommodation required to be provided in Emigrant Ships, under Clause 8, Section 44 of Act XIII. of 1864, shall invariably be on the upper deck.

41. On arrival at the port of debarkation the state in which each of the Emigrants is landed, whether in perfect health, sickly, &c., should be entered in the column of remarks of the General Register in the hands of the Commander. Opposite the names of those who died on the passage should be entered "died," and the date of decease. This Register must be signed by the Commander and forwarded immediately on arrival to the Protector of Immigrants or other proper Authority at the port of debarkation for transmission to the Protector of Emigrants at Calcutta.

42. To ensure regularity and correctness in those Returns no payment of any description is to be made to the Surgeon until the General Mortality Registers have been examined, and their correctness ascertained by the Protector of Emigrants or some other authorized Officer of Government and by the Health Officer of the port of debarkation. They will then be countersigned by those Officers with a declaration of their correctness, and transmitted by the earliest opportunity to the Protector of Emigrants at Calcutta.

43. Surgeons proceeding in Emigrant Vessels are required to attend frequently at the Depôts before embarkation, in order that they may become acquainted with the health and physical condition of the people they are to receive charge of.

44. The Forms of Registers referred to are those appended in and marked Nos. 7, 8, and 9. They will be supplied by the Emigration Agent at Calcutta.

The following Order issued by the Government of India in the Financial Department is re-published for information :—

No. 1765.

Fort William, the 29th March 1865.

The following Correspondence is published for general information :—

From E. H. LUSHINGTON, ESQ., Secretary to Government of India, Financial Department, to Secretary to the Government of Fort St. George,—(No. 3609, dated the 30*th November* 1864.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1970 of the 25th October 1864, from the enclosures of which it appears that a retrenchment made by the Civil Pay-Master, Madras, on account of the pay of the Serishtadar of the Dindigul Talook in Madras, who was allowed privilege leave for three months, of which only two months' leave had been earned before the promulgation of the new Rules for the grant of leave of absence to Uncovenanted Servants was remitted by the Government of Madras, firstly, because the Resolution No. 3478, passed in this Department on the 31st July 1863, intended to allow Uncovenanted Officers who had already earned accumulated privilege leave under the old Rules to "retain that leave, plus whatever they could earn under the new, provided the aggregate does not exceed the maximum period of three months;" and secondly, because the Leave Rules do not apply to servants on less than Rupees 100 per mensem.

2. In reply I am desired to forward a copy of a letter No. 343, dated the 24th May 1864, to the address of the Secretary to the Government of Bombay, from which it will be seen that the Madras Government has not correctly interpreted the Resolution of the 31st July 1863, and to draw attention to the orders noted in the margin, declaring that the spirit of the new Leave Rules should be observed in the cases of Uncovenanted Servants on less than Rupees 100 per mensem. The remission, however, of the retrenchment against the Serishtadar of the Dindigul Talook is confirmed, as a special case.

Letter to the Civil Pay-Master, Madras, No. 3654 of the 10th August 1863, communicated by endorsement to the Government of Madras.

From J. D. SIM, ESQ., Secretary to Government of Fort St. George, to Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department.—(No. 396—437, dated the 23*rd February* 1865.)

I AM directed to request that His Excellency the Governor in Council may be informed of the precise meaning of the ruling conveyed in paragraph 2 of your letter to my address, dated 30th November last, No. 3609, viz. that "the spirit of the new Leave Rules should be observed in the cases of Uncovenanted Servants on less than Rupees 100 per mensem."

2. In the instance which led to the above ruling this Government, in dealing with a case of special hardship, remarked that the Leave Rules do not apply with the same strictness to Officers drawing less than Rupees 100 per mensem as to those drawing that sum or more. From your reply above quoted it would, however, seem that the Rules apply with at least equal strictness to all Uncovenanted Officers.

3. Another case has now occurred in which a Clerk on Rupees 25 per mensem, who obtained private leave in February 1859, was granted similar leave in March 1864. A moiety of his pay during the latter leave is available; but the Civil Pay-Master objects to its disbursement, because, under the Rules, a second leave, on private affairs, cannot be taken by a servant drawing 100 Rupees and upwards until the expiration of six years.

4. The Civil Pay-Master, if correct, in fact applies the letter of the rules to these Officers, whereas the ruling of the Supreme Government seems to imply that it is not the letter but the spirit of the Rules which is applicable. The Governor in Council would be glad, under these circumstances, of a fuller expression of the wishes of the Supreme Government for his guidance.

From E. H. LUSHINGTON, ESQ., Secretary to Government of India, Financial Department, to Chief Secretary to the Government of Madras, —(No. 1666, dated the 28*th March* 1865.)

IN reply to your letter No. 396, dated the 23rd February 1865, I am desired to inform you that the spirit in which the Rules for leave of absence to Uncovenanted Servants should be applied to servants drawing less than Rupees 100 monthly is explained in my letter to the Civil Pay-Master, Madras, No. 3654, dated 10th August 1863, a copy of which was duly communicated to you.

2. With reference to the inquiry whether the Leave Rules should be applied with the same strictness to servants on less than Rupees 100 a month as to those drawing that sum and more, I am to state that Local Governments may, at their discretion, grant other than privilege leave to the former class of servants in excess of the periods prescribed for servants on Rupees 100 and upwards seeing that such leave will not count for pension.

The following Order issued by the Government of India in the Military Department is re-published for information :—

2. The tonnage of every vessel, whether laden or empty, shall, for the purposes of the Canals' Act and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements :—

a. The product of half the length of the vessel from stem to stern measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll should be levied.

b. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches. The measurement of the breadth and depth is to be made in feet and quarters of feet, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

c. In calculating the amount of toll to be levied any fraction of 100 maunds less than 50 maunds is to be omitted; and a fraction exceeding 50 maunds is to be charged as 50 maunds only.

3. No raft will be admitted into any of the Channels in excess of 50 feet in length or 5 feet in breadth. No timber, bamboos, or grass will be admitted except securely and compactly packed in the form of a raft.

4. Every vessel entering any of the Channels shall be furnished with a ticket on paying the prescribed toll. The ticket will specify the date of entry, the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

5. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the lines of Channels in question, shall be exempted from paying toll.

6. Every vessel or raft which has paid toll shall be allowed three days to pass through any one of the Channels, the days of entering and leaving being both included; and any vessel or raft remaining in any part of the Channels longer than the period above fixed shall for each day in excess of such period be charged demurrage equal to one-half of the toll paid. Every vessel or raft remaining in any one of the Channels more than one month without authority from the Supervisor shall be subject to be summarily removed.

Papers relating to the working of the Grant-in-aid System in Bengal.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Home Department, (Education,) under date Simla, the 23rd May 1864.

READ a Dispatch from the Secretary of State No. 1, dated the 23rd January 1864, regarding a proposed revision of the system of administering Grants-in-aid.

RESOLUTION.—The Secretary of State has sent copies of the above Dispatch to the Governments of Madras and Bombay, with a request that those Governments will take the subject thereof into "immediate consideration," and will "communicate the result to the Governor General of India," in order that His Excellency may have the opportunity of learning the opinion of those Governments "before coming to a decision as to the alteration of the existing Grant-in-aid Rules."

2. It is desirable that copies of the Dispatch should also be sent at once to the Governments and Administrations noted on the margin, with a request that their opinions may be likewise given.

Government of Bengal.
Government of the North-Western Provinces
Government of the Punjab.
Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces.
" " Oude.
" " British Burmah.

3. A printed set of the existing Rules* in the several Provinces should also be sent to all local Governments and Administrations for information, so as to put them in possession of what has been done in other Provinces; and an extract, paragraphs 51 to 62, from the Dispatch of the Home Government, dated the 19th July 1854, No. 49, in which the general principles now referred to by the Secretary of State are laid down, should be added to the collection.

4. It is to be noted that the Governor General in Council will not deem it necessary to prescribe one uniform set of Rules for all India, but will be glad to take into consideration the special circumstances and wants of each Province, and the opinions of the Authorities charged with its administration, and will be prepared to sanction such Rules for the regulation of Grants-in-aid as, consistently with the general principles of the system, may seem to be most applicable in each case.

* i. e. (1.) Former Grant-in-aid Rules which are still in force in the North-Western Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, Oude, and Burmah.
(2.) Revised Rules recently promulgated in Bengal.
(3.) Madras Rules (Teachers' certificate system)
(4.) Bombay Rules (Capitation system)

From the RIGHT HON'BLE SIR C. WOOD, Bart., M. P. and G C B, Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council,—(No. 1, dated India Office, London, the 23rd January 1864.)

I FORWARD, for your consideration, a copy of a letter which has been addressed to me by the President, Vice-President, and Secretaries of the Church Missionary Society, adverting to what took place at an interview which I have recently had with a deputation from the Society on the subject of Grants-in-aid in India, and offering suggestions with a view to the extension and greater efficiency of the system.

Dated 27th November 1863.

2. It is scarcely necessary to remark that, under the Dispatch of 19th July 1854, it was intended that the system of Grants-in-aid should take its place among the Educational arrangements of India as one of the most important means of extending the opportunities of Education to the great mass of the population. It was, indeed, anticipated that the system of Grants-in-aid might, to a great extent, take the place of Government

Schools, and that in this manner Education might more widely spread with a comparatively less expenditure of public money.

3. The system, however, has certainly not made the progress which might reasonably have been expected under the operation of the Rules which were framed by the different Governments in India for carrying out the orders of Her Majesty's Government, and the amount of Grants-in-aid, after the lapse of eight years from the time of the system being brought into actual operation, bears, except in Bengal, a very small proportion to the direct expenditure of Government on Education.

4. The backwardness of the Native community to establish Schools under the Grant-in-aid system was dwelt on at considerable length in Lord Stanley's Dispatch of the 7th of April 1859; but, as far as a judgment could be formed from the information then available, such backwardness did not seem to be attributable to the particular terms of the Grant-in-aid Rules.

5. It is now, however, represented that considerable difficulty is experienced by voluntary and independent bodies and others in establishing Schools on the Grant-in-aid principle in consequence of the Rules prescribed by the Local Governments for the administration of the system.

6. This objection would not, primâ facie, seem to apply to the Rules in Bengal, which are framed on broad and liberal principles, and have not, as a general rule, been applied in a stringent manner. Under the operation of those Rules assistance has been afforded in the establishment and maintenance of a large number of Vernacular and Anglo-Vernacular Schools promoted by individual Natives or by the local community; but the representations now made, as to the adverse effect of the existing Rules on the exertions of "voluntary and independent parties," certainly receive confirmation from the fact that, except as regards the Educational arrangements in the Sonthal Districts, few, if any, applications have been made by religious or benevolent Associations for grants-in aid of Vernacular Schools in Bengal.

7. In Madras the Grant-in-aid Rules, which had previously been of the same general character as those of Bengal, were altered in 1858 with the object of making them more definite, and of raising the qualifications of the Masters of Schools. The Rules, as they now stand, are undoubtedly liable to the objection that they tend to raise to an unnecessarily high scale the salaries of the Masters, and, by requiring a large proportion of such increased salaries to be paid by the promoters of the School, impose on them a charge beyond the necessities of the case. The result of this enforced expenditure is to concentrate the efforts of independent parties too much on the higher Schools, and thus to limit the funds which would otherwise be available for the education of the poorer classes in remote places where the local community are not in a condition to afford much assistance.

8. The Grant-in-aid Rules in Bombay were framed on the model of the Bengal Rules; but a plan had been previously in operation throughout the Presidency, under which Schools were established by Government in any place where the local community was willing to guarantee a certain portion of the expense, and it was not thought desirable to supersede this plan by the enforcement of the new Rules. In my Dispatch dated 22nd March (No. 5) 1860, I had occasion to point out to the Government of Bombay an error into which the Director of Public Instruction had fallen with regard to the application of the Grant-in-aid system to Schools of a different character, but I am not aware that any applications for aid have since that time been made to the Bombay Government by any Societies or Associations having for their object the promotion of Education among the Natives. The system of Grants-in-aid may, therefore, be regarded as being practically inoperative in the Bombay Presidency.

9. You will, doubtless, consider the suggestion that the system of capitation allowances payable according to the result of examinations, which has recently been introduced in this country, should be extended to India. I am not sure that this system is altogether as applicable there as in this country, though I observe that Mr. Howard, the Director of Public Instruction at Bombay, has recommended its introduction into that Presidency.

10. The suggestion that "the erection of Training Institutions for Native School Masters and School Mistresses should receive special encouragement and aid, with a view to promoting the education of the masses of India," seems to be well worthy of adoption.

11. I am desirous, with reference to the foregoing remarks, that the subject of the administration of Grants-in-aid should receive your careful consideration in view to the removal of any impediments in the way of the extension of the system, and to the adoption of such Rules as, consistently with the principles laid down in the Dispatch of July 1854, while affording the requisite security for the due application of the grants, shall interfere as little as possible with the free action of those who may seek, under their operation, to promote the spread of Education among the masses of the people. It will, of course, be borne in mind that any Regulations for the administration of Grants-in-aid must be general, and that no exceptional Rules can be allowed for any particular class of applicants for aid.

CHURCH MISSIONARY HOUSE;

London, the 27th November 1863.

WE have the honor to lay before you the following Memorandum of several points brought under your notice by a Deputation of the Church Missionary Society in respect of Government Grants-in-aid to Schools in India.

2. The Deputation pointed out the fact that the Grants-in-aid by Her Majesty's Government had hitherto failed to give that stimulus and enlargement to the exertions of voluntary and independent parties which was anticipated by the Education Dispatch of 1854, and by many persons interested in the Education of India.

3. It was suggested that this failure was, in a great measure, attributable to the local Rules adopted by the several Governments of India for Grants-in-aid, which Rules cripple rather than encourage the action of independent parties, and are at variance, as we submit, with the liberal and candid spirit of the Dispatch.

4. For instance, while in some of the Provinces of India very liberal grants are made upon easy conditions, in another the grant is limited to two-thirds of the cost of the School; in another, it is restricted to one-third; and in the Presidency of Bombay no Grants-in-aid are given.

5. In the Presidencies of Bengal and Madras various minute and complicated requirements are attached to Grants-in-aid which deter many Schools from accepting the benefit.

6. Also in these Presidencies no distinction is made between the scale of grants to the higher grades of Schools in large towns, where local resources abound, and to Vernacular and Village Schools, which are wholly dependent upon external aid.

7. In Madras Grants-in-aid are made dependent upon Government certificates after examination of the Masters, and these certificates necessitate a scale of salaries in many cases beyond the means of the School, and far higher than independent parties pay for equally well qualified Masters. Yet, if the Masters are withdrawn from the competition for higher certificates and higher salaries, they naturally feel that an injustice is done them, and they are rendered dissatisfied and unsettled.

8. By these and other particulars, which were mentioned, Aided Schools are rendered unnecessarily expensive, and the free action of independent parties willing to aid in the education of the masses of India is discouraged.

9. The Deputation noticed that at the same time the expenditure of the Government upon its own Schools was so rapidly increasing that, according to the last Returns, while £18,414 was granted in aid of independent Schools, £264,870 was spent upon Government Education, so that, instead of the realization of the hope of the Dispatch of 1854 thus expressed: "we look forward to the time when any general system of Education entirely provided by the Government may be discontinued with the gradual advance of the system of Grants-in-aid," there is a prospect of the whole of the Education in India, with in a small fraction, devolving upon the resources of Government.

10. The Deputation ventured therefore to suggest—

First.—That more liberal grants should be given to independent Schools than had hitherto been given in the chief Presidencies of India.

Second.—That independent Schools should be allowed the option of receiving aid, according to the system of the Revised Code in England, by capitation allowances upon results ascertained by Government examinations.

Third.—That the erection of Training Institutions for Native School Masters and School Mistresses should receive special encouragement and aid with a view to promoting the education of the masses of India.

We have, &c.,

Former Grant-in-aid Rules which are still in force in the North-Western Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, Oude, and Burmah.

THE Local Government, at its discretion, and upon such conditions as may seem fit in each case, (reference being had to the requirements of each District as compared with others, and to the funds at the disposal of Government,) will grant aid in money, books, or otherwise to any School in which a good secular education is given, through the medium either of English or the Vernacular tongue, to males or females, or both, and which is under adequate local management.

2. In respect of any such School for which application for aid is made full information must be supplied on the following points:—

Firstly.—The pecuniary resources, permanent and temporary, on which the School depends for support.

Secondly.—The average annual expenditure on the School.

Thirdly.—The average number of pupils instructed, the ages of the pupils, and the average duration of their attendance at the School.

Fourthly.—The persons responsible for the management and permanence of the School, and the time for which they will continue to be responsible.

Fifthly.—The nature and course of instruction imparted.

Sixthly.—The number, names, and salaries of Masters and Mistresses, and subjects taught by each.

Seventhly.—The books in use in the several classes of the School.

Eighthly.—The nature and amount of aid sought, and the purpose to which it is to be applied.

3. Any School to which aid may be given shall be at all times open to inspection and examination, together with all its current accounts and lists of establishment and scholars, by any Officer appointed by the Local Government for the purpose. Such inspection and examination shall have no reference to religious instruction, but only to secular education.

4. The Government will not in any manner interfere with the actual management of a School thus aided, but will seek, upon the frequent reports of its Inspectors, to judge from results whether a good secular education is practically imparted or not. And it will withdraw its aid from any School which may be, for any considerable period, unfavorably reported upon in this respect.

5. In giving Grants-in-aid the Government will observe the following general principles: Grants-in-aid will be given to those Schools only (with the exception of Normal Schools) at which some fee, however small, is required from the scholars, and, wherever it is possible to do so, they will be appropriated to specific objects according to the peculiar wants of each School and District.

6. No grant will in any case exceed in amount the sum expended on the Institution from private sources, and the Government will always endeavor so to give its aid that the effect shall not be the substitution of public for private expenditure, but the increase and improvement of Education.

7. It is to be distinctly understood that Grants-in-aid will be awarded only on the principle of perfect religious neutrality, and that no preference will be given to any School on the ground that any particular religious doctrines are taught or not taught therein.

The Local Government, at its discretion, and upon such conditions as may seem fit in each case, (reference being had to the requirements of each District as compared with others, and to the funds at the disposal of Government,) will grant aid in money, books, or otherwise to any School under adequate local management in which a good secular education is given through the medium either of English or the Vernacular tongue.

In respect of any such School for which application for aid is made full information must be supplied on the following points.—

Firstly.—The pecuniary resources, permanant and temporary, on which the School will depend for support.

Secondly.—The proposed monthly expenditure in detail.

Thirdly.—The average number of pupils to be instructed.

Such inspection and examination shall have no reference to religious instruction, but only to secular education.

4. The Government will not interfere with the actual management of a School thus aided, but will seek, upon the frequent reports of its Inspectors, to judge from results whether a good secular education is practically imparted or not; and it will withdraw its aid from any School which may be, for any considerable period, unfavorably reported upon in this respect.

5. In giving Grants-in-aid the following principles will be observed:—

(a.) The Government will always endeavor so to give its aid that the effect shall not be the substitution of public for private expenditure, but the increase and improvement of Education.

(b.) Grants will be given to those Schools only (with the exception of Normal Schools and Girls' Schools) at which fees of reasonable amount are required from the scholars.

(c.) In no case will the Government grant exceed in amount the sum to be expended on a School from private sources.

(d.) For Schools educating up to the University Entrance Standard, the Government grant will not, as a rule, exceed one-half of the income guaranteed from local sources.

(e.) For other Schools in which the expenditure is more than Rupees 30 per mensem, the Government grant will not, as a rule, exceed two-thirds of the income guaranteed from local sources.

(f.) The proportional amounts above laid down for Government grants are maximum amounts, and it must not be assumed that the maximum will in all cases, and as a matter of course, be sanctioned.

(g.) The conditions of every grant will be subject to revision periodically at intervals of five years, commencing from the date of sanction.

6. It is to be distinctly understood that Grants-in-aid will be awarded only on the principle of perfect religious neutrality, and that no preference will be given to any School on the ground that any particular religious doctrines are taught or not taught therein.

Madras Rules (Teachers' Certificate system.)

With reference to the Educational Notification published in the Fort St. George Gazette, under date the 15th August 1855, the Director of Public Instruction gives notice that the following revised Rules for regulating Grants-in-aid of private Schools and other Educational Institutions have been approved and sanctioned by Government, and will, in future, be acted on in lieu of those hitherto in force:—

1. Grants-in-aid of Schools and other Educational Institutions will be made with the special object of extending and improving the secular education of the people, and will be given impartially to all Schools (so far as the funds at the diposal of Government may admit) which impart a sound secular education upon the conditions hereafter specified. It will be essential to the consideration of applications for aid that the Schools on behalf of which they are preferred shall be under the management of one or more persons who, in the capacity of proprietors, trustees, or members of a Committee elected by the Society or Association by which the School may have been established, will be prepared to undertake the general superintendence of the School, and to be answerable for its permanence for some given time.

2. Every application for a grant must be accompanied by a declaration that the applicant or applicants are prepared to subject the School on behalf of which the application is made, together with its current accounts, list of establishment, and registers of attendance, to the inspection of a Government Inspector, such inspection and examination relating only to the general management and to the secular instruction, and having no reference to any religious instruction which may be imparted in the School.

3. Except in the case of Normal Schools for training Teachers and of Female Schools grants will be restricted to those Schools in which a monthly schooling fee is required, and is paid by not less than four-fifths of the pupils attending the School.

4. Grants will be made only for specific purposes, and not in the form of simple contributions in aid of the general expenses of a School, and it will be essential in each case to the payment of the grant, that proportion which, under the Rules hereunder specified, the Managers are required to to contribute for the purpose for which the grant may have been sanctioned shall have been duly paid.

5. The following are the specific objects for which, and the conditions upon which, grants will be ordinarily given:—

1*st.*—The augmentation of the salaries of School Masters and Mistresses.

2*nd.*—The provision of stipends for pupil Teachers, and of gratuities to Teachers who undertake to instruct them.

3*rd.*—The provision of School books, maps, &c.

4*th.*—The establishment and maintenance of School libraries and lending libraries.

5*th.*—The erection, purchase, enlargement, or repair of School buildings.

6*th.*—The provision of School furniture.

6. Grants-in-aid of the salaries of Masters and Mistresses will, in future, be conferred only on such Masters and Mistresses as may hold a certificate of qualifications signed by the Director of Public Instruction, and which will be granted, partly on the result of a written examination calculated to test the attainments of the candidate and his ability to re-produce the knowledge he has acquired in such a form as is adapted for the instruction of youth, and partly on the report of an Inspector of Schools on his teaching power. The certificates to be awarded to School Masters will be of nine classes, and the examination for each class of certificate will be conducted by means of printed papers according to the scheme appended to this notice.—Appendix A.

7. The examinations will be held half-yearly, in the months of June and December, at Madras, and at any of the principal towns in the Provinces at which candidates may desire to be examined.

8. The several grades of certificate will render the holders eligible to the following grants:—

A Certificate of the	1st	Class, to an	annual grant of	Rupees	800
Ditto	2nd	„	ditto	„	600
Ditto	3rd	„	ditto	„	400
Ditto	4th	„	ditto	„	300
Ditto	5th	„	ditto	„	220
Ditto	6th	„	ditto	„	160
Ditto	7th	„	ditto	„	120
Ditto	8th	„	ditto	„	80
Ditto	9th	„	ditto	„	40

But the amount of the grant paid in aid of a Teacher's salary shall in* no case exceed one-half the amount contributed for the same purpose by the Managers of the School in which he may be employed. Thus, to entitle a Master who may have obtained a certificate of the 1st class to a grant of the full amount to which he will be eligible under these Rules, viz., Rupees 800 per annum, it will be necessary that the Managers of the School in which he is employed shall pay him a salary of not less than Rupees 1,600 per annum. In the event of the income of the School being insufficient to admit of that portion of the Master's salary, which is paid by the Managers, being double the amount of the grant to which the Master is eligible under the Rules, the grant will be reduced in portion.

9. The certificates to be awarded to School Mistresses will be of five classes, and examination of candidates for these certificates will be conducted in the same manner as the examination of candidates for School Masters' certificates. The several grades of School Mistresses' certificates will render the holders eligible to the following grants:—

Ditto	3rd	„	ditto	„	96

* Note.—Unless that portion of the salary which is contributed by the Managers shall be defrayed from a permanent endowment, in which case the amount of the Government grant shall be equal to the amount so contributed, provided that the grant shall not exceed the rate assigned in this Section to the certificate which may be held by the recipient of the grant by more than one-third. Thus, in ordinary cases, the holder of a certificate of the 1st class will be entitled to a grant of Rupees 800 per annum provided his employers pay him a salary of Rupees 1,600 per annum; but if the salary paid by the Managers be derived from a permanent endowment, the grant may amount to Rupees 1,200 in the event of the sum paid by the Managers being not less than Rupees 1,200.

The standard of examination for each grade of School Mistresses' certificate will be found in Appendix B.

10. In the case of a School Master or Mistress passing in all the subjects prescribed for a certificate, except the vernacular language, a certificate will be granted entitling the holder to a grant less by one-fourth than the amount assignable to the holder of a complete certificate. But this rule will not apply to certificates of the 8th and 9th classes in the case of School Masters, or to certificates of the 4th and 5th classes in the case of School Mistresses, the examination for which will be conducted entirely in the vernacular.

11. Graduates in Arts of the University of Madras will be eligible to the grant assigned to a certificate of the 3rd class on passing the prescribed examination in the theory of teaching and School management, and on being favorably reported on by an Inspector of Schools as to their teaching power.

12. Holders of certificates of the 1st class granted by the Committee of Council on Education in England will be eligible to receive the grants assigned to certificates of the 1st, 2nd, or 3rd class, with reference to the division of the 1st class to which the certificate granted by the Committee of Council may belong, on passing the prescribed examination in a vernacular language, or without passing that examination to grants less by one-fourth than the amount of the grants assigned to the certificates of the 1st, 2nd, or 3rd class, (as the case may be,) issued by the Director of Public Instruction.

13. All Grants-in-aid of the salaries of School Masters and Mistresses will be paid monthly. Their continuance will depend in each case upon the report of the Inspector of the Division that the School or class under the Master or Mistress's charge has been satisfactorily conducted during the past year.

14. Grants for the payment of stipends to male pupil Teachers will be made only to those Schools in which there may be one or more Masters holding the certificate of the Director of Public Instruction, and willing to undertake the instruction of the pupil Teachers out of School hours, and in which there may be pupils competent to past the examination prescribed for admission to a pupil Teachership in the annexed scheme.

15. The amount of the stipends granted to pupil Teachers under these Rules will be proportioned to the grade of School in which they are to be employed. To pupil Teachers employed in Schools in which the standard of instruction is equal to that laid down for Government Zillah Schools the following rates of stipend will be granted:—

For the 1st year,	Rupees	36	per annum,
„ 2nd	„	„	60	„
„ 3rd	„	„	84	„
„ 4th	„	„	108	„

provided that they pass a satisfactory examination in the several subjects specified for each year's course in the annexed scheme of instruction. To pupil Teachers employed in Schools below the grade of a Government Zillah School the following rates of stipend will be granted:—

Appendix C.

For the 1st year,	Rupees	24	per annum,
„ 2nd	„	„	36	„
„ 3rd	„	„	54	„
„ 4th	„	„	72	„

provided that that they pass a satisfactory examination in the several subjects specified for each year's course in the annexed scheme of instruction. The stipends will be paid monthly.

Appendix D.

16. In the case of pupil Teachers employed in Schools of the higher grade, the Master by whom their instruction is to be undertaken must hold a certificate not lower than the 4th class. In the case of pupil Teachers employed in Schools of the lower grade, the Master by whom their instruction is to be undertaken must hold a certificate not lower than the 7th Class.

17. A gratuity will be paid to each Master to whom the instruction of pupil Teachers may have been entrusted on his furnishing the Inspector, on the occasion of his annual visit, with a declaration signed by himself, and countersigned by the Managers of the School, to the effect that the pupil Teachers have regularly received instruction from him on five days a week, during forty-five weeks of the past year, for not less than an hour and a half a day either before or after the usual School hours.

18. Such gratuities will be paid at the following rates:—

In Schools of the higher grade—

For one pupil Teacher,	Rupees	60,
„ two	„	„	100,
„ three	„	„	130,

and an additional Rupees 25 for every pupil Teacher above three who may pass the prescribed examination.

In Schools of the lower grade—

For one pupil Teacher,	Rupees	25,
„ two	„	„	40,
„ three	„	„	50,

and an additional sum of Rupees 10 for each pupil Teacher above three who may pass the prescribed examination.

19. Every pupil Teacher will be required on admission to sign an agreement binding himself to continue in that capacity for five years from the date of his admission to the pupil Teachership, or in default to refund the amount he may have received as stipend.

20. No youth will be admitted as a pupil Teacher if under fourteen, or over seventeen years of age.

21. The number of pupil Teachers in any one School for which grants will be given by Government in conformity with the foregoing Rules will depend on the number of pupils attending the School; one Instructor, either a Master or pupil Teacher, being allowed for every thirty boys on the School Register.

22. The question of assigning grants to female pupil Teachers will be determined when some experience shall have been gained of the system in Boys' Schools.

23. Grants for the provision of School books, maps, &c., will be made on the following terms:—

(a.) A grant, to be designated a Supply Grant, will be made to every School under Government inspection at the rates noted in the margin, provided that a sum equal to the amount of the grant be contributed for the same purpose by the Managers of the School.

In the case of a School in which the Head Master or one of the Assistant Masters may hold a certificate of the 3rd class or higher, at the rate of one Rupee for each pupil on the Register.

In the case of a School in which the Head Master or one of the Assistant Masters may hold a certificate of the 8th class or higher, at the rate of eight annas for each pupil on the Register.

In the case of a School in which the Head Master or one of the Assistant Masters may hold a certificate of the 9th class, at the rate of four annas for each pupil on the Register.

(b.) No further application for a grant of books, maps, &c., will be complied with for a period of three years from the date of the Supply Grant, unless it be shewn that the average number of pupils on the Rolls during the three months immediately preceding such further application has increased by 25 per cent., whereupon a supplementary grant will be made for such additional number of pupils at the rates laid down for the Supply Grant.

(c.) After the lapse of three years from the date of the Supply Grant, a renewal grant will be made at the rates noted in the margin, provided that the amount contributed by the Managers of the School for the same purpose shall be double the amount of the grant.

In the case of a School in which the Head Master or one of the Assistant Masters may hold a certificate of the 3rd class or higher, at the rate of eight annas for each pupil on the Register.

In the case of a School in which the Head Master or one of the Assistant Masters may hold a certificate of the 8th class or higher, at the rate of four annas for each pupil on the Register.

In the case of a School in which the Head Master or one of the Assistant Masters may hold a certificate of the 9th class, at the rate of two annas for each pupil on the Register.

(d.) Grants for the provision of books, maps, &c., will, except in special cases, be made in kind and not by a money payment. Every application, therefore, for such a grant must be accompanied by a list of the books required, and by a remittance of that portion of their cost which, under the Rules above laid down, the Managers are required to contribute. Thereupon the Director of Public Instruction, having previously satisfied himself that the application may be complied with, will furnish the applicants with an order for the books, maps, &c., specified in the application, either upon the Librarian in charge of the Central Depôt at Madras, or on the Curator of the Depôt of the District in which the School is situated, as may be most convenient.

24. Grants-in-aid of School libraries and public libraries will be subject to the condition that an equal sum shall be contributed by the Managers for the purpose for which the grant is sought. In other respects each application will be disposed of on its own merits.

25. Grants will be made towards the erection, enlargement, or repair of School buildings on the following conditions:—

1*st.*—That in each case an equal sum shall be contributed by the Managers of the School for the same purpose.

2*nd.*—That satisfactory evidence shall be adduced of the necessity for the erection, purchase, enlargement, or repair in aid of which the grant is sought.

3*rd.*—That the application shall be accompanied by a Plan and Estimate of the cost of the building proposed to be erected, purchased, enlarged, or repaired; and that previous to the disbursement of the grant it shall be certified by the Inspector of the Division, or other responsible Officer who may have been deputed to examine the building, that the work in aid of which the grant may have been sanctioned has been executed in conformity with the Plan and Estimate previously approved by the Director of Public Instruction.

4*th.*—That in the event of any building towards the erection, purchase, enlargement, or repair of which a grant may have been made by Government being subsequently diverted to any other than Educational purposes, the Government shall have the option of purchasing the building at a valuation to be determined by arbitrators, credit being given for the amount of the grant which may have been made by Government.

5*th.*—That in such cases the arbitrators shall be three in number, of whom two shall be nominated by Government and one by the Managers of the School.

26. Grants for the provision of School furniture will be made on condition that the Managers of the School shall contribute an equal sum for the same purpose, and that in the event of the School being permanently closed within five years, from the date on which the grant may have been made, the Government shall be at liberty to purchase the furniture towards the supply of which the grant was given at a valuation to be determined, as in the case of School buildings, by arbitrators, credit being taken in each case for the amount of the grant.

27. Application for Grants-in-aid of Industrial Schools, and for other purposes not provided for in this Notification, will be disposed of on their own merits, each case being determind, as far as possible, by the analogy of the foregoing Rules.

Bombay Rules (Capitation system.)

AID will henceforward be experimentally given to private Schools (not carried on for the sake of profit) in the Bombay Presidency under the following Rules, which supersede the Rules published in the Government Gazette of the 8th July 1858:—

I.—The Managers of Schools who may be desirous of receiving aid from Government must, on their first application, be registered in the Office of the Director of Public Instruction at least five months before the commencement of the official year then next following.*

II.—With the application for registration must be forwarded a Memorandum containing the particulars set out in Schedule A. appended hereto.

III.—The Educational Inspectors will visit, with the view of examining, all registered Schools within their Divisions, respectively, in the course of the official year, giving at least two months' notice thereof to the Managers.

IV.—Provided that, if the Inspector on his visit should consider arrangements of any School palpably defective as regards the health or morals of the pupils, he may decline to examine, forwarding, however, a full report of his reasons for so declining to the Director of Public Instruction and the School Managers.

* The object of this Rule is to ensure that provision may be made in the Budget for the necessary funds.

V.—The Inspector, if he be satisfied with the general School arrangements, will examine all the children submitted to him according to the standard for which they may be respectively presented by the Managers, (see Schedule B.,) and certify, under his signature, the number of children passed by him under each standard.

VI.—Provided that the Inspector shall satisfy himself that each child presented to him has attended at least 150 days during the preceding twelve months, and is not above the standard of age as regulated by Schedule B.

VII.—It is to be understood that a child can only be examined for a certificate once in the official year.

VIII.—The Managers may then forward to the Director of Public Instruction a receipted bill, vouched by the Inspector's certificates, for the amount of head money to which they may be entitled under the Schedule C. hereto appended.

IX.—Schools which at present receive aid from the State cannot, unless they elect to renounce such aid, present children for examination under these Rules. But this proviso is not in any way meant to affect the allowances made by the State to soldiers' orphans.

X.—In addition to the grants to be made under the above Rules to private Schools, (not maintained for profit,) all Schools in the Bombay Presidency, except those wholly or partially maintained by the State, will be entitled to the sum of Rupees (50) fifty for each student whom they may respectively matriculate at the Bombay University, provided that such student shall have been bonâ fide under instruction in such School for at least twelve months preceding his matriculation.

Extract from a Dispatch from the Court of Directors of the East India Company, to the Governor General of India in Council, No. 49, dated July 19*th* 1854.

Para. 51.—The consideration of the impossibility of Government alone doing all that must be done in order to provide adequate means for the education of the Natives of India, and of the ready assistance which may be derived from efforts which have hitherto received but little encouragement from the State, has led us to the natural conclusion that the most effectual method of providing for the wants of India in this respect will be to combine with the agency of the Government the aid which may be derived from the exertions and liberality of the educated and wealthy Natives of India and of other benevolent persons.

52. We have, therefore, resolved to adopt in India the system of Grants-in-aid, which has been carried out in this country with very great success; and we confidently anticipate, by thus drawing support from local resources, in addition to contributions from the State, a far more rapid progress of Education than would follow a mere increase of expenditure by the Government; while it possesses the additional advantage of fostering a spirit of reliance upon local exertions and combination for local purposes, which is of itself of no mean importance to the well-being of a Nation.

53. The system of Grants-in-aid which we propose to establish in India will be based on an entire abstinence from interference with the religious instruction conveyed in the Schools assisted. Aid will be given (so far as the requirements of each particular District, as compared with others, and the funds at the disposal of Government may render it possible) to all Schools which impart a good secular education, provided that they are under adequate local management; (by the term "local management" we understand one or more persons, such as private patrons, voluntary subscribers, or the trustees of endowments, who will undertake the general superintendence of the School, and be answerable for its permanence for some given time;) and provided also that their Managers consent that the Schools shall be subject to Government inspection, and agree to any conditions which may be laid down for the regulation of such grants.

54. It has been found, by experience in this and in other countries, that not only is an entirely gratuitous Education valued far less by those who receive it than one for which some payment, however small, is made, but that the payment induces a more regular attendance and greater exertion on the part of the pupils; and for this reason, as well as because School fees themselves, insignificant as they may be in each individual instance, will in the aggregate, when applied to the support of a better class of Masters, become of very considerable importance, we desire that Grants-in-aid shall, as a general principle, be made to such Schools only (with the exception of Normal Schools) as require some fee, however small, from their scholars.

55. Careful considerations will be required in framing rules for the administration of the grants, and the same course should be adopted in India which has been pursued with obvious advantage by the Committee of Council here, namely, to appropriate the grants to specific objects, and not (except, perhaps, in the case of Normal Schools) to apply them in the form of simple contributions in aid of the general expenses of a School. The augmentation of the salaries of the head Teachers, and the supply of junior Teachers, will probably be found in India, as with us, to be the most important objects to which the grants can ordinarily be appropriated. The foundation, or assistance in the foundation, of scholarships for candidates from lower Schools, will also be a proper object for the application of Grants-in-aid. In some cases again assistance towards erecting, or repairing a School, or the provision of an adequate supply of School books, may be required; but the appropriation of the grant in each particular instance should be regulated by the peculiar circumstances of each School and District.

56. The amount and continuance of the assistance given will depend upon the periodical reports of Inspectors, who will be selected with especial reference to their possessing the confidence of the Native communities. In their periodical inspections no notice whatsoever should be taken by them of the religious doctrines which may be taught in any School; and their duty should be strictly confined to ascertaining whether the secular knowledge conveyed is such as to entitle it to consideration in the distribution of the sum which will be applied to Grants-in-aid. They should also assist in the establishment of Schools by their advice wherever they may have opportunities of doing so.

57. We confide the practical adaptation of the general principles we have laid down as to Grants-in-aid to your discretion, aided by the Educational Departments of the different Presidencies. In carrying into effect our views, which apply alike to all Schools and Institutions, whether Male or Female, Anglo-Vernacular or Vernacular, it is of the greatest importance that the conditions under which Schools will be assisted should be clearly and publicly placed before the Natives of India. For this purpose Government Notification should be drawn up and promulgated in the different vernacular languages. It may be advisable distinctly to assert in them the principle of perfect religious neutrality on which the grants will be awarded; and care should be taken to avoid holding out expectations which, from any cause, may be liable to disappointment.

58. There will be little difficulty in the application of this system of Grants-in-aid to the higher order of places of instruction in India in which English is at present the medium of education.

59. Grants in-aid will also at once give assistance to all such Anglo-Vernacular and Vernacular Schools as impart a good elementary education; but we fear that the number of this class of Schools is at present inconsiderable, and that such as are in existence require great improvement.

60. A more minute and constant local supervision than would accompany the general system of Grants-in-aid will be necessary in order to raise the character of the "indigenous Schools," which are at present not only very inefficient in quality, but of exceedingly precarious duration, as is amply shewn by the statistics collected by Mr. Adam in Bengal and Behar, and from the very important information we have received of late years from the North-Western Provinces. In organizing such a system we cannot do better than to refer you to the manner in which the operations of Mr. Reid have been conducted in the North-Western Provinces, and to the instructions given by him to the Zillah and Pergunnah visitors, and contained in the Appendix to his first Report.

61. We desire to see local management under Government inspection and assisted by Grants-in-aid taken advantage of wherever it is posible to do so, and that no Goverment Colleges or Schools shall be founded for the future in any District where a sufficient number of Institutions exist, capable, with assistance from the State, of supplying the local demand for Education. But in order fully to carry out the views we have expressed with regard to the adequate provision of Schools throughout the country, it will probably be necessary for some years to supply the wants of particular parts of India by the establishment, temporary support, and management of places of Education of every class in Districts where there is a little or no prospect of adequate local efforts being made for this purpose, but where, nevertheless, they are urgently required.

62. We look forward to the time when any general system of Education, entirely provided by Government, may be discontinued with the gradual advance of the system of Grants-in-aid, and when many of the existing Government Institutions, especially those of the higher order, may be safely closed or transferred to the management of local bodies under the control of, and aided by, the State. But it is far from our wish to check the spread of Education in the slighest degree by the abandonment of a single School to probable decay; and we therefore entirely confinde in your discretion and in that of the different Local Authorities, while keeping this object steadily in view, to act with caution, and to be guided by special reference to the particular circumstances which affect the demand for Education in different parts of India.

From E. C. BAYLEY, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the HON'BLE A. EDEN, Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 1725, dated Simla, the 29th July 1864.)

I AM directed to transmit the accompanying copy of the Grant-in-aid Rules at present in force in the North Western Provinces,* and to request they may be substituted for the Rules for those Provinces which were given in the Appendix to the Resolution, in the Home Department, of the 23rd May last, regarding a proposed revision of the system of administering Grants-in-aid.

* Forwarded with letter from the Government, North-Western Provinces, No. 2097A., dated 15th July 1864.

Grant-in-aid Rules in force in the North-Western Provinces.

I.—EVERY School in which sound secular instruction is imparted, whether in English or the Vernacular, is eligible to receive a grant on the fulfilment of certain conditions (which are hereafter specified) and so far as local requirements and funds will allow, it being provided that the grant shall in no case exceed the sum expended on the School from private sources.

II.—Managers of Schools desirous of assistance from Government shall send up a written application to Government through the Director of Public Instruction.

III.—Applicants shall satisfy the Government that the following Conditions are fulfilled:—

First.—That the School is under adequate local management.

Second.—That Schooling fees are paid by at least two-thirds of the pupils, those exempted from payment being bonâ fide indigent (excepting in cases of Normal and Female Schools, in which no tuition fee need be exacted.)

Third.—That sufficient School accommodation is provided, excepting in the case of an application for a building grant.

Fourth.—That the expenditure assigned for the maintenance of the School from funds contributed by private persons or Associations is not below the average amount expended for that purpose during the three past years.

Fifth.—That the maintenance of the School is assured by a statement, on the part of those charged with its management, that it is their full and sincere belief and expectation that the School shall be so kept up for a further period of, at least, three years.

Sixth.—That the amount of the grant for which the application is made does not exceed the expenditure of the School defrayed by contribution from private persons and bodies.

Seventh.—That the grant shall be devoted to one or more special objects, and that, in the event of its being devoted to more than one object, the amount of aid solicited towards the furtherance of each be distinctly mentioned.

Eighth.—That the School shall be open to inspection and examination on the part of the Educational Officers of Government, such inspection and examination having reference only to secular institution.

IV.—the special objects for the fulfilment of which Government will, as far as local requirements and disposable funds may allow, lend there ready aid, are the following:—

(a.) Augmentation of the salary of a Teacher or Teachers.

(b.) Payment of the salary or salaries of an additional Teacher or Teachers.

(c.) Foundation of Scholarships and Pupil Teachership.

(d.) Donation of School books, maps, and apparatus.

(e.) Supply, at half price, of School books issued under the authority of Government.

(f.) Erection, or enlargement, or repair of School Houses.

V.—The application must be accompanied by a Tabular Statement embodying full and distinct information on the following points:—

a. (Column 1.)—The pecuniary resources, permanent and temporary, on which the School depends for support.

b. (Column 2)—The average annual expenditure in the School from the last three years.

c, d, e. (Columns 3, 4, 5.)—The average number, age, and attendance at School of the boys therein instructed.

f. (Column 6.)—The persons responsible for the management and permanence of the School.

g. (Column 7.)—The time for which the above will continue to be responsible.

h (Column 8.)—The nature and course of instruction imparted.

i. (Column 9.)—The number, names, and salaries of the Masters and Mistresses, and subjects taught by each.

k. (Column 10.)—The books in use in the several classes of the School, and number of boys in the same.

l. (Column 11.)—The nature and amount of aid sought, and the purpose (see paragraph IV.) to which it is to be applied.

VI.—Where an application is made for a building grant (whether for the erection, or enlargement, or repair of a School House) the Managers of the School shall satisfy Government that the School House will be erected, or is situated, in a healthy and favorable locality. A Plan of the Building, and Estimate of the cost, must be submitted.

VII.—The management of the School shall be vested solely in the private persons or bodies by whom it is supported. The Teachers, whose salaries are paid in part or wholly by Government, shall be entirely subordinate to the Managers or Conductors of the School, and shall in no way be regarded as Government Servants.

VIII.—The Government will not, in any manner, interfere with the actual management of the School, but will seek, upon the frequent reports of its Inspectors, to judge from results whether a good secular education is practically imparted or not, and it will withdraw its aid from any School which may be, for any considerable period, unfavorably reported upon in this respect.

IX.—The Government will always endeavor so to give its aid that the effect shall not be the substitution of public for private expenditure, but the increase and improvement of Education.

X.—It is to be distinctly understood that Grants-in-aid will be awarded only in the principle of perfect religious neutrality, and that no preference will be given to any School on the ground that any particular religious doctrines are taught or not taught therein.

From W. S. Atkinson, Esq., Director of Public Instruction, to the Hon'ble A. Eden, Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 2771, dated Darjeeling, the 31st August 1864.)

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your endorsement No. 1114T., dated 28th June, forwarding for report a Resolution of the Government of India, in the Home Department, with papers annexed, on the subject of the administration of Grants-in-aid in India.

2. The Dispatch of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, on which the Resolution of the India Government is founded, had its origin in suggestions offered by the governing body of the London Church Missionary Society, as embodied in a letter addressed to Sir Charles Wood, under date 27th November 1863, which is appended to his Dispatch. In this letter the Society complains that the Grant-in-aid system in this country has failed, and that the failure is mainly attributable to the Rules under which it has been worked. In Bengal, it is said, "various minute and complicated requirements are attached to Grants-in-aid, which deter many Schools from accepting the benefit;" and it is further remarked as objectionable that "no distinction is made between the scale of grants to the higher grades of Schools in large towns, where local resources abound, and to Vernacular and Village Schools, which are wholly dependent on external aid."

3. Now, with regard to this last objection, I have only to reply that the state of things complained of does not now, and never did, exist. It is true that the old Rules made no express provision for graduating grants with reference to the status of the Schools applying; but it is no less a fact that the amounts sanctioned have always been determined with reference to such considerations under the general provisions set forth in paragraph 1, which declared that "the Local Government, at its discretion, and upon such conditions as may seem fit in each case (reference being had to the requirements of each District as compared with others and to the funds at the disposal of Government) will grant aid." Paragraph 6 declared that no grant would, "in any case, exceed in amount the sum expended on the Institution from private sources," thereby fixing the maximum amount which Government was prepared to sanction with reference to local expenditure, but leaving the actual amount to be determined, as it always has been in practice, with reference to the circumstances of each particular case. In Calcutta, indeed, it was long ago ruled that no grants should be given at all to English Schools of the higher class, inasmuch as it was known that such Schools were there not only self-supporting, but yielded considerable profits. It will be seen, therefore, that the Society is mistaken on this point as regards the operation of the old Rules, whilst in the new Rules the principle of graduation which they advocate has been specifically adopted.

4. It is more difficult to dispose of the allegation regarding the obstruction said to be caused by "minute and complicated requirements" attached to grants. No instances are given, and it is impossible to say what is really complained of. If the requirements objected to are to be looked for in the Rules, I should suppose that they must be those relating to fees and to inspection by Government Officers.

5. As regards fees, the rates charged in Missionary Schools are generally very considerably lower than those levied in other Schools of the same class, whether under the control of Government or of Native Managers, and when they apply for aid there is always a struggle to keep the fees at the lowest point possible, besides which a demand is frequently made to be allowed to retain a free list. The reason is, that hardly any Native will send his children to a Missionary School if he can afford to send them to a good secular School of the same class. The Missionaries, therefore, feel that they can only compete with other Managers by offering their wares at cheaper rates. The plea is always allowed to a certain extent; but it is so important to train the people to feel the value of Education and to make sacrifices for the attainment of it, that even if it were just to make large allowances to Missionaries which are refused to Native Managers, I should not think it expedient to concede what is often asked in this respect, for, in the case of Mission Schools, fee payments are all that is required from the people who profit by them. There are no subscriptions, and the people are allowed to take no part in the management, so that the valuable lessons of self-reliance and self-government which the system teaches in its application to Schools of Native origin are here almost entirely wanting. A free list is often asked for by Native Managers as well as Missionaries, but it is always refused as liable to grave abuse Applicants are told that they are at liberty to pay the fees of any or all of the students from such private funds as they can dispose of for the purpose, but that such payments must not be made from the funds of the School. There is probably hardly a School in which there are not pupils who are paid for by the charity of their neighbours; and in some cases, where the Projector of the School is a man of wealth, the fees of every student are defrayed out of his private purse. No objection is made to such arrangements, but I am satisfied that the principle we have adopted is the right one, viz., to fix the rates of fees at reasonable amounts with reference to the standard of instruction, the locality, and the amount of the Government grant, and to insist that the fee of the class shall be paid by or for every pupil whose name is on the Register. Without the latter provision it would probably soon be found that the free list would, in many cases, be filled with the children or relatives of the School Managers.

6. With regard to inspection there is still much diversity of opinion among different bodies of Missionaries. Some entertain strong objections to any kind of supervision and are particularly averse to the Rule which subjects the books and accounts of Aided Schools to the inspection of a Government Officer. It has been urged that this Rule is derogatory to the dignity of a Missionary and puts dishonor on "a Minister of the Gospel" because it implies a doubt of his honesty. It is hardly necessary to combat this objection, but I shall simply state that experience has shewn that this sort of supervision is quite as necessary in the case of Mission Schools as it is in the case of Schools under Native Managers. The Church Missionary Society has never urged this objection, and none of its Agents object to inspection by Christian Officers, but some of the Missionaries employed by it, in common with many connected with other bodies, object to their Schools being visited by the Native Deputy Inspectors. This feeling is not, however, universal. One well known Missionary of the Church Missionary Society near Calcutta has always courted the visits of the Native Deputy Inspector in whose District his Schools are situated; and some time ago, on the occasion of my visiting Cherra Poonjee, the Head of the Welsh Presbyterian Mission made a particular request to me that I would appoint a Native Officer of this class for the District, as the best assistance he could have in supervising the Schools under his management. I may add that very recently when Dr. Duff applied for and obtained Grants-in-aid for a system of Schools established by him near Calcutta, he admitted to me the necessity of subjecting these Schools, in common with others of the same class in the neighbourhood, to the inspection of the Native Officer of the District. When the Grant-in-aid system was first brought into operation many Mission Schools were exempted from this sort of supervision in deference to the urgent remonstrances of the applicants; but the result, as far as those Schools themselves are concerned, has not been satisfactory, while the privilege conceded to them, if privilege it can be called, has naturally excited the jealousy of the Natives and given cause for a charge of partiality in favor of alien bodies, which is mischievous in proportion as it is well founded.

8. Amongst objections of a different character that have been urged against the existing Rules, it may be well to advert to that which relates to the provision against the substitution of public for private expenditure. It is difficult at first sight to see the ground of this objection, for the provision is obviously sound in principle and in strict accordance with the axiom on which the Grant-in-aid system is founded, viz., that people should be assisted in proportion as they are willing to assist themselves. The religious bodies are, however, consistently bent on obtaining the greatest possible control over the education of the people, and hence, as their funds are limited, they are naturally anxious, after their own resources are exhausted, to get into their hands the money of the State to be expended in accordance with their own particular views. Now I certainly see no reason why this should be allowed. The great object of the Grant-in-aid system was to stimulate Native effort, and to call forth the private resources of communities in aid of such funds as the State can properly spare for the education of the people. In these respects it must certainly be admitted that it is now succeeding admirably in the Provinces under His Honor's Government. It raises annually for the purposes of Education very large and steadily increasing sums by means of voluntary assessment, and it is teaching the people most valuable lessons in self-help and self-government. In the case of Missionary Schools these advantages are altogether wanting. The people contribute nothing in the form of subscriptions, and the fees they are called upon to pay are almost always, as I have already stated, much lower than in other Schools of the same class, whether under Native Managers or under the direct control of Government. Moreover, the people are allowed no voice whatever in the management of the Schools, these being controlled directly by the nearest resident Missionary, under the general orders of some Central Committee in Calcutta or elsewhere. Apart, therefore, from the value of the religious instruction conveyed in them, with which the Government has no concern, the only advantage possessed by Missionary Schools over those under Native management arises from the European supervision which those of them enjoy which are maintained in the same Station with a resident Missionary. Those at a distance from him are in no better, but rather in a worse position than the Native Schools which have a School Committee resident on the spot. I do not underrate the value of the superior attainments and moral influence which the Missionary brings to bear on the Schools under his immediate eye—but against this is to be set the loss of the incentives to exertion and of the training to the performance of public duties, which are conspicuous advantages in the case of Schools established and maintained by the people themselves. I hold, therefore, that there would be no gain, but the contrary, in any change of system which had for its object to enable Missionary bodies to set up new Schools at no expense to themselves or to the people who are to benefit by them. If Schools are to be maintained at the public cost, there is no reason why they should be confided to the management of Missionary Committees. They can be established more cheaply, and would be maintained more effectively by the direct agency of this Department.

9. To a certain extent, however, the object which the religious bodies have in view is favored by the alteration in the Rules which allows fees to count as income in respect of which Grants-in-aid are sanctioned. In many cases they will be able, if they choose, to establish Schools and retain them under their own management by means of the funds derived from the Government grant and the Schooling fees alone without the necessity of drawing a Rupee from their private purse. I apprehend, therefore, that less will in future be said in condemnation of the clause which declares that private expenditure shall not be relieved at the expense of the State.

10. I am not aware of any other Missionary objection to the Bengal Rules which calls for remark; but it is necessary to draw attention to the extraordinary statement put forth in the 9th paragraph of the Society's letter, which quotes figures in proof of the assertion that the anticipations of the Dispatch of 1854 have been defeated, and that, instead of the Grant-in-aid principle being allowed to assume a prominent place in the Educational system, there is on the contrary "a prospect of the whole of the education of India, within a small fraction, devolving upon the resources of Government."

In support of this assertion it is stated that, "according to the last Returns, while £18,414 was granted in aid of independent Schools, £264,870 was spent upon Government Education" throughout the whole of India.

It is not stated what are "the last Returns" referred to; but as I find in a Missionary pamphlet on the subject the same figures given for the amount of aid to independent Schools in the year 1861-62, it may be assumed that the writers of the letter supposed they were quoting from the statistics of that year. I shall shew that the Returns of this Department throw extreme doubt on the accuracy of their quotation, and that, so far at least as regards the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the inference deduced from it is in no common degree erroneous.

11. I have carefully gone through the Returns of the actual amounts disbursed by Government, during each of the four years ending 30th April 1863, on account of its own Institutions for general Education, and on account of private Institutions for the same purposes to which it is a contributor. The result is exhibited in the following table:—

Statement shewing the Amounts disbursed by the State on account of Government and Private Institutions for general Education.

Years.	Government Institutions.			Private Institutions.
		£	£		£
1859-60	Colleges ... 11,684 Schools ... 24,030		35,714	Schools ...	9,775
1860-61	Colleges ... 11,951 Schools ... 24,354		36,305	Ditto ...	9,821
1862-63	Colleges ... 11,914 Schools ... 25,410		37,324	Ditto ...	16,598

To prevent misapprehension, I may explain that the expenditure on direction and inspection is here excluded, as is also the large grant for English and Vernacular Scholarships, since in these Provinces every Scholarship is open alike and on the same terms to the pupils of Government and private Institutions without exception. The Professional Colleges and Schools for Law, Medicine, and Civil Engineering are also excluded, as they are obviously not terms in the comparison.

12. Now this table shews that, during the year referred to by the Society, the allowances to private Institutions in Bengal alone amounted to £12,284 against £36,376 devoted to Government Institutions. In other words, more than one-fourth of the entire expenditure upon direct instruction of a general character was employed in support of private Institutions, whereas the figures quoted by the Society are meant to imply that less than one-fourteenth part of the Government expenditure was so distributed.

But the table further shews how rapidly the proportion is now altering in favor of independent Institutions. In 1860-61 the percentage was 27·0; in 1861-62 it was 33·7; and in 1862-63 it had risen to 44·4.

13. The Accountant-General's Department has not yet furnished me with the Statement of the Receipts and Disbursements of 1863-64, but it is quite certain that the percentage for that year has been at least equally progressive. On the 30th April last the sanctioned annual allowances to private Institutions (exclusive of the considerable sum spent in improving indigenous Schools) amounted to £22,958, as shewn in the annexed Statement against £15,668 on the same date of the preceding year :—

Statement shewnig the distribution of Government Allowances to Private Institutions as sanctioned on 30th April 1864.

15. Nor can it be said that this disparity is compensated by the superior attainments of the scholars in Mission Schools. They are not only not superior but are actually vastly inferior, as I shall shew by a comparison of the results obtained at the two great Annual Examinations at which all Schools compete on equal terms, viz., the University Entrance Examination, in respect of which Government Junior Scholarships (English) are awarded, and the Vernacular Scholarship Examination conducted by the Divisional Inspectors of Schools. The Returns shew that at the last award the Aided Mission Schools gained three English Scholarships, but not one Vernacular Scholarship†; while the other Aided Schools gained seventeen English Scholarships and 102 Vernacular Scholarships. From this it results that the average proficiency of the best scholars in Aided Mission Schools reaches no higher than 1·5 per cent. of the proficiency in Aided Schools of the other class; this enormous disparity being due to the fact that the standard of secular instruction is fixed, as a rule, at a much lower point in Schools conducted by Missionaries than in Schools conducted by Native gentlemen.

16. I confidently trust that I have now succeeded in shewing to the satisfaction of Government that, as far as regards the Lower Provinces of Bengal, the alleged failure of the Grant-in-aid system is not a fact, but that the system is, on the contrary, making rapid progress, and that too in the direction where progress is most important, viz., among the Native subjects of Her Majesty, for whose especial benefit the scheme was originally framed.

17. It would be out of place on the present occasion to discuss at any length the causes which have led to this success; but I cannot refrain from pointing out that we have here the direct and natural result of the policy which has governed the administration of Education in these Provinces for the last quarter of a century, in accordance with which a large number of first class Institutions (Colleges and Schools) have been established throughout the country by Government, in which a sound and liberal education has been provided for the upper and middle classes of the people. These classes have largely availed themselves of the boon thus offered, and the fruits are now appearing in the desire and determination which they are manifesting to aid in imparting to others the advantages which they have reaped themselves, and of which actual experience has taught them the inestimable value. We invariably find that it is under the shadow of our great Schools and Colleges, and owing to their direct influence, that private Schools spring up in the greatest numbers and meet with most success; and I regard it as beyond all question that the increase of these latter, and the future condition of such of them as are already in existence, will continue to depend on the maintenance and improved efficiency of the superior Government Institutions, which are the models after which all other Institutions established with the same object are invariably fashioned. If this policy is persisted in, so marked has now become the desire of the people to avail themselves of the advantages which the present Aid Rules afford that I am satisfied the increase of Schools under the provisions therein contained is much more likely to be checked by the inability of Government to supply the funds required than by any failure in the popular demand.

18. I now proceed to remark on the suggestions put forward in the 10th paragraph of the Society's letter. The first of these suggestions proposes generally that more liberal grants should be given to private Schools than have hitherto been sanctioned. After what has been advanced above, it is not necessary to say more on this point than that increased liberality on the part of Government is quite unnecessary as far as Bengal is concerned. Already, in not a few cases, private Schools receiving aid under the operation of the Rules till recently in force are actually more costly to Government, scholar for scholar, than its own corresponding Institutions of the same class, (which are also more efficient,) although the latter are commonly spoken of as supported entirely by Government, while the former are only said to be aided. Her Majesty's Secretary of State remarks that it was anticipated that under the Grant-in-aid system "Education might be more widely spread with a comparatively less expenditure of public money." This, I apprehend, must still be regarded as the economical end to be kept in view in framing measures for the administration of the system, and if it be so, there can be no question but that the scale by which grants are fixed under the existing Rules is to the full as liberal as the Government can properly concede, or as the circumstances of the country require.

19. The second suggestion recommends that "Schools should be allowed the option of receiving aid according to the Revised Code in England by capitation allowances upon results ascertained by Government Examinations." On this point the Secretary of State remarks that he is not satisfied that this system is as applicable in India as it is in England, and I have no hesitation in asserting that it is not applicable in Bengal.

20. In the first place it would involve of necessity a vastly increased expenditure on account of inspection. Valuable and indispensible as are the Native Deputy Inspectors, it certainly would not be advisable to entrust them with the assessment of the amount of aid to be assigned to the various Schools within their Districts. It is not that I should fear in most cases intentional partiality. As a rule, I believe, they would honestly endeavor to be fair in their decision, but I have not altogether the same dependence on the correctness of their judgment, and it is quite certain that they would not in such a matter enjoy the implicit confidence of their own countrymen, and still less of the Missionary bodies with whom they must be brought in contact; yet, under the proposed system, it would be absolutely necessary either to entrust them with a power which they could not exercise to the satisfaction of the public, or else to supersede them in a measure and multiply three or four-fold the highly paid European Inspectors—of whom at present we have no more than five—for a country larger than France, with a population of 40,000,000.

21. I believe that even under the present system some increase to their number may shortly become necessary, but I would confine this increase within the narrowest limits, and would frame our measures in such a way that they may be worked to the greatest extent possible by Native agency. This is unquestionably in my opinion our true policy, for it is only under this condition that Education can ever spread widely, or take root deeply without an extravagant expenditure of the public resources of the State.

22. To shew how impossible it would be for the Divisional Inspectors, under present arrangements, to take upon themselves the duty of assigning grants by capitation allowances, depending on the attainments of the scholars or even on the general condition of the Schools, it will be enough to state that the two senior Inspectors have, at the present time, under their charge 468 and 559 Schools respectively, and that the average area of each Inspector's jurisdiction is about 36,000 square miles, a territory considerably larger than the whole of Ireland.* For England and Wales, on the other hand, there are no less than sixty School Inspectors, with small and compact Districts under their charge, and the Returns for last year shew that on the average each Inspector visited no more than 191 Schools, or Departments of Schools, which are probably equivalent to less than 150 separate Institutions.

23. But again, supposing that this difficulty were overcome and the number of Inspectors were augmented to any extent that might be necessary, it must be remembered that, even when the Inspectors are highly educated English gentlemen, much dissatisfaction will still inevitably arise from the new relations that would subsist between these Officers and the School Managers. The grants would depend solely and absolutely on the reports of the Inspector after each of his periodical visits, when he must be brought into direct personal contact with the Missionaries or Native Committees and the Masters. There would be probably hardly a School that would not feel itself more or less aggrieved by his award, and instead of being regarded as a friend and received, as now, with a ready welcome, he would come to be looked upon as a disagreeable inquisitor and a hard and disparaging task master. The duty would in fact be a most invidious one, and no Inspector would willingly undertake it.

24. There are, however, other reasons which make the principle of the Revised English Code unsuitable for Bengal. In England the Schools aided by the State are all designed for the lower classes, and in none of them does the standard of instruction differ materially either in the same District or in distant parts of the country. A simple scale of allowances can, therefore, be framed and worked without material difficulty. In Bengal, on the contrary, the Institutions receiving aid are of every possible class, ranging from Colleges affiliated to the University, which educate students up to the standard of the M. A. Degree, down to primary Village Schools, in which the simple elements of reading, writing, and arithmetic are taught by Gooroos whose remuneration is not more than 15 shillings a month. Between these two extremes there are Schools of every conceivable grade, so that a system of paying for results would require the arrangement of a most complicated scale of allowances even in the same District, while this scale must again vary indefinitely for Schools of the same class in different parts of the country, since rates that would be suitable for the most forward Districts would be utterly unsuited to other Districts in different stages of advancement.

25. The uncertainty which such a system must occasion as to the available income of a School, and the consequent insecurity of the Masters' salaries, is another argument against this change to which considerable weight must be attached. Even under the present system, where the income of an Aided School is comparatively fixed and certain, appointments in Government Schools are eagerly sought by Masters who would require salaries from 25 to 50 per cent. higher in Aided Schools; and it appears certain that appointments in these Schools would be still further depreciated by a change which would make the salaries depend in great measure on the daily attendance of the scholars, over which the Masters have in reality but little control. In Mission Schools indeed this uncertainty would tell with vastly greater force than in Schools of any other class, inasmuch as they are subject to far greater fluctuations in the number of their scholars. In their case, if a conversion takes place, the School is at once emptied, and perhaps remains closed for months, and an imaginary offence against caste will often produce a secession hardly less disastrous. On this ground alone, therefore, it seems surprising that a capitation system should be looked on with favor by the governing body of the Church Missionary Society.

26. It must not, moreover, be lost sight of in considering the probable results of the change proposed that under a capitation system the temptation to falsify the Registers, which even now exists to some extent, must be enormously intensified, and would become, it may be feared, in many cases irresistible.

27. The Church Missionary Society proposes that the adoption of the system of the Revised Code should be left to the option of the School Managers. Now, I need hardly point out that, if a choice is thus allowed, every single School will adopt the new system if the scale of allowances is so arranged that they would find themselves pecuniary gainers by the change. The rates must, therefore, be fixed in such a way that the average payments by the State are not enhanced supposing every School to claim its grant on the capitation system, since, as I have already stated, it is neither necessary nor desirable that the public contributions should be on a more liberal scale than they are at present. To adjust the balance between the proposed arrangement and that at present in force would be a task of considerable difficulty, and after all, I believe, it would be found in practice that a double standard could not be maintained.

28. It is certain, however, that after an equitable adjustment of the scales, the immediate effect of the adoption of the new system by the Missionary Schools would be to diminish very largely the amount of the grants now allotted to them. The satistics already given furnish the following comparative Statement of work done and money received by Schools under Native Managers and Schools under Missionary bodies :—

Aided Schools.	Relative Work done.		Relative Cost to Government.
	Scholars taught.	Proficiency.
Under Native Managers...	100	100	100
Under Missionary bodies...	16·5	1·5	23·8

From this it appears that the aggregate of the grants to Schools of all classes remaining the same, the Missionary bodies would, under a capitation system, depending solely on attendance, receive no more than 16*s.* 6*d.*, where they now receive 23*s.* 9½*d.*, and that, as far as the evidence of the present competitive Examinations afford a test, they would receive no more than 1*s.* 6*d.* instead of 23*s.* 9½*d.* if the grants were made to depend solely on the proficiency of the scholars. It may safely be assumed, therefore, that if an option were given and the rates are properly adjusted, the Missionary bodies at least would certainly not elect to receive grants assessed according to the outturn of their Schools.

29. Where the conditions are the same, the principle of graduating payments according to results is no doubt, within certain limits, a sound one; but for the reasons above stated, and for others of less importance which need not here be specified, I am convinced that the introduction into these Provinces of the principle of the Revised Code of the Privy Council, or of any modification of it, would not only be no improvement on the arrangements now in force, but would lead to exceedingly inconvenient consequences, and prove a decided check on the development of the Grant-in-aid system, which, as has already been shewn, is here making most satisfactory progress.

30. The remaining suggestion of the Society relates to the encouragement to be afforded to the establishment of Normal Training Schools. Under the present rules such Institutions can obtain grants equal in amount to the income guaranteed from private sources, and fee payments are not required from the students. These terms I consider sufficiently liberal. On the application of the Church Missionary Society a grant has been very recently sanctioned on these conditions for a Training School at Kishnaghur, and there will be no objection to assigning grants on like terms to a moderate number of similar Institutions.

Such Schools are, however, specially designed for Native Christians, and but few of them can therefore be required for Lower Bengal.

Fourteen Government Training Schools are now sanctioned for the Districts comprised within His Honor's jurisdiction. These are of course purely secular Institutions and are open to all classes without restriction. They must, therefore, be much more generally useful than Institutions conducted by religious bodies and therefore mainly confined to a particular creed. Their number will soon, I trust, be considerably augmented, so that full provision may be made for promoting improved Education among the masses of the people.

From the Hon'ble A. Eden, Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 6182, dated the 31st December 1864.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the orders of the Government of India, No. 582, dated 23rd May last, and in reply to forward copy of a letter, No. 2771, dated the 31st August last, from the Director of Public Instruction, on the working of the Grant-in-aid system in Bengal, with the following observations of the Lieutenant-Governor, for the consideration of His Excellency the Governor General in Council.

2. The deputation of the Church Missionary Society appear to urge the following objections to the system of Grants-in-aid as administered in this country :—

1*st.*—That it has failed to give a "stimulus to the exertions of voluntary and independent parties."

2*nd.*—That the action of independent parties is crippled rather than encouraged by the Rules under which the grants are administered by the Local Governments, and that the promoters of Schools are deterred from accepting the benefit of the grants by the various, minute, and complicated requirements of Government.

3*rd.*—That in consequence of these hinderances to the development of the system, "there is a prospect of the whole of the Education of India, within a small fraction, devolving upon the resources of Government," and it is insinuated leave of absence, on Medical Certificate, from the 6th to the 26th Instant, (in extension of the leave granted in General Order dated 30th Ultimo No. 6269) to remain at Mooltan, preparatory to applying for furlough to Europe.

(c) A, by his Will, leaves to B "the estate which he purchased of C." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

63. Where the words used in the Will to designate or describe a legatee, or a class of legatees, sufficiently shew what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect. A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son, whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C." C has no legitimate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect although they are illegitimate.

(d) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "his seven children," and proceeding to enumerate them mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e) The testator having six grandchildren, makes a bequest to "his six grandchildren," and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names mentions one twice over, omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f) The testator bequeaths "1,000 Rupees to each of the three children of A." At the date of the Will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 Rupees.

64. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted it may be supplied by the context.

When words may be supplied.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred Rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred Rupees.

65. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the Will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of subject.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, but had no marsh lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous and the marsh lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b) The testator bequeaths to A "his zamíndárí of Rampore." He had an estate at Rampore, but it was a taluk and not a zamíndárí. The taluk passes by this bequest.

66. If the Will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this Section, any words which would be liable to rejection under the sixty-fifth Section are to be considered as struck out of the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 beegahs of land." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the Will, and such of the testator's marsh lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

67. Where the words of the Will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications, one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to shew which of these applications was intended.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in case of latent ambiguity.

Illustrations.

(a) A man having two cousins of the name of Mary bequeaths a sum of money to "his cousin Mary." It appears that there are two persons, each answering the description in the Will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to shew which of the two applications was intended.

(b) A, by his Will, leaves to B "his estate called Sultánpur Khurd." It turns out that he had two estates called Sultánpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to shew which estate was intended.

68. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in cases of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a) A man has an aunt Caroline and a cousin Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his Will he bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "his aunt Caroline" and 1,000 Rupees to "his cousin Mary," and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 Rupees to "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." There is no person to whom the description given in the Will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to shew who was meant by "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under the seventy-sixth Section.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to , leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to shew what name the testator intended to insert.

(c) A bequeaths to B Rupees, or "his estate of ." Evidence is not admissible to shew what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

69. The meaning of any clause in a Will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other, and for this purpose a Codicil is to be considered as part of the Will.

Meaning of any clause to be collected from entire Will.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the death of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life, and after his decease in B, it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b) Where a testator having an estate, one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his Will bequeaths Black Acre to B, the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first, as if he had said. "I give Black Acre to B, and all the rest of my estate to A."

70. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the Will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear where it may be collected from the other words of the Will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

When words may be understood in a restricted sense, and when in a sense wider than usual.

Illustrations.

(a) A testator gives to A "his farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all his marsh lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh lands in L. The general words, "all his marsh lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including that portion of the farm which consists of marsh lands in L.

(b) The testator, a sailor on ship-board, bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons, and chest of clothes, and to his friend A, (a shipmate) his red box, clasp-knife, and all things not before bequeathed. The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c) A, by his Will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures, and all other goods of whatever kind, and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

71. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings, according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other it can have none, the former is to be preferred.

Where a clause is open to two constructions, that which has some effect is to be preferred.

72. No part of a Will is to be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

No part of Will to be rejected if reasonable construction can be put on it.

73. If the same words occur in different parts of the same Will, they must be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense unless there appears an intention to the contrary.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of Will.

74. The intention of the testator is not to be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

Illustration.

The testator, by a Will made on his death-bed, bequeathed all his property to C D for life, and after his decease to a certain hospital. The intention of the testator cannot take effect to its full extent because the gift to the hospital is void under the hundred and fifth Section, but it shall take effect so far as regards the gift to C D.

75. Where two clauses or gifts in a Will are irreconcileable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator, by the first clause of his Will, leaves his estate of Rámnagar "to A," and by the last clause of his Will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b) If a man, at the commencement of his Will, gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

76. A Will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty.

Illustration.

If a testator says—"I bequeath goods to A;" or "I bequeath to A," or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in a Schedule," and no Schedule is found; or "I bequeath 'money,' 'wheat,' 'oil,' or the like," without saying how much, this is void.

77. The description contained in a Will of property the subject of gift, shall, unless a contrary intention appear by the Will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

Words describing subject refer to property answering that description at testator's death.

78. Unless a contrary intention shall appear by the Will, a bequest of the estate of the testator shall be construed to include any property which he may have power to appoint by Will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power; and a bequest of property described in a general manner shall be construed to include any property to which such description may extend which he may have power to appoint by Will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power.

Power of appointment executed by general bequest.

79. Where property is bequeathed to or for the benefit of such of certain objects as a specified person shall appoint, or for the benefit of certain objects in such proportions as a specified person shall appoint, and the Will does not provide for the event of no appointment being made; if the power given by the Will be not exercised, the property belongs to all the objects of the power in equal shares.

Implied gift to the objects of a power in default of appointment.

Illustration.

A, by his Will, bequeaths a fund to his wife for her life, and directs that at her death it shall be divided among his children in such proportions as she shall appoint. The widow dies without having made any appointment. The fund shall be divided equally among the children.

Bequest to "heirs," &c., of a particular person without qualifying terms.

80. Where a bequest is made to the "heirs," or "right heirs," or "relations," or "nearest relations," or "family," or "kindred," or "nearest of kin" or "next of kin," of a particular person, without any qualifying terms, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

Illustrations.

(a) A leaves his property "to his own nearest relations." The property goes to those who would be entitled to it if A had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(b) A bequeaths 10,000 Rupees "to B for his life, and after the death of B, to his own right heirs." The legacy after B's death belongs to those who would be entitled to it if it had formed part of A's unbequeathed property.

(c) A leaves his property to B, but if B dies before him, to B's next of kin. B dies before A, the property devolves as if it had belonged to B and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(d) A leaves 10,000 Rupees "to B for his life, and after his decease to the heirs of C." The legacy goes as if it had belonged to C and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of the legacy.

Bequest to "representatives," &c., of a particular person.

81. Where a bequest is made to the "representatives," or "legal representatives," or "personal representatives," or "executors or administrators" of a particular person, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it.

Illustration.

(a) A bequest is made to the "legal representatives of A." A has died intestate and insolvent. B is his administrator. B is entitled to receive the legacy, and shall apply it in the first place to the discharge of such part of A's debts as may remain unpaid: if there be any surplus, A shall pay it to those persons who at A's death would have been entitled to receive any property of A's which might remain after payment of his debts, or to the representatives of such persons.

Bequest without words of limitation.

82. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the Will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Bequest in the alternative.

83. Where property is bequeathed to a person, with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons;—if a contrary intention does not appear by the Will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy if he be alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he be then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made to A or to B. A survives the testator. B takes nothing.

(b) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the Will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the Will. The legacy goes to B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

(f) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. A and B survive the testator. B dies in A's lifetime. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

(g) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. B dies in the testator's lifetime. A survives the testator. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

Effect of words describing a class added to a bequest to a person.

84. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons, but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made—

to A and his children,
to A and his children by his present wife,
to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives,
to A and his personal representatives,
to A, his executors and administrators.

In each of these cases A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

(c) A bequest is made to A for life, and after his death to his issue. At the death of A the property belongs in equal shares to all persons who shall then answer the description of issue of A.

Bequest to a class of persons under a general description only.

85. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

Construction of terms.

86. The word "children" in a Will applies only to lineal descendants in the first degree; the word "grandchildren" applies only to lineal descendants in the second degree of the person whose "children," or "grandchildren," are spoken of; the words "nephews" and "nieces" apply only to children of brothers or sisters; the words "cousins" or "first cousins," or "cousins-german" apply only to children of brothers or of sisters of the father or mother of the person whose "cousins," or "first cousins," or "cousins-german" are spoken of; the words "first cousins once removed" apply only to children of cousins-german or to cousins-german of a parent of the person whose "first cousins once removed" are spoken of; the words "second cousins" apply only to grandchildren of brothers or of sisters of the grandfather or grandmother of the person whose "second cousins" are spoken of; the words

"issue" and "descendants" apply to all lineal descendants whatever of the person whose "issue" or "descendants" are spoken of. Words expressive of collateral relationship apply alike to relatives of full and of half blood. All words expressive of relationship apply to a child in the womb who is afterwards born alive.

Words expressing relationship denote only legitimate relatives, or failing such, relatives reputed legitimate.

87. In the absence of any intimation to the contrary in the Will, the term "child," "son," or "daughter," or any word which expresses relationship, is to be understood as denoting only a legitimate relative, or where there is no such legitimate relative, a person who has acquired, at the date of the Will, the reputation of being such relative.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having three children, B, C, and D, of whom B and C are legitimate and D is illegitimate, leaves his property to be equally divided among "his children." The property belongs to B and C in equal shares, to the exclusion of D.

(b) A, having a niece of illegitimate birth, who has acquired the reputation of being his niece, and having no legitimate niece, bequeaths a sum of money to his niece. The illegitimate niece is entitled to the legacy.

(c) A, having in his Will enumerated his children, and named as one of them B, who is illegitimate, leaves a legacy to "his said children." B will take a share in the legacy along with the legitimate children.

(d) A leaves a legacy to the "children of B." B is dead and has left none but illegitimate children. All those who had, at the date of the Will, acquired the reputation of being the children of B are objects of the gift.

(e) A bequeathed a legacy to "the children of B." B never had any legitimate child. C and D had, at the date of the Will, acquired the reputation of being children of B. After the date of the Will, and before the death of the testator, E and F were born and acquired the reputation of being children of B. Only C and D are objects of the bequest.

(f) A makes a bequest in favor of his child by a certain woman, not his wife. B had acquired at the date of the Will the reputation of being the child of A by the woman designated. B takes the legacy.

(g) A makes a bequest in favor of the child to be born of a woman who never becomes his wife. The bequest is void.

(h) A makes a bequest in favor of the child of which a certain woman, not married to him, is pregnant. The bequest is valid.

Rules of construction where a Will purports to make two bequests to the same person.

88. Where a Will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of, or in addition to, the first; if there is nothing in the Will to shew what he intended, the following rules shall prevail in determining the construction to be put upon the Will:—

First.—If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same Will, or in the Will and again in a Codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

Second.—Where one and the same Will or one and the same Codicil purports to make in two places a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

Third.—Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same Will, or in the same Codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

Fourth.—Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a Will and the other by a Codicil, or each by a different Codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In the four last rules the word Will does not include a Codicil.

Illustrations.

(a) A having ten shares, and no more, in the Bank of Bengal, made his Will, which contains, near its commencement, the words, "I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." After other bequests, the Will concludes with the words, "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Bank of Bengal.

(b) A having one diamond ring, which was given him by B, bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. A afterwards made a Codicil to his Will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond ring which was given to A by B.

(c) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and afterwards, in the same Will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 Rupees only.

(d) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and afterwards, by the same Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 Rupees. B is entitled to 11,000 Rupees.

(e) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B 5,000 Rupees, and by a Codicil to the Will he bequeaths to him 5,000 Rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 Rupees.

(f) A, by one Codicil to his Will, bequeaths to B 5,000 Rupees, and by another Codicil bequeaths to him 6,000 Rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 Rupees.

(g) A, by his Will, bequeaths "500 Rupees to B because she was his nurse," and in another part of the Will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with his children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 Rupees.

(h) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and also, in another part of the Will, an annuity of 400 Rupees. B is entitled to both legacies.

(i) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 Rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 Rupees, and takes a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 Rupees.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

89. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that shew an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

Illustrations.

(a) A makes her Will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, &c., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to." B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b) A makes his Will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my "banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I "hereby desire B to do and keep the residue for her own "use and pleasure." B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

Property to which a residuary legatee is entitled.

90. Under a residuary bequest the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Illustration.

A by his Will, bequeaths certain legacies, one of which is void under the hundred and fifth Section, and another lapses by the death of the legatee. He bequeaths the residue of his property to B. After the date of his Will B purchases a zamíndárí, which belongs to him at the time of his death. B is entitled to the two legacies and the zamíndárí as part of the residue.

Time of vesting of legacy in general terms.

having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

92. If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appear by the Will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person. In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

In what case a legacy lapses.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator bequeaths to B "500 Rupees which B owes him." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator, or happens to be dead when the Will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c) A legacy is given to A, and in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(d) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator; B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e) A sum of money is bequeathed to A on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year, and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f) The testator and the legatee perished in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to shew which died first. The legacy will lapse.

93. If a legacy be given to two persons jointly, and one of them die before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

A legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before the testator.

Illustration.

The legacy is simply to A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

94. But where a legacy is given to legatees in words which shew that the testator intended to give them distinct shares of it, then if any legatee die before the testator, so much of the legacy as was intended for him shall fall into the residue of the testator's property.

Effect in such a case of words shewing testator's intention that the shares should be distinct.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B, and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

95. Where the share that lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the Will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B, and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one-third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

96. Where a bequest shall have been made to any child or other lineal descendant of the testator, and the legatee shall die in the lifetime of the testator, but any lineal descendant of his shall survive the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the Will.

When a bequest to testator's child or lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

Illustration.

A makes his Will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son B for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son C, who survives A, and having made his Will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow D. The money goes to D.

97. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Bequest to A for the benefit of B does not lapse by A's death in testator's lifetime.

98. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as shall be alive at the testator's death.

Survivorship in case of bequest to a described class.

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a class of persons described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but their possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator, by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise, the property shall at that time go to such of them as shall be then alive, and to the representatives of any of them who have died since the death of the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the Will, leaving three children, C, D, and E. E died after the date of the Will, but before the death of A. C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death B has no children. The bequest is void.

(c) A lease for years of a house was bequeathed to A for his life, and after his decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator B had two children living, C and D, and he never had any other child. Afterwards, during the lifetime of A, C died, leaving E his executor. D has survived A. D and E are jointly entitled to so much of the leasehold term as remains unexpired.

(d) A sum of money was bequeathed to A for her life, and after her decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator B had two children living, C and D, and after that event, two children, E and F, were born to B. C and E died in the lifetime of A, C having made a Will, E having made no Will. A has died, leaving D and F surviving her. The legacy is to be divided into four equal parts, one of which is to be paid to the executor of C, one to D, one to the administrator of E, and one to F.

(e) A bequeaths one-third of his lands to B for his life, and after his decease to the sisters of B. At the death of the testator B had two sisters living, C and D, and after that event another sister E was born. C died during the life of B; D and E have survived B. One-third of A's lands belongs to D, E, and the representatives of C in equal shares.

(f) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to be divided equally among the children of C. Up to the death of B, C had not had any child. The bequest after the death of B is void.

(g) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "all the children born or to be born" of B, to be divided among them at the death of C. At the death of the testator B has two children living, D and E. After the death of the testator, but in the lifetime of C, two other children, F and G, are born to B. After the death of C another child is born to B. The legacy belongs to D, E, F, and G to the exclusion of the after-born child of B.

(h) A bequeaths a fund to the children of B, to be divided among them when the eldest shall attain majority. At the testator's death B had one child living, named C. He afterwards had two other children, named D and E. E died, but C and D were living when C attained majority. The fund belongs to C, D, and the representatives of E to the exclusion of any child who may be born to B after C's attaining majority.

PART XII.

Of void Bequests.

99. Where a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Bequest to a person by a particular description who is not in existence at the testator's death.

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a person described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but his possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise; and if a person answering the description is alive at the death of the testator, or comes into existence between that event and such later time, the property shall, at such later time, go to that person, or if he be dead, to his representatives.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to the eldest son of B. At the death of the testator B has no son. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son is born to C. Upon B's death the legacy goes to C's son.

(c) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son named D is born to C. D dies, then B dies. The legacy goes to the representative of D.

(d) A bequeaths his estate of Green Acre to B for life, and at his decease to the eldest son of C. Up to the death of B, C has had no son. The bequest to C's eldest son is void.

(e) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to the eldest son of C, to be paid to him after the death of B. At the death of the testator C has no son, but a son is afterwards born to him during the life of B and is alive at B's death. C's son is entitled to the 1,000 Rupees.

Bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest.

100. Where a bequest is made to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest contained in the Will, the later bequest shall be void, unless it comprises the whole of the remaining interest of the testator in the thing bequeathed.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his eldest son for life, and after the death of the latter to his eldest son. At the time of the testator's death A has no son. Here the bequest to A's eldest son is a bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death. It is not a bequest of the whole interest that remains to the testator. The bequest to A's eldest son for his life is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters. A survives the testator. A has daughters some of whom were not in existence at the testator's death. The bequest to A's daughters comprises the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The bequest to A's daughters is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters, with a direction that if any of them marries under the age of eighteen her portion shall be settled, so that it may belong to herself for life and may be divisible among her children after her death. A has no daughters living at the time of the testator's death, but has daughters born afterwards who survive him. Here the direction for a settlement has the effect in the case of each daughter who marries under eighteen of substituting for the absolute bequest to her a bequest to her merely for her life, that is to say, a bequest to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund is void.

(d) A bequeaths a sum of money to B for life, and directs that upon the death of B the fund shall be settled upon his daughters, so that the portion of each daughter may belong to herself for life, and may be divided among her children after her death. B has no daughter living at the time of the testator's death. In this case the only bequest to the daughters of B is contained in the direction to settle the fund, and this direction amounts to a bequest, to persons not yet born, of a life-interest in the fund, that is to say, of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund upon the daughters of B is void.

Rule against perpetuity.

101. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the lifetime of one or more persons living at the testator's decease, and the minority of some person who shall be in existence at the expiration of that period, and to whom, if he attains full age, the thing bequeathed is to belong.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life; and after B's death to such of the sons of B as shall first attain the age of 25. A and B survive the testator. Here the son of B who shall first attain the age of 25 may be a son born after the death of the testator; such son may not attain 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed from the death of the longer liver of A and B, and the vesting of the fund may thus be delayed beyond the lifetime of A and B, and the minority of the sons of B. The bequest after B's death is void

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life, and after B's death to such of B's sons as shall first attain the age of 25. B dies in the lifetime of the testator, leaving one or more sons. In this case the sons of B are persons living at the time of the testator's decease, and the time when either of them will attain 25 necessarily falls within his own lifetime. The bequest is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life with a direction that after B's death it shall be divided amongst such of B's children as shall attain the age of 18; but that if no child of B shall attain that age, the fund shall go to C. Here the time for the division of the fund must arrive at the latest at the expiration of 18 years from the death of B, a person living at the testator's decease. All the bequests are valid.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to trustees for the benefit of the testator's daughters, with a direction that if any of them marry under age her share of the fund shall be settled so as to devolve, after her death, upon such of her children as shall attain the age of 18. Any daughter of the testator to whom the direction applies must be in existence at his decease, and any portion of the fund which may eventually be settled as directed must vest not later than 18 years from the death of the daughter whose share it was. All these provisions are valid.

Bequest to a class some of whom may come under the rules in the Sections 100, 101.

102. If a bequest is made to a class of persons with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the two last preceding Sections, or either of them, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to all his children who shall attain the age of 25. A survives the testator and has some children living at the testator's death. Each child of A's living at the testator's death must attain the age of 25 (if at all) within the limits allowed for a bequest. But A may have children after the testator's decease some of whom may not attain the age of 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed after the decease of A. The bequest to A's children, therefore, is inoperative as to any child born after the testator's death; and as it is given to all his children as a class, it is not good as to any division of that class, but is wholly void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B, C, D, and all other the children of A who shall attain the age of 25. B, C, D are children of A living at the testator's decease. In all other respects the case is the same as that supposed in Illustration (a). The mention of B, C, and D by name does not prevent the bequest from being regarded as a bequest to a class, and the bequest is wholly void.

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under Sections 100, 101, or 102.

103. Where a bequest is void by reason of any of the rules contained in the three last preceding Sections, any bequest contained in the same Will, and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest, is also void.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25 for his life, and after the decease of such son, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect after the bequest to such of the sons of A as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under Section 101. The bequest to B is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25 and if no son of A shall attain that age, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect upon failure of the bequest to such of A's sons as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under Section 101. The bequest to B is void.

104. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void, and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Effect of direction for accumulation.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death, and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a) The Will directs that the sum of 10,000 Rupees shall be invested in Government securities and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B, and C. A, B, and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 Rupees at the end of the year from the testator's death.

(b) The Will directs that 10,000 Rupees shall be invested, and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 Rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c) The Will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultânpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive at the end of one year from the testator's death the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

(d) The Will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultânpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulations shall then be paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator A has no son. The bequest is void.

(e) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B, and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the Will, but in consequence of B's minority.

105. No man having a nephew or niece or any nearer relative shall have power to bequeath any property to religious or charitable uses, except by a Will executed not less than twelve months before his death, and deposited, within six months from its execution, in some place provided by law for the safe custody of the Wills of living persons.

Bequest to religious or charitable uses.

Illustration.

A having a nephew makes a bequest by a Will not executed nor deposited as required—

For the relief of poor people;
For the maintenance of sick soldiers;
For the erection or support of a hospital;
For the education and preferment of orphans;
For the support of scholars;
For the erection or support of a school;
For the building and repairs of a bridge;
For the making of roads;
For the erection or support of a church;
For the repairs of a church;
For the benefit of ministers of religion;
For the formation or support of a public garden.

All these bequests are void.

PART XIII.

Of the Vesting of Legacies.

106. Where, by the terms of a bequest, the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the Will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy. And in such cases the legacy is, from the testator's death, said to be vested in interest.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed.

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that if a particular event shall happen the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B 100 Rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths to B 100 Rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18, and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f) A fund is bequeathed to A, B, and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18 respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator the shares vest in interest in A, B, and C, subject to be devested in case A, B, and C shall all die under 18, and upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

107. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible. In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Date of vesting when legacy is contingent upon a specified uncertain event.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the Will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B, and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B, and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18," or, "when he shall attain the age of 18." A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall then be living, but if B shall not be then living, to C. A, B, and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other shall have happened.

(d) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that if she shall not attain 18, or marry under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy, although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by A's marrying.

(g) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of the Act.

(h) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 Rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 Rupees to B.

(i) A leaves his farm of Sultânpur Khurd to B if B shall convey his own farm of Sultânpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.

(j) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence, within that period, of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by Will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l) A bequeaths to B 500 Rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m) A bequeaths to B 500 Rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum out of another fund shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

Vesting of interest in a bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age.

108. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

Illustration.

A fund is bequeathed to such of the children of A as shall attain the age of 18, with a direction that while any child of A shall be under the age of 18 the income of the share to which it may be presumed he will be eventually entitled shall be applied for his maintenance and education. No child of A who is under the age of 18 has a vested interest in the bequest.

PART XIV.

Of Onerous Bequests.

Onerous bequest.

109. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Illustration.

A having shares in (X) a prosperous joint stock company and also shares in (Y) a joint stock company in difficulties in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies. B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and the other refused.

110. Where a Will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

Illustration.

A having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

PART XV.

Of Contingent Bequests.

Bequests contingent upon a specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned, for its occurrence.

111. Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned in the Will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death to B. If A survives the testator the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children, to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and "in case of B's death without children," to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B shall die without children during the lifetime of A.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and "in case of B's death." to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B shall die in the lifetime of A."

Bequests to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

112. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period, but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as shall be alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appear by the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A and B, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

(c) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, or the survivor, with a direction that if B should not survive the testator, his children are to stand in his place. C dies during the life of the testator; B survives the testator, but dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, with a direction that in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

PART XVI.

Of Conditional Bequests.

Bequest upon impossible condition.

113. A bequest upon an impossible condition is void.

Illustrations.

(a) An estate is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall walk one hundred miles in an hour. The bequest is void.

(b.) A bequeaths 500, Rupees to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter. A's daughter was dead at the date of the Will. The bequest is void.

Bequest upon illegal or immoral condition.

114. A bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void.

Illustration.

(a) A bequeaths 500 Rupees to B on condition that he shall murder C. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 5,000 Rupees to his niece if she will desert her husband. The bequest is void.

Fulfilment of condition precedent to the vesting of a legacy.

115. Where a Will imposes a condition to be fulfiled before the legatee can take a vested interest in the thing bequeathed, the condition shall be considered to have been fulfiled if it has been substantially complied with.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D, and E. A marries with the written consent of B. C is present at the marriage. D sends a a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentations, and has made no objection. A has fulfilled the condition.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies. A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the concent of B, C and D. A marries in the lifetime of B, C and D with the consent of B and C only. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(d) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D to his marriage with E. Afterwards B, C and D capriciously retract their consent. A marries E. A has fulfilled the condition.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries without the consent of B, C and D, but obtains their consent after the marriage. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(f) A makes his Will, whereby he bequeaths a sum of money to B if B shall marry with the consent of A's executors. B marries during the lifetime of A, and A afterwards expresses his approbation of the marriage. A dies. The bequest to B takes effect.

(g) A legacy is bequeathed to A if he executes a certain document within a time specified in the Will. The document is executed by A within a reasonable time, but not within the time specified in the Will. A has not performed the condition and is not entitled to receive the legacy.

Bequest to A, and on failure of the prior bequest to B.

116. Where there is a bequest to one person and a bequest of the same thing to another if the prior bequest shall fail, the second bequest shall take effect upon the failure of the prior bequest, although the failure may not have occurred in the manner contemplated by the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths a sum of money to his own children surviving him, and if they all die under 18, to B. A dies without having ever had a child. The bequest to B takes effect.

(b) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, on condition that he shall execute a certain document within three months after A's death, and if he should neglect to do so, to C. B dies in the testator's lifetime. The bequest to C takes effect.

Case in which the second bequest shall not take effect on failure of the first.

117. Where the Will shews an intention that the second bequest shall take effect only in the event of the first bequest failing in a particular manner, the second bequest shall not take effect unless the prior bequest fails in that particular manner.

Illustration.

A makes a bequest to his wife, but in case she should die in his lifetime, bequeaths to B that which he had bequeathed to her. A and his wife perish together under circumstances which make it impossible to prove that she died before him. The bequest to B does not take effect.

Bequest over, conditional upon the happening or not happening of a specified uncertain event.

118. A bequest may be made to any person with the condition superadded that in case a specified uncertain event shall happen the thing bequeathed shall go to another person; or, that in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen, the thing bequeathed shall go over to another person. In each case the ulterior bequest is subject to the rules contained in Sections 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 116, 117.

Illustrations.

(a) A sum of money is bequeathed to A, to be paid to him at the age of 18, and if he shall die before he attains that age, to B. A takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be devested and to go to B in case A shall die under 18.

(b) An estate is bequeathed to A with a proviso that if A shall dispute the competency of the testator to make a Will the estate shall go to B. A disputes the competency of the testator to make a Will. The estate goes to B.

(c) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, but if B shall then be dead, leaving a son, such son is to stand in the place of B. B takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be devested if he dies leaving a son in A's lifetime.

(d) A sum of money is bequeathed to A and B, and if either should die during the life of C, then to the survivor living at the death of C. A and B die before C. The gift over cannot take effect, but the representative of A takes one-half of the money and the representative of B takes the other half.

(e) A bequeaths to B the interest of a fund for life, and directs the fund to be divided, at her death, equally among her three children, or such of them as shall be living at her death. All the children of B die in B's lifetime. The bequest over cannot take effect, but the interests of the children pass to their representatives.

Condition must be strictly fulfilled.

119. An ulterior bequest of the kind contemplated by the last preceding Section cannot take effect unless the condition is strictly fulfilled.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that if he marries without the consent of B, C and D, the legacy shall go to E. D dies. Even if A marries without the consent of B and C, the gift to E does not take effect.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that if he marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries with the consent of B. He afterwards becomes a widower and marries again without the consent of B. The bequest to C does not take effect.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A, to be paid at 18, or marriage, with a proviso that if A dies under 18, or marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries under 18 without the consent of B. The bequest to C takes effect.

Original bequest not affected by invalidity of second.

120. If the ulterior bequest be not valid, the original bequest is not affected by it.

Illustrations.

(a) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a condition superadded that if he shall not on a given day walk 100 miles in an hour the estate shall go to B. The condition being void, A retains his estate as if no condition had been inserted in the Will.

C dies intestate shortly after the testator, and without having made any election. D takes out administration to C, and as administrator elects on behalf of C's estate to take under the Will. In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 Rupees, and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultânpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. In his individual character he retains the lands of Sultânpur in opposition to the Will.

C takes out administration to B, and as administrator elects to keep the estate of Sultânpur in opposition to the Will, and to relinquish the legacy of 2,000 Rupees. C may do this, and yet claim his legacy of 1,000 Rupees under the Will.

Exception to the six last Rules.—Where a particular gift is expressed in the Will to be in lieu of something belonging to the legatee, which is also in terms disposed of by the Will, if the legatee claims that thing, he must relinquish the particular gift, but he is not bound to relinquish any other benefit given to him by the Will.

Illustration.

B has not confirmed the bequest of Sultânpur Buzurg to C.

(b) B, the eldest son of A, is the possessor of an estate called Sultânpur. A bequeaths Sultânpur to C, and to B the residue of A's property. Confirmation of bequest by act of legatee.

175. Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry may be inferred from any act of the legatee which renders it impossible to place the persons interested in the subject-matter of the bequest in the same condition as if such act had not been done.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B an estate to which C is entitled, and to C a coal mine. C takes possession of the mine and exhausts it. He has thereby confirmed the bequest of the estate to B.

THE following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 10th March 1865, and was referred to a Select Committee, with instructions to make their report thereon in a fortnight:—

No. 9 OF 1865.

A Bill to amend Act No X of 1862 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties.)

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend Act No. X of 1862 (to consolidate and amend the Law relating to Stamp Duties); It is enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

1. The thirty-third Section of the said Act No. X of 1862 is hereby repealed, and the following Section shall be read in lieu thereof:—

Act X of 1862, Section 33, repealed.

2. The Governor General of India in Council may, from time to time, by an order to be published in the Official Gazette, direct that, in the whole of the British Territories in India, or in such part thereof as may be specified in the said order, such lower rates of Stamp Duty as he shall prescribe shall be taken on all or any of the Deeds, Instruments, or Writings specified in the Schedules annexed to the said Act, or on any particular class of such Deeds, Instruments, or Writings, or on any of the Deeds, Instruments, or Writings belonging to any such class, or he may altogether exempt the same, and in like manner, as occasion shall require, cancel or vary such order to the extent of the powers hereby given. Such cancelment or variation shall also be notified in the Official Gazette.

Governor General in Council may lower rates of Stamp Duty on any Deeds, &c., mentioned in the Schedules, or on any class of such Deeds, &c.

3. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of the said Act No. X of 1862.

This Act to be taken as part of Act X of 1862.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE part of the Stamp Act which the present Bill proposes to amend is the thirty-third Section. By that Section the Governor General of India in Council is empowered to reduce the rate of Stamp Duty on all or any of the Deeds, Instruments, and Writings described in the Schedules at the end of the Act, or altogether to exempt them from Stamp Duty. The Section, as now framed, might be supposed to be sufficiently large and comprehensive to enable the Government of India to do all that is necessary in the direction of the Section, and to meet every case in which a reduction of Stamp Duty might be deemed just or reasonable; but experience has shewn that the wording of the Section is too restrictive and that the power given by it requires to be enlarged. An application has recently been made to the Government of India to reduce the Stamp Duty chargeable on bonds which are taken under the Indian Customs Act of 1863. These bonds are now liable to the same Stamp Duty as all other bonds or obligations for the payment of money. Compared with England the amount of Stamp Duty on bonds in this Country is high, and as levied on the class of bonds just mentioned, it is found to press heavily upon trade, and particularly upon the bonders of Salt cargoes. Looking to the circumstances under which these bonds are taken, and to the fact that actions to enforce them are very rare, the Government are disposed to view favorably the proposition that has been made for the reduction of the rate of Stamp Duty to which they are now liable, and to follow, to some extent, the English practice in respect of such bonds; but they are advised that, although they have power to lower the rate of Stamp Duty on bonds generally in the whole or any part of British India, they have not power to reduce the rate of Stamp Duty on any particular class of bonds. The object of the present Bill is to invest the Government of India with this power as regards not only bonds, but also all other Deeds, Instruments, and Writings liable to Stamp Duty.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE existing law contains no provision for the effective control of the management of Slaughter-Houses, and the Conservancy arrangements essential to their being kept in a clean and healthy condition beyond the limits of the jurisdiction of the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta. The Slaughter-Houses from which the entire meat consumed within the Town is supplied, are in the Suburbs; and it has been found, after a careful examination and consideration of the question by a Committee appointed by Government, that this locality offers the most suitable site for these establishments, but that as at present constituted, owing to the absence of proper management and any kind of Conservancy arrangements, they present an intolerable nuisance to the surrounding neighbourhood and render a supply of pure and wholesome meat, to the various bazars and markets, impossible.

To remedy this state of things, it is proposed to construct buildings, in the Suburbs of the Town of Calcutta to be used as Public Slaughter-Houses and the object of this Bill, which contains in a somewhat amended form, the substance of Sections CXCVI to CXCIX, and Sections CCII and CCIII of Act VI of 1863, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, is to provide for the closing of all existing Slaughter-Houses, the prohibition of the use of any place as a Slaughter-House except when duly licensed, and the exercise by the Municipal Commissioners of an effective control over the management, regulation, and conservancy of the new establishments, as well as of the meat bazars and markets supplied by them.

Legislative Dept.

THE following Bill, as settled by the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 8th April 1865, is hereby published for general information, and will be re-considered on the 22nd instant:—

A Bill to amend the law for the sale of such Under-tenures as by the Title Deeds or established usage of the country are transferable by sale or otherwise for the recovery of arrears of rent due in respect thereof.

Preamble.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen in consequence of the repeal of Section XVI of Regulation VII of 1832, as to the authority by whom Putnee Talooks and other saleable Under-tenures of the nature defined in Section I of Regulation VIII of 1819 are to be sold for arrears of rent due to the proprietor on account thereof; and whereas it is expedient to amend the law for the sale of such Under-tenures for the recovery of arrears of rent due in respect thereof; It is enacted as follows:—

Meaning of the Term "Collector."

I. The word "Collector" as used in this Act shall include all Officers exercising the full powers of a Collector of a District.

Words used in the singular number include the plural.

II. Section XVI of Regulation VIII of 1819 of the Bengal Code, Act VIII of 1835, and Section X of Act VI of 1853, are repealed, except in so far as any other Regulation or law is repealed thereby.

Laws repealed.

III. The sale for the recovery of arrears of rent of such Under-tenures as by the Title deeds or established usage of the country are transferable by sale or otherwise, shall be conducted by the Collector of Land Revenue in whose jurisdiction, as defined by Act VI of 1853, the lands lie, or by his Deputy or Assistant exercising the powers of a Deputy Collector, and all acts preparatory to or connected with the sale of such Under-tenures as aforesaid, which, by Regulations VIII of 1819 and I of 1820, the Judge is required to perform, shall be performed by the said Collector, his Deputy, or Assistant; and no Under-tenure shall henceforth be sold in execution of a decree for the recovery of rent due in respect thereof, otherwise than as hereinafter provided.

Sale by whom to be conducted.

IV. Whenever any person shall obtain a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect of any such Under-tenure as aforesaid, he may apply for the sale thereof to the Collector, Deputy or Assistant Collector by whom the decree was passed, or, in his absence, to the person in charge of his Office, who shall thereupon cause a notice of the sale of the Under-tenure to be hung up in his own Court, in that of the Collector, and the Judge of the District within which the Under-tenure to be sold is situated, and at some conspicuous place on the lands comprised in the Under-tenure itself or immediately adjacent thereto.

Notice of sale where to be hung up.

V. The notice shall be for the sale of the Under-tenure on some fixed date not less than fifteen days from the date of the notice, and shall specify, in the words used in the plaint in the suit in which the decree was given, the name of the village, estate, and Pergunnah or other local division in which the Under-tenure is situate, the yearly rent of the Under-tenure, and the amount of the arrear due in respect thereof.

Notice of sale what to contain.

VI. If the sum due under the decree, together with interest to date of payment and all costs of process be paid into Court at any time before the sale commences, whether by the defaulting tenant or any one interested in the protection of the Under-tenure, such sale shall not take place; and the provisions of Section XIII of Regulation VIII of 1819, for the recovery of sums paid by other than the defaulting tenant to stay the sale of the Under-tenure, shall be applicable to all similar payments made under this Section.

How the sale may be stopped.

VII. The Under-tenure shall be sold to the highest bidder in open Court. Provided, however, that no bid made by or on behalf of the defaulting tenant shall be accepted.

Sale to be to the highest bidder.

VIII. The party who shall be declared to be the purchaser shall be required to deposit immediately, in cash or Government Currency Notes, twenty-five per cent. of the amount of his bid, and in default of such a deposit the Under-tenure shall be put up again and sold forthwith, or on the next ensuing office day.

Purchaser to deposit 25 per cent.

IX. The full amount of the purchase money shall be made good by the purchaser before sunset of the eighth day from that on which the sale of the Under-tenure took place, reckoning that day as one of the eight, or, if the eighth day be a Sunday or other close holiday, then on the first office day after the eighth day; and, in default of payment within the prescribed period as aforesaid, the deposit shall be forfeited to the Government, and the Under-tenure shall be resold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claims thereto or to any part of the sum for which the said Under-tenure may be subsequently sold. If the proceeds of the sale, which may be eventually consummated, be less than the price bid by the defaulting purchaser, the difference shall be leviable from him under the law for enforcing the payment of money in satisfaction of a decree for arrears of rent.

Deposit to be forfeited if balance of purchase money be not paid up in time.

X. The provisions of all the preceding Sections with regard to sales shall also be applicable to all re-sales under this Act, which may be rendered necessary by the default of any purchaser.

Provisions as to sales to apply to all re-sales.

XI. When the purchase money shall have been paid in full, the Officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a Certificate, in the form prescribed in the Schedule annexed to this Act, and shall further, on the purchaser making application and depositing the requisite costs, depute an Officer or Ameen to put him in possession of the Under-tenure in the customary manner, and to publish the fact of the purchase to the cultivators of the lands comprised therein.

Certificate and possession to be given to purchaser on payment by him in full.

XII. From the proceeds of the sale of the Under-tenure, the Officer holding such sale shall repay to the judgment-creditor the necessary expenses incurred by him in procuring it; and, after satisfying the decree in execution of which the sale was made, shall hold the residue, if any, in deposit on account of the defaulting tenant.

Proceeds of sale how to be dealt with.

XIII. An appeal shall lie to the Collector from any proceedings of a Deputy or Assistant Collector, if made within fifteen days; and to the Commissioner from any original proceedings of a Collector, under this Act, if made within thirty days from the date of the sale: but no proceedings under this Act shall be reversed or modified in appeal, except upon the ground of irrelevancy of the law, or of such an irregularity in procedure as, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, has caused injury to the interests of one of the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed.

Power of revision.

XIV. No appeal as of right shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this Act; but a Commissioner, in any case in which an appeal has been heard by a Collector, and the Board of Revenue, in any case in which an appeal has been heard by the Commissioner, may call for the proceedings at any time within six months from the date thereof, and pass thereon such orders as they may think proper.

Purchaser to recover purchase money in such manner as appellate or revising authority may direct, if sale be set aside.

XV. If any sale of an Under-tenure shall under either of the two preceding Sections be set aside, the purchaser shall be entitled to recover the purchase money in such manner as the appellate or revising authority may in each instance direct.

Purchaser to acquire the Under-tenure free of incumbrances.

XVI. The purchaser of an Under-tenure sold under this Act shall acquire it free of all incumbrances, whether by engagements, gift, sale, or otherwise, which may have accrued thereon by any act of the original holder of the Under-tenure, his representatives, or assignees; and no mortgage or other limited assignment shall be permitted to bar the indefeasible right of the Zemindar or other landholder to hold the tenure of his creation answerable, in the state in which he created it, for the rent; unless the transfer or assignment shall have been made with a condition to that effect under express authority obtained from such Zemindar or other landholder.

The purchaser of an Under-tenure sold under this Act shall apply to the Zemindar or other landholder, within fifteen days from the day of sale, to have his name registered in the Zemindar or other landholder's books as the purchaser, and to execute a kubooleut on the same terms and conditions on which the Under-tenure was held by the defaulter; and if such application be not made within fifteen days, it shall be lawful for the Zemindar or other landholder to sue the said purchaser under the provisions of Act X of 1859.

Indemnity.

XVIII. The provisions of Section III shall be applicable to all sales held under Regulation VIII of 1819, previous to the passing of this Act; and no suit shall lie in respect of such sales on the plea of want of jurisdiction of the Officer by whom they were conducted.

The following Resolution of the Government of India is published for general information and guidance:—

No. 1506.

Financial Department.

Fort William, the 31st March 1865.

Resolution.—In order to reduce the number of deposits on the Registers of the several Revenue Treasuries, the following Rules are to be strictly observed:—

No sums are to be entered in the Deposit Books which can properly be credited to any other head of account.

Collections made from the Estates of minors under the Court of Wards, and generally numerous deposits on one account or payable to one person, are to be recorded in a personal Ledger.

A transfer to the Account of Revenue, as Miscellaneous Receipts, is to be made annually of the amount of all deposits remaining unclaimed, without sufficient cause, for three years. Deposits which have been credited to Government under this rule cannot be re-paid without the sanction of the Accountant-General of the Government or Administration to which the Treasury is subordinate. Sums not exceeding one Rupee, lying unclaimed for more than twelve months, and the balances of deposits which have been partially re-paid during the year, if not more than one Rupee in amount, may be included in the transfer.

Every public Officer having an account in the personal Deposit Ledger will annually furnish the Officer in charge of the Treasury with an account of the particulars of outstanding deposits, in order that such as may be of more than three years' standing may be dealt with in the above manner.

The existing rules, which require that each item of receipt be numbered in an annual consecutive series beginning with the 1st May of each official year, and that no re-payment be made without reference to the Receipt Register and to the particular item at credit therein, and that the amount of every payment be entered in the Register against the credit item must be strictly observed in respect of all deposits not recorded in the personal Ledger.

All Collectors or Deputy Commissioners of Districts in which the executive duties of the Treasury Department are conducted by some subordinate Officer are required personally to examine their Deposit Registers at least once a quarter and to satisfy themselves that they have been kept with the utmost care and regularity.

A Certificate to the effect that this examination has been made is to be entered, at the time, on the Extract Register of Receipts under preparation for the Accountant-General.

This Declaration is made, under the provisions of Section II., Act VI. of 1857, to all whom it may concern.

The following Order issued by the Government of India in the Home Department is re-published for general information:—

No. 3205.—The 5th April 1865.—The Governor General in Council directs the publication of the following Despatch from the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State for India, No. 32, dated the 17th February 1865.

The Rules contained in this Despatch supersede those published in the Gazette of India of the 15th October 1864:—

FINANCIAL. INDIA OFFICE;
No. 32. London, 17th February 1865.

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

SIR,—I have considered in Council your Ecclesiastical letter dated the 8th December last, No. 13, in which you recommend for favorable consideration the proposition of the Bishop of Calcutta that Chaplains who may retire prior to the occurrence of a vacancy in the Senior Chaplaincies, and who would consequently only receive a pension of £292 per annum, may be admitted to the increased pension of £365 as soon as a vacancy occurs which would render pensions of that amount available.

2. On a reconsideration of the whole question, and the inconvenience shewn to be likely to arise from not limiting the period of Chaplains' service, Her Majesty's Government are of opinion that, instead of acceding to the proposition now submitted, it would be better, for the interests of the service, that the following Rules should be published in substitution of those sanctioned in my Financial Despatch of the 30th July last, No. 186, to take effect from the 15th October last, the date of the publication of that Despatch in India:—

I.—A Chaplain retiring after completing the full period of service, as prescribed by Government Regulations, shall receive a pension of £365 per annum. This rule to come into operation in each Presidency as soon as either of the two Senior Chaplaincies in that Presidency is vacant.

II.—Every Chaplain shall be compelled to retire after 25 years from the date of the commencement of his service in India, unless specially retained in the service by the Secretary of State for India in Council, on the recommendation of the Governor General in Council or Governor in Council of his Presidency. This rule to come into operation in three years.

III.—During the next three years, the second Chaplain may succeed to the Senior Chaplaincy, and the third to the second Chaplaincy; but if either of them accepts that advantage, he thereby forfeits his claim to the increased pension. After three years there shall be no more appointments to the two Senior Chaplaincies, but the incumbents then existing, if any, may retain them, unless they fall under the operation of Rule II. The incumbents now existing, in order to entitle themselves to the increased pension, must resign before the end of three years.

IV.—The lower rates of pension payable to Chaplains compelled by ill health to retire after a shorter period of service shall remain as at present.

I have, &c.,
(Sd.) C. WOOD.

No. 1950.—The 6th April 1865.—The undermentioned Despatch is published for general information:—

FINANCIAL. INDIA OFFICE;
No. 50. London, 28th February 1865.

To His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council.

SIR,—With reference to Section 6 of the New Civil Absentee Rules, which limits to one week the period within which Officers absent on privilege leave must rejoin their appointments after the expiration of such leave, I have to acquaint you that it is not intended that the rule in question should be applied in the cases of Officers who may have been granted privilege leave prior to the date of the publication of the Rules.

I have, &c.,

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

Walaroo and Tipara Bays.

All bearings are magnetic, variation 4° 30' E.

NOTICE is hereby given that, on and after the (1st) first day of April next (1865), the floating beacon now moored on the Tipara Reef will be re-placed by a temporary light-ship, which will be moored close under the rocky patch near the southern extremity of the Tipara Reef, with the following bearings:—Elizabeth Point, S. E. ¾ S.; Long Point, N. E. by E. The light-ship has two masts, is painted red, and exhibits during the day a red ball at the mainmast head.

Lights.—From sunset to sunrise will be exhibited the following lights:—A white light from the mainmast (24) twenty-four feet above the sea-level, visible from all points of the compass at a distance of (7) seven miles in clear weather. A red light from the foremast (12) twelve feet above the sea-level, visible from N. to S. round by W., at a distance of (3) three miles in clear weather.

Vessels making the Light from N. N. W. should not stand towards the northern extremity of the Reef whilst the red light is visible; by observing the direction a ship will be well clear of the Reef.

Should the weather be hazy, and the red or less intense light be obscured, no vessel should approach the Reef with the white light bearing S. S. E. under (7) seven fathoms.

The following description of the Tipara, and sailing directions for Wallaroo or Tipara Bays, are published for the guidance of Mariners:—

The Tipara Reef is an extensive shoal, the southern extremity being (4½) four and a half miles N. W. from Elizabeth Point.

The Reef consists principally of sand, but there is a rocky patch of small extent near the southern extremity which dries at low water; it is under the shelter of this patch where the light-ship referred to above will be moored.

From the rocky patch the Reef extends in a northerly direction about (2) two miles, the outer edge trending to the N. N. W., whilst the S. E. part takes a N. E. ½ E. direction; the extreme breadth from east to west nearly (2) two miles.

The soundings on the Reef vary:—in some places there being a fathom and a half (1½), whilst in others—particularly to the N. N. E. part of the shoal—there are only (2) two or (3) three feet. From the northern extremity of the Reef the buoy off Long Point referred to in this notice bears N. E. by E. ¾ E.

Vessels rounding the south part of the Reef should not bring Elizabeth Point to bear to the southward of S. E. by E. ½ E., whilst those intending to pass to the northward of the danger, into or out of Tipara Bay, should not bring the buoy off Long Point to bear to the eastward of E. by N. ½ N.

A red nun buoy has also been placed off Long Point in (3) three fathoms, with the following bearings:—Elizabeth Point, S. ½ E.; Long Point, E. by N. ½ N.

To pass outside or to the westward of the Tipara Reef do not approach the light-ship from the westward under (6) six fathoms, or come within a mile of the same; from this position, when to the westward of the Reef, steer a N. N. W. course, in which the same soundings will be maintained.

When the buoy of Long Point bears east, a course of N. E. may be shaped, taking care, as the Long Point Buoy is brought to bear S. E., not to come under (4½) four and a half fathoms.

When Long Point bears south, a course of E. by N. may be shaped, when the Pilot and Harbour Master will come off, and conduct the vessel to the anchorage or jetty.

At night no vessel in the vicinity of Tipara Reef should come under (7) seven fathoms, or attempt to enter the Bay until the lights from the Smelting Works are clearly defined bearing E. by N., when that course may be shaped for the anchorage, taking care not to come under (6) six fathoms unless the Commander is sufficiently well acquainted with the Bay to take the ship in, or the Pilot has taken charge.

The tides in the vicinity of the Reef and Long and Elizabeth Points are irregular and rapid; care must therefore be exercised to guard against the influence of the tides when in the stream of the Reef, or near the Points referred to.

It is high water at Port Wallaroo at 5h. 45m. F. & C.; rise and fall (4) four feet (8) eight inches at ordinary springs.

To pass inside Tipara Reef give Elizabeth Point a berth of a mile and a half (1½) to avoid the shoal rocky patch which extends nearly a mile from the Point in a north-westerly direction.

With the Point bearing S. E., distant a mile and a half (1½), steer due N., which course will lead through the inner passage in not less than (4) four fathoms.

In beating through keep the lead going, and do not, in a vessel drawing more than (17) seventeen feet, when standing in shore, bring Long Point Buoy to bear to the westward of W. N. W.

In standing off, when to the southward of the north end of the Reef, do not bring the Long Point Buoy to bear to the eastward of N. N. E., by which the eastern part of the Reef will be avoided.

Small vessels may pass inside the Long Point Buoy, taking care not to bring Elizabeth Point to bear to the westward of S. by W., so as to avoid the Walrus Rock. With the above bearing a vessel will be in (2) two fathoms at low water, spring tides, with the Walrus Rock distant about half a mile.

The Walrus Rock lies nearly a mile off Long Point when bearing S. E. by S., and is nealy dry at low water.

N. E. a mile and a half (1½) from the Walrus Rock lies the Bird Reef, which is awash at low water.

Coasters should give this danger a wide berth, not bringing the Long Point Buoy to bear to the westward of S. W. With this bearing a vessel will be in (2) two fathoms at low water.

In the bay there is excellent anchorage in (4) four fathoms, with the jetty end bearing E. S. E., distant about (2) two cables lengths.

Small vessels can anchor in (3) three fathoms, with the end of the jetty bearing S S. E. to S.

Alongside the jetty will be found good berths, from (8) eight to (14) fourteen feet shoaling towards the shore.

Railway Inspection Reports.

From CAPTAIN F. S. TAYLOR, R. E., Joint Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, Railway Branch, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,—(No. 357G., dated the 21st March 1865.)

IN continuation of my letters Nos. 104G. of 26th January 1865, and 183G., dated 16th February 1865, I am instructed to forward the first Reports of the Government Inspector on the Traffic arrangements of the Bengal Railways with special reference to the subjects brought to the notice of this Government in Circular No. 13R. of 1864.

2. It is to be inferred from the evidence obtained by specific enquiry that the overcrowding of 3rd class Passengers on the Bengal Railways is the exception and not the rule.

3. The East Indian Railway Company's arrangements not having yet been organized on a scale adequate to meet sudden demands, an excess over the authorized number of pasengers has occasionally been either forced, or permitted to crowd into the ordinary train accommodation, by the Guards and Station Masters. The practice is difficult to prevent at road-side stations, where no extra carriages are to be had, and where the alternative presented to each passenger is that of either forcing himself into a carriage already full or being left behind. The extreme uncertainty and fluctuation of Native Passenger Traffic at any given Station almost defies the possibility of making timely and adequate provision for special local wants, and when the passengers already on the carriages do not object the interests of all concerned combine to produce overcrowding.

4. Still it is the duty of the Traffic Management to prevent overcrowding anywhere, and to punish any of its Subordinate Officers who either compel or permit it. This is more especially the case at terminal and other chief Stations where extra carriages are always available and should be ready at hand, and where an extra train can be made up if required. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that the public attention which has been drawn to the subject will have convinced the Traffic Manager that his arrangements are not altogether efficient, and that apart from the pecuniary interests of the Company, which are to a great extent involved, the credit of his Department depends on his personal attention to the just wants of the class who chiefly avail themselves of the Company's trains.

5. The convenience of all classes of travellers must greatly depend on the interior arrangements and fittings of the carriages.

6. These have hitherto been constructed too rigidly on the English pattern, though the classes of the community in this country are more numerous, and the habits of the lower orders far more rude and simple.

7. The East Indian Railway trains run immense distances, and, besides conveying a large agricultural population, will serve the mercantile and trading community of half India. It will be found sound policy to deal liberally with these great classes, and the health of the through travellers will always necessitate a certain standard of comfort in excess of that afforded by country conveyances on the great lines of Road. The Lieutenant-Governor has long ago advocated the adoption of four classes of vehicles and four scales of fare on the entire line of East Indian Railway, and that the amount of accommodation travellers are to expect for the fare paid may be clearly defined.

8. The lowest class carriage which the Officers of this Company intend to run is the old 3rd, fitted for 60 passengers in 5 compartments of 12 seats (see accompanying Drawing) without shutters or venetians.

9. All the 3rd class stock has been or is being altered to this plan, which seems well adapted to prevent overcrowding.

10. This class should, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, be the 4th class.

11. The intermediate class now running on the experimental line of the East Indian Railway between Howrah and Raneegunge, and which His Honor would be glad to see introduced over the entire line, might accommodate 50 passengers in 5 compartments of 10 seats, and should be provided with venetians or shutters to keep off the weather.

12. The old 2nd class might with advantage be fitted with stuffed leather cushions, which improvement is recommended by the Traffic Manager, and for the 1st class special family accommodation will be provided by slightly altering the existing vehicles agreeably to the accompanying Drawing.

13. The 1st class carriages are all fitted with sleeping berths, and seem, with this last modification, excellently adapted to the wants of first class travellers.

14. The fitness of the Railway vehicles for carrying the various classes of the public having thus been carefully provided for, the regulations suggested in paragraph 2 of your Circular under reply can be enforced as points of simple detail.

15. The Agent of the East Indian Railway has concurred in the suggestion of the Inspector that all passenger vehicles without distinction of classes should be lighted at night, and also that a reserved compartment in a 3rd class carriage should always be exclusively appropriated for native females on application. It will be the duty of the Inspector to see that these two rules are carried into effect.

16. On the Eastern Bengal Railway there are already four classes of vehicles and four rates of fare. The experiment of adding a 4th class has been attended with complete success. It was thought that this line being comparatively a short one, and running through a purely agricultural district, the 4th class carriage might be arranged so as to afford a somewhat less amount of comfort than carriages of the same class on the East Indian Railway. The seats and compartments were accordingly removed, but experience has shewn that this arrangement is open to objection, and that without compartments the tendency to overcrowding, the difficulty of preventing it, and the risk of injury to the passengers are greatly increased. The Agent will accordingly be moved to fit up the 4th class carriages on the same plan as on the East Indian line, with five compartments to hold 12 passengers each.

17. With respect to the dress of Officials in employ of the Railway Company, it is in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor a matter of obvious necessity that the Guards attached to running trains should wear a distinguishing uniform, as it is with them that travellers once entering a train have to deal, and it exhibits a very lax Traffic discipline if these men are ever allowed to appear on duty without their uniform or otherwise than clean and neat. The same remark applies to both Platform Police and Porters, whose duties are to attend on the Public.

18. In compliance with the wishes of His Excellency in Council an attempt will be made to dress the Station Masters in uniform, but it must not be forgotten that the cost of clothing Officials of the social standing of Station Masters, especially Europeans, is considerable, nor is it advisable that their attention should be distracted by petty complaints at a time when their first duty is to clear the trains through their respective Stations. Practically, with rare exceptions, local complaints alone need be laid before Station Masters, and, as a rule, travellers frequenting any particular Station will be able to identify the Station Master and his assistants.

19. The subject of a suitable uniform for Station Masters will be further considered by the Inspector in communication with the Railway Officers.

20. It has been suggested that a book should be kept open in the Waiting Room of every large Railway Station in which travellers may be invited to record their complaints. The Lieutenant-Governor has directed that this plan be tried experimentally at one or more of the halting Stations of the East Indian Railway.

21. As to the accommodation of Native passengers at Stations, the Lieutenant-Governor concurs with the Consulting Engineer in the opinion that the first essential is to provide latrines and urinaries for the through travellers who are now locked up in the carriages at the mercy of the Platform Police, and to make certain that facilities are afforded for bringing these necessaries into use.

22. Ample privy accommodation will be provided at every Station where the passenger trains halt to change engines, and the doors of all carriages will be unlocked on arrival so as to admit of the indiscriminate use of the accommodation. The building itself will be a cul de sac, and thus the chief objection which has been raised by the Company's Officers against allowing Native passengers to leave the carriages without giving up their tickets will be obviated, and the halt must be sufficiently long to admit of the mass of travellers being collected and re-seated.

23. For Natives giving up their tickets and leaving the platform no special arrangement is required; but for the accommodation of Native travellers waiting for trains, it has been decided by the Railway Officers, in consultation with the Consulting Engineer, to erect an open building in rear of the Station, adjacent but detached, in lieu of the ordinary platform Waiting Room, as crowding will thereby be avoided and the habits of the masses will not inconvenience the general public by crowding the already hot and confined area of the Station building.

24. A difference of opinion between the Civil Authorities and the Consulting Engineer on the subject of reserved Serai accommodation for Native travellers has necessitated a personal inquiry by the Inspector, who is now on tour, and his report must be awaited before any definite orders can be issued for the construction of Serais at the expense of Government or of the local communities.

25. The only Terminal Station in Bengal which is susceptible of immediate improvement in respect to the regular and orderly supply of hackney carriages is the Armenian Ghât Station of the East Indian Railway. A special report has been made by the Inspector, and his suggestions are being carried into effect.

26. The attention of the Traffic Department of the East Indian Railway has also been especially called to the discreditable way in which coolies are allowed to ply for hire on the Company's platforms and steam ferries, and the Inspector is now in personal communication with the Traffic Manager with a view to enforce more attention to these minor matters of convenience, the attention to, or neglect of, which discredit the Department in the public estimation.

27. Lastly, in reply to the 7th paragraph of your Circular No. 13R., I am instructed by the Lieutenant-Governor to state that paragraph 18 of the general Regulations of the Company extracted in the margin would seem to provide sufficiently for one point if an adequate fine is duly enforced by the Company for every breach of the rule; and similarly the second point can be met if a rule be now added to the effect that the Train Guards will be held responsible if excess passengers of any class are found travelling in any compartment of a carriage, the regulation number being printed up inside as a warning to travellers.

18. Every person receiving uniform must wear it on duty clean and neat, and if any article of dress, tools, or other things provided by the Company shall have been improperly used or damaged, the person receiving it will be required to make it good. On leaving the Company's service each article of dress, tools, or other things which have been supplied must be delivered up.

28. The Lieutenant-Governor has no reason to suppose that the Company's Officers are indifferent to these matters, and hopes that a sufficient remedy will be found by keeping the condition of the Traffic Department constantly before the public in the periodical reports of the Inspector, who has special instructions to accord courteous and punctual replies to all references.

Note by MAJOR J. HOVENDEN, R. E., Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government of Bengal, Railway Department, on the subject of the present state of the Lower Division of the East Indian Railway with reference to the several points touched on in Circular No. 13 of 1864 from the Government of India,—(No. 227, dated the 23rd February 1865.)

ALTHOUGH my duties as Inspector are supposed to have commenced from the 1st of January, I have not yet been able to make a detailed inspection of the whole line.

The Officer appointed to relieve me from my Office duties did not join until the 10th of January and, as the Government of India had pressed for an immediate report on the state of the line with regard to the points touched on in Circular No. 13 of 1864, it was deemed advisable that I should go over the Lower Division and collect the information urgently called for.

This Note gives the information called for and will be followed early in April by the detailed Inspection Report. I now proceed to notice the different points touched on in the Circular.

OVERCROWDING 3RD CLASS CARRIAGES.

On my journey I watched my own train narrowly and I examined all the trains which we met, and I am happy to be able to report that in no case did I find a 3rd class carriage with more than the authorized number of passengers in it. At Allahabad I discussed the subject with Major Drummond, the Consulting Engineer to Government, North-Western Provinces. Major Drummond informed me that he also has made a practice of counting the passengers in 3rd class carriages and that, as a general rule, he has not found more than the proper complement of passengers in each carriage.

The overcrowding of 3rd class carriages has become a popular cry, and I have no hesitation in saying that it is greatly exaggerated.

It cannot be denied that on particular occasions the carriages are overcrowded to a dangerous extent and the practice must be put a stop to at all hazards; but this overcrowding is caused not by any deficiency in accommodation for the ordinary traffic, but by sudden rushes of people to bathe at some particular Ghât or to worship at some particular shrine on a certain day. Of course arrangements are made as far as possible, and the Company must be required to provide carriages for pilgrims on certain well known occasions, such as the Magh Mela at Allahabad. There are also many other local festivals which the Traffic Department may fairly be expected to foresee and provide for within remunerative limits. I have myself seen the carriages overcrowded on such occasions, and I have seen men forced into a carriage to enable the Guard to close the door and start the train; but I must say that I have more often seen the Station Master and his assistants doing their best to keep the crowd from getting into the carriages.

It may be well to consider what means might be taken to alleviate this evil, for I fear that it will be almost impossible to put an entire stop to the overcrowding of carriages so long as masses of pilgrims require to be carried by rail to the same spot at the same time.

District Officers should, I think, be instructed to warn the Company of any expected increases to the local passenger traffic on account of fairs or religious festivals, so as to allow the Traffic Manager to make arrangements, as far as possible, for providing increased accommodation.

It will, however, hardly be possible at present to provide the full accommodation required on some of these occasions, but by the end of this year we may hope that the Company will have as much rolling-stock as can be used with safety on the line, as carriages are still being built, and the expected opening of the Allahabad Jumna Bridge in October may be fairly reckoned on as an increase of 20 per cent. of carrying power.

Even when we have the rolling-stock, this extra passenger traffic will have to be carried by special trains, and it must not be forgotten that special trains are by no means run without danger. The perils of excursion trains are proverbial in England, and they are not likely to be less unsafe on a single line like the East Indian, where the traffic has so nearly approached the limit of what can be carried with safety.

One obvious remedy is the doubling of the line, but if this is not to be done, I believe that a change in the form of the rolling-stock would greatly modify the evils complained of. I cannot help thinking that the introduction of a 4th class to be carried in two-storied carriages would be a great advantage. These carriages cost but little more than the present 3rd class carriages, and only weigh 1½ tons more, while they can carry nearly twice as many people.

The weight of the passengers carried is trifling when compared with that of the carriage, and the introduction of these carriages would go far to diminish the necessity for special trains.

The weight of the present 3rd class carriage is 7 tons, and it carries fifty-two passengers, while the weight of the double-storied carriage, which carries 100 persons, is 8½ tons.

The cost of the two carriages being respectively Rupees 3,000 and Rupees 3,300, the difference in cost is so small as not to be worth considering. The present form of carriage is, it is true, somewhat lighter than the one proposed, but the advantage possessed by the latter in case of a sudden influx of passengers is, I think, more than an equivalent for this.

For example, to carry 500 passengers we have—

Present System.	Tons.	Proposed System.	Tons.
10 Carriages, at 7 tons ...	70	10 Carriages, at 8½ tons ...	85
500 Passengers, at 1 cwt....	25	500 Passengers, at ¼ cwt. ...	25
Weight of train, Tons	95	Weight of train, Tons	110

This gives 15 tons in favor of the present system, but if it becomes suddenly necessary to pick up 500 more passengers, we have—

Present System.	Tons.	Proposed System.	Tons.
Original weight of train ...	95	Original weight of train ...	110
10 Extra carriages ...	70	500 Passengers ...	25
500 Passengers	25	Total ...	135
Total ...	190

an advantage in case of emergency which, I think, more than compensates for the trifling extra weight of the carriage.

The objections raised to this carriage are—

1*st*.—That the centre of gravity in these carriages is raised somewhat more than in the ordinary carriages, and they are, therefore, more liable to oscillation and more apt to run off the line.

2*nd*.—In case of a bad accident if one of these carriages should be crumpled up between two others, or should be sent rolling down a steep bank, the loss of life would be very much greater than if the same thing happened to one of the present 3rd class carriages.

To the first objection I attach but little importance. The centre of gravity of these carriages is raised somewhat higher than that of ordinary 3rd class carriages, but not to any great extent, or, at all events, not enough to affect a carriage on a 5′ 6″ gauge at the speed attained by the East Indian Railway.

The second objection is a perfectly valid one, but accidents of the class alluded to so seldom occur that I do not look on the additional risk to passengers as very great.

It is impossible to shut ones eyes to the fact that every large and unusual increase to the passenger traffic is an element of danger to the persons carried. The only question is how the risk can be reduced to a minimum. In my own opinion it is less dangerous to use two-storied carriages than to run special trains.

In obedience to the orders of the Government of India, the number of passengers which it is intended to contain is painted legibly in each carriage both in English and Bengalee. To ensure the order being absolutely carried out it would, I presume, be necessary to add a clause to the Act making it penal to put a greater number of persons than the one notified into the carriage.

The Traffic Manager also proposes entirely to divide off the compartments of the 3rd class carriages instead of leaving them open as at present. This will materially tend to check crowding.

Before leaving this part of the subject, I would beg most earnestly to make two recommendations on behalf of 3rd class passengers—

(1.) One or more compartments should be set aside in every train for the sole use of respectable native women. I would propose a small increase, say of one-half, to the usual fare for this accommodation to protect the Company from loss, as, in many cases, these compartments would run empty; moreover, I am certain that no respectable Native of India, having the means, would grudge a small extra payment for such accommodation, nor would he blame the Company for not giving it if he had not the means of paying for it.

(2.) Every passenger carriage, without exception, should be efficiently lighted up at night. The want of lamps is, I think, a real hardship to 3rd class passengers, and one that should be remedied at once.

Uniform for Officials.

The time of the Traffic Manager and his assistants has been so entirely occupied in simply keeping the line open during the late press of traffic that the orders laid down by the Government of India on this subject have not yet been carried out in their integrity. Uniforms are, however, being made up and it is expected that all arrangements will shortly be completed. The actual state of affairs is as follows :—

Station Masters.—Uniforms are being made up for Native Station Masters, but there is a difficulty with regard to the highly paid Station Masters at the first class Stations, as these men object to wearing uniform. If the Government consider it essential, the order will of course be carried out. The cases, however, in which a passenger actually requires to be able to identify the Station Master are extremely rare, and, if such a necessity should arise, the Guard of the train will always point him out. Unless the Government consider it actually a necessity for the good of the public, I would submit that it would be better not to give this cause of discontent to an intelligent and hard-working body of men. Guards have all been supplied with uniform, and any Guard detected out of uniform when on duty will be fined.

Company's Porters.—At a few Stations these men are in uniform. Uniform is being made up and will be supplied to all Stations.

Porters.—Arrangements are being made for a supply of authorized Porters at the main Stations; these men will be supplied with a distinctive turban and a brass badge for the arm.

Accommodation for Native Passengers at the various Stations.

The orders of the Lieutenant-Governor have been passed on this subject and are being carried into effect.

Refreshments for Native passengers.—At all the large Stations, where demand is large enough to make it lucrative, hawkers of milk, sweatmeats, parched grain, &c., come on to the platform to meet each train. No regular shops exist for the sale of substantial food, nor, as far as my experience goes, are they required.

NATIVE REST-HOUSES.

An approved plan of a Native Rest-house with suitable privy accommodation has just been completed and will be circulated to the Civil Authorities, who must decide the amount of accommodation required at the several Stations.

TERMINAL STATIONS.

The Civil Authorities have been invited to co-operate with the Railway Authorities in carrying out the orders of Government on this point.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

A detailed report on this subject will be forwarded early in April. I am going slowly up the line with the Traffic Manager and will submit my first quarterly report as soon as I return.

Note by MAJOR J. HOVENDEN, Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government of Bengal, Railway Department, on the subject of the present state of the Eastern Bengal Railway with reference to the several points touched on in Circular No 13 of 1864 from the Government of India,—(No. 318, dated the 14th March 1865.)

CIRCULAR No. 13 from the Government of India was discussed with the Agent of this Company at a Meeting held on the 30th of September 1864, when it was decided that the Report of the Sanitary Committee, then sitting, should be awaited, when the Agent would be in a position to reply generally to the various points noted in the Circular.

The Report of the Committee was sent to the Agent about two months ago, but no reply has been received from that gentleman.

The Consulting Engineer directed me, in his letter No. 270, dated 3rd March, to proceed up the line and report what the present state of affairs was in respect to that Circular. I inspected the line on the 10th of March.

Overcrowding of Carriages.—I carefully watched the trains by which I travelled up and down and inspected all the trains we met. I saw no sign of overcrowding; in fact I may safely say that I did not see a carriage during the whole day which was more than half full. The order, however, about painting on each carriage the number of passengers which it is intended to contain has not been carried out.

There appears to be some misunderstanding as to the amount of accommodation to which passengers are entitled. There are four distinct classes of passenger accommodation provided on this Railway. Third class passengers travel in carriages provided with seats and venetians, and each carriage is intended to hold 52 persons. The 4th class is intended for the very poorest class who can only afford the minimum fare. These persons travel in carriages which are covered, but not provided with seats or venetians. In fact the only accommodation it is intended they should have is sufficient room to sit down on the floor of the carriage. The number of passengers authorized for each 4th class carriage is 75. The Magistrate of Barrackpore, being under the impression that 50 was the complement for a 4th class carriage, lately reported to His Honor, as a gross case of crowding, that he had found 70 persons in one carriage. I went down to Sealdah and put 75 full grown men into one of these carriages and told them to sit down. I then got into the carriage and found not only that each man was sitting down without interfering with his neighbour, but that I could easily have put in 10 more men. I have reported that I do not consider this number excessive.

Uniform for Officials.—The Guards, Policemen, and Khalassies on this line are provided with uniforms; no other persons connected with the line wear it.

The Station Masters need not, I think, be compelled to wear uniform on a short line like this, but I think the Porters ought to be supplied with badges.

Accommodation for Native passengers at the various Stations.—At Sealdah there is a magnificent hall in addition to a covered platform, which affords ample waiting accommodation for all classes.

At Kooshteah the hall has been turned into a refreshment room, but the covered platform affords ample and comfortable accommodation.

At Barrackpore the state of affairs is the same.

At the 3rd class Stations—Kanchraparah, Ranaghat, &c—ample accommodation is provided for waiting rooms for all classes, but it was found that these were never used and they are now locked up. They are, however, available at any moment, if required, except at Buggoolah, where the Station Master is now occupying the 3rd class waiting hall as a residence.

At all these Stations there are two privies and five urinaries. These were clean on the occasion of my visit, and the accommodation is, in my opinion, ample. The only Stations where through passengers could make use of such accommodation is at Buggoolah, where the trains stop for ten minutes. Here the Agent is prepared to construct a large latrine as recommended by the Sanitary Committee, but I would submit that the expenditure of a large sum for such a purpose on a line on which the through journey only lasts five hours is more a matter of sentiment than of actual necessity.

The 4th class Stations—Dum-Dum, Sodepore, Bailgurriah, &c.—are mere sheds for the Ticket Office, and no accommodation for passengers is provided.

Native Refreshments.—There are no stalls for the sale of these at any of the Stations, but hawkers of sweetmeats, pawn, &c., are to be found on the platforms of almost all. Bheesties with mussucks are in attendance on the platforms of all but 4th class Stations.

There are no Seraies at any of the Stations on the line.

The arrangements at the Terminal Stations are good. At Kooshteah there are, of course, no vehicles, and at Sealdah I have never experienced any difficulty myself in getting a hack carriage, nor have I heard any complaints on the subject.

Note by MAJOR J. HOVENDEN, R. E., Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government of Bengal, Railway Department, on the subject of the arrangements for Hack Carriages at Armenian Ghât and Sealdah Stations,—(No. 322, dated the 14th March 1865.)

WITH reference to Consulting Engineer's Memorandum No. 270, dated 3rd March, I have to report that I placed myself in communication with Mr. Schalch, the Chairman of the Justices, and Mr. Batchelor, the Traffic Manager, East Indian Railway, on the subject of the best arrangements for supplying and marshalling the hack carriages at the Armenian Ghât Station. I submit for orders the plan which has been approved of by both these gentlemen and myself.

It is proposed to build at the south end of the present Station and at right angles to it a shed which will contain a raised foot-path and a road sufficiently wide to accommodate two rows of carriages. Beyond the shed will be a second road bounded on the north side by the shed wall and on the south by a strong paling. Beyond the paling will be a paved cab stand on which the hack carriages will be arranged in a row with the horses' heads facing to the south.

Private carriages and a limited number of cabs will be admitted into the shed before the arrival of each train. When more cabs are wanted, the first cab will leave the stand, enter the enclosed road at the east end and leave it by a gate at the west end of the shed. The driver will then pick up his fare and leave the shed at the east end. No carriage will, under any circumstances, be be allowed to enter the shed by the eastern gate.

We propose that the Railway Company should construct the shed and boundary paling for the outer road and metal the road within the shed (the cost of which will be about Rs. 11,000) and the Municipality should metal the outer road and cab stand. The Traffic Manager is prepared to make all arrangements as soon as the cabs have turned into the outer road and the Commissioner of Police agrees to take charge of the cab stand.

At Sealdah the arrangements are very good and I do not think that any interference is required.

I submit a plan and section of the proposed arrangement at Armenian Ghât.

Note by MAJOR J. HOVENDEN, R. E., Deputy Consulting Engineer to Government of Bengal, Railway Department on the subject of the additions suggested to Section 29 of Act XVIII. of 1854,—(No. 324, dated the 15th March 1865.)

WITH reference to Consulting Engineer's Memorandum No. 270 of March 3rd, I have asked the opinion of the Agents of the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways on the subject of adding rules for preventing the crowding of carriages and compelling Railway Officials to wear uniform to Section 29 of Act XVIII. of 1854.

I have obtained no definite opinion on the subject as yet from Mr. Prestage, who is, I understand, going to send in his views in writing, but I have discussed the matter fully with Mr Stephenson.

Mr. Stephenson thinks, and I quite agree with him, that these rules should be added to the Bye-laws of the Company and not inserted into the body of the Act.

If the Rules form part of the Bye-laws, the offenders aginst them can be punished by the Company if there are authenticated complaints. If they formed part of the Act a breach of them would be actionable; but I doubt if this would be of much practical advantage to the public. A passenger from Allahabad to Calcutta might have his carriage crowded to suffocation between Benares and Patna, and yet he would not easily prove his case on arrival at Calcutta. Moreover, in such cases the action would lie against the Company, and any damages awarded would be paid out of Revenue, so that in fact Government and not the offending Railway servant would be the party punished. The only safe-guard against crowding is, as far as I can see, that now being adopted on the East Indian Railway, viz. the division of every carriage into a number of small compartments which have no communication with one another.

Papers relating to a Newspaper Report of an alleged Case of Railway Mismanagement.

Office Memorandum from A. P. HOWELL, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, —(No. 2149, dated the 6th March 1865.)

THE undersigned is directed to draw the attention of the Secretary in the Public Works Department to the following Extract from the "Report on Native Papers for the week ending "the 18th of February 1865," taken from the Som Prokash of the 13th idem, and referring to a case of alleged mismanagement on the part of the East Indian Railway Officials.

"DOES no person's authority extend to the East Indian Railway? On the 30th ultimo there were so many passengers for the 5-40 P. M. train that about three hundred had to be left behind, who were sent off afterwards by a special train as far as Pundooah. Many of these had paid their fares to Burdwan, yet the Pundooah Station Master demanded more money before he would allow them to proceed further, but they refused, alleging that they had paid the full fare at Calcutta. He accordingly confined them till the next day, when directions were sent up to allow them to proceed."

From CAPTAIN E. C. S. WILLIAMS, R. E., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Public Works Department,—(No. 229R., dated the 17th March 1865.)

FORWARDED to the Joint Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, Railway Branch, for early report. Original paper to be returned.

From J. GROGNIGAN, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Joint Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, Railway Branch,—(No. 1740, dated the 20th March 1865.)

I AM directed to forward, herewith, an Extract of a letter,* with a copy of its enclosure, from the Secretary to the Government of India, in the Home Department, and to request that you will be good enough to enquire regarding the alleged improper proceedings of the Station Master of Pundooah on the East Indian Railway, therein referred to, and communicate the result to this Department for report to the Government of India.

* No. 2150 dated 6th March 1865.

No. 373A. of 24th March 1865.

NOTE by Captain F. S. Taylor, Consulting Engineer to Government of Bengal, on the subject of the alleged case of misconduct by East Indian Railway Company, transferred to the Government of Bengal by Public Works Department Docket No. 229R., dated 17th March, for report.

THE abovementioned docket was received in my Office on the 20th instant.

After personal enquiry into the case the following are the only facts I can ascertain which may have served as the basis of the editorial on the Som Prokash Newspaper :—

On the 30th January the Traffic Department of the East Indian Railway had reason to expect a larger number of native passengers than usual and made arrangement to run a special at 5 P. M.; but as a sufficient number of passengers had not collected by that hour the ordinary 5-40 train was allowed to take out as many as it could accommodate, and the special was sent out afterwards as far as Hooghly, not Pundooah, a fact which shows how vague are the statements of the Newspaper.

The longer journey passengers were, as far as could be ascertained, all accommodated in the first train, but there is of course always a difficulty in accurately dividing the passengers in such case.

On arrival of the 5-40 train at Hooghly about a dozen passengers came to the Station Master producing tickets for Pundooah, Boinchee, Mymaree, and Sakteghur ; the Station Master informed them that they could proceed on by the night mail due at 10 P. M., and that the passengers for the other Stations at which the mail train does not call would be forwarded by next train in the morning.

Of these unfortunates some were passed on to Pundooah by the night mail, some to Mymaree next morning without re-booking ; the rest left the Station at once and were not heard of again.

The Station Master of Hooghly has been some six years in the service and bears an excellent character. The charge of confining passengers carries, I think, its own reputation on the face of it and the real damage is reduced to an insignificant figure.

I submit that the Company should pass an order to the Traffic Department to the effect that, in event of a similar unavoidable failure to meet their engagements, Station Masters be authorized to pay on the spot to applicants a reasonable sum as lodging money.

From CAPTAIN F. S. TAYLOR, R. E., Joint Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, Railway Branch, to the Agent, East Indian Railway Company,—(No. 376G., dated the 25th March 1865.)

I AM directed to forward copy of an Extract from the Som Prokash Native Newspaper relating to an alleged case of mismanagement on the East Indian Railway which has been forwarded to the Government of Bengal for report.

A report has after proper enquiry been submitted to the Government of India, and I am instructed by the Lieutenant-Governor to suggest that on similar cases of unavoidable failure on the part of the Railway Company to fulfil their engagements Station Masters may be authorized to pay on application to passengers detained at places other than their destination a reasonable sum as lodging money.

I have to request that the subject may be discussed with the Consulting Engineer at the next Official Meeting.

Of Domicile.

5. Succession to the immoveable property in British India of a person deceased is regulated by the law of British India wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. Succession to the moveable property of a person deceased is regulated by the law of the country in which he had his domicile at the time of his death.

Law regulating succession to a deceased person's immoveable and moveable property, respectively.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having his domicile in British India, dies in France, leaving moveable property in France, property in England, and property, both moveable and immoveable, in British India. The succession to the whole is regulated by the law of British India.

(b) A, an Englishman, having his domicile in France, dies in British India, and leaves property, both moveable and immoveable, in British India. The succession to the moveable property is regulated by the rules which govern in France the succession to the moveable property of an Englishman dying domiciled in France, and the succession to the immoveable property is regulated by the law of British India.

6. A person can only have one domicile for the purpose of succession to his moveable property.

One domicile only affects succession to moveables.

7. The domicile of origin of every person of legitimate birth is in the country in which, at the time of his birth, his father was domiciled; or, if he is a posthumous child, in the country in which his father was domiciled at the time of the father's death.

Domicile of origin of person of legitimate birth.

Illustration.

At the time of the birth of A his father was domiciled in England. A's domicile of origin is in England, whatever may be the country in which he was born.

8. The domicile of origin of an illegitimate child is in the country in which, at the time of his birth, his mother was domiciled.

Domicile of origin of illegitimate child.

9. The domicile of origin prevails until a new domicile has been acquired.

Continuance of domicile of origin.

10. A man acquires a new domicile by taking up his fixed habitation in a country which is not that of his domicile of origin.

Acquisition of new domicile.

Explanation.—A man is not to be considered as having taken up his fixed habitation in British India merely by reason of his residing there in Her Majesty's Civil or Military Service, or in the exercise of any profession or calling.

Illustrations.

(a) A, whose domicile of origin is in England, proceeds to British India, where he settles as a Barrister or a Merchant, intending to reside there during the remainder of his life. His domicile is now in British India.

(b) A, whose domicile is in England, goes to Austria and enters the Austrian service, intending to remain in that service. A has acquired a domicile in Austria.

(c) A, whose domicile of origin is in France, comes to reside in British India under an engagement with the British Indian Government for a certain number of years. It is his intention to return to France at the end of that period. He does not acquire a domicile in British India.

(d) A, whose domicile is in England, goes to reside in British India for the purpose of winding up the affairs of a partnership which has been dissolved, and with the intention of returning to England as soon as that purpose is accomplished. He does not by such residence acquire a domicile in British India however long the residence may last.

(e) A having gone to reside in British India under the circumstances mentioned in the last preceding illustration, afterwards alters his intention and takes up his fixed habitation in British India. A has acquired a domicile in British India.

(f) A, whose domicile is in the French Settlement of Chandernagore, is compelled by political events to take refuge in Calcutta, and resides in Calcutta for many years in the hope of such political changes as may enable him to return with safety to Chandernagore. He does not by such residence acquire a domicile in British India.

(g) A, having come to Calcutta under the circumstances stated in the last preceding illustration, continues to reside there after such political changes have occurred as would enable him to return with safety to Chandernagore, and he intends that his residence in Calcutta shall be permanent. A has acquired a domicile in British India.

Special mode of acquiring domicile in British India.

11. Any person may acquire a domicile in British India by making and depositing in some Office in British India (to be fixed by the Local Government) a declaration in writing under his hand of his desire to acquire such domicile, provided that he shall have been resident in British India for one year immediately preceding the time of his making such declaration.

Domicile not acquired by residence in a country merely as the representative of a foreign Government, or by residence with him as part of his family or as a servant.

12. A person who is appointed by the Government of one country to be its ambassador, consul, or other representative in another country does not acquire a domicile in the latter country by reason only of residing there in pursuance of his appointment; nor does any other person acquire such domicile by reason only of residing with him as part of his family or as a servant.

Continuance of new domicile.

13. A new domicile continues until the former domicile has been resumed, or another has been acquired.

Minor's domicile.

14. The domicile of a minor follows the domicile of the parent from whom he derived his domicile of origin.

Exception.—The domicile of a minor does not change with that of his parent if the minor is married or holds any office or employment in the service of Her Majesty, or has set up, with the consent of the parent, in any distinct business.

Domicile acquired by a woman on marriage.

15. By marriage a woman acquires the domicile of her husband if she had not the same domicile before.

Wife's domicile during marriage.

16. The wife's domicile during the marriage follows the domicile of her husband.

Exception.—The wife's domicile no longer follows that of her husband if they be separated by the sentence of a competent Court, or if the husband is undergoing a sentence of transportation.

Except in cases stated, minor cannot acquire a new domicile.

17. Except in the cases above provided for, a person cannot during minority acquire a new domicile.

Lunatic's acquisition of new domicile.

18. An insane person cannot acquire a new domicile in any other way than by his domicile following the domicile of another person.

Succession to a person's moveable property in British India in absence of proof of his domicile elsewhere.

19. If a man dies leaving moveable property in British India, in the absence of proof of any domicile elsewhere succession to the property is regulated by the law of British India.

Part III.

Of Consanguinity.

Kindred or consanguinity.

20. Kindred or consanguinity is the connexion or relation of persons descended from the same stock or common ancestor.

Lineal consanguinity.

21. Lineal consanguinity is that which subsists between two persons, one of whom is descended in a direct line from the other as between a man and his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, and so upwards in the direct ascending line; or between a man, his son, grandson, great-grandson, and so downwards in the direct descending line. Every generation constitutes a degree either ascending or descending. A man's father is related to him in the first degree, and so likewise is his son; his grandfather and grandson in the second degree; his great-grandfather and great-grandson in the third.

Collateral consanguinity.

22. Collateral consanguinity is that which subsists between two persons who are descended from the same stock or ancestor, but neither of whom is descended in a direct line from the other. For the purpose of ascertaining in what degree of kindred any collateral relative stands to a person deceased, it is proper to reckon upwards from the person deceased to the common stock, and then downwards to the collateral relative, allowing a degree for each person, both ascending and descending.

Persons held for purpose of succession to be similarly related to the deceased.

23. For the purpose of succession there is no distinction between those who are related to a person deceased through his father and those who are related to him through his mother; nor between those who are related to him by the full blood and those who are related to him by the half blood; nor between those who were actually born in his lifetime and those who, at the date of his death, were only conceived in the womb, but who have been subsequently born alive.

Mode of computing degrees of kindred.

24. In the annexed table of kindred the degrees are computed as far as the sixth, and are marked by numeral figures.

The person whose relatives are to be reckoned, and his cousin-german or first cousin are, as shewn in the table, related in the fourth degree, there being one degree of ascent to the father, and another to the common ancestor, the grandfather, and from him one of descent to the uncle and another to the cousin-german, making in all four degrees.

A grandson of the brother and a son of the uncle, i. e. a great nephew and a cousin-german, are in equal degree, being each four degrees removed.

A grandson of a cousin-german is in the same degree as the grandson of a great uncle, for they are both in the sixth degree of kindred.

TABLE OF CONSANGUINITY.

Of Intestacy.

25. A man is considered to die intestate in respect of all property of which he has not made a testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

As to what property a deceased person is considered to have died intestate.

Illustrations.

(a) A has left no Will. He has died intestate in respect of the whole of his property.

(b) A has left a Will whereby he has appointed B his executor; but the Will contains no other provisions. A has died intestate in respect of the distribution of his property.

(c) A has bequeathed his whole property for an illegal purpose. A has died intestate in respect of the distribution of his property.

(d) A has bequeathed 1,000*l* to B, and 1000*l* to the eldest son of C, and has made no other bequest, and has died leaving the sum of 2,000*l* and no other property. C died before A without having ever had a son. A has died intestate in respect of the distribution of 1,000*l*.

26. Such property devolves upon the wife or husband, or upon those who are of the kindred of the deceased, in the order and according to the rules herein prescribed.

Devolution of such property.

Explanation.—The widow is not entitled to the provision hereby made for her if, by a valid contract made before her marriage, she has been excluded from her distributive share of her husband's estate.

27. Where the intestate has left a widow, if he has also left any lineal descendants, one-third of his property shall belong to his widow, and the remaining two-thirds shall go to his lineal descendants according to the rules herein contained. If he has left no lineal descendant, but has left persons who are of kindred to him, one-half of his property shall belong to his widow, and the other half shall go to those who are of kindred to him in the order and according to the rules herein contained If he has left none who are of kindred to him, the whole of his property shall belong to his widow.

Where the intestate has left a widow and lineal descendants, or a widow and kindred only, or a widow and no kindred.

28. Where the intestate has left no widow, his property shall go to his lineal descendants or to those who are of kindred to him, not being lineal descendants, according to the rules herein contained; and if he has left none who are of kindred to him, it shall go to the Crown.

Where the intestate has left no widow, and where he has left no kindred.

Part V.

Of the Distribution of an Intestate's Property.

29. The rules for the distribution of the intestate's property (after deducting the widow's share, if he has left a widow) amongst his lineal descendants are as follows:—

Rules of distribution.

30. Where the intestate has left surviving him a child or children, but no more remote lineal descendant through a deceased child, the property shall belong to his surviving child, if there be only one, or shall be equally divided among all his surviving children.

Where the intestate has left a child or children only.

31. Where the intestate has not left surviving him any child, but has left a grandchild or grandchildren, and no more remote descendant through a deceased grandchild, the property shall belong to his surviving grandchild, if there be only one, or shall be equally divided among all his surviving grandchildren.

Where the intestate has left no child, but a grandchild or grandchildren

Illustrations.

(a) A has three children and no more, John, Mary, and Henry. They all die before the father, John leaving two children, Mary three, and Henry four. Afterwards A dies intestate, leaving those nine grandchildren and no descendant of any deceased grandchild. Each of his grandchildren shall have one-ninth.

(b) But if Henry has died leaving no child, then the whole is equally divided between the intestate's five grandchildren, the children of John and Mary.

(c) A has two children and no more, John and Mary. John dies before his father, leaving his wife pregnant. Then A dies, leaving Mary surviving him, and in due time a child of John is born. A's property is to be equally divided between Mary and such posthumous child.

Where the intestate has left only great-grandchildren or lineal descendants in a remoter degree.

33. If the intestate has left lineal descendants who do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to him, and the persons through whom the more remote are descended from him are dead, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as may correspond with the number of the lineal descendants of the intestate who either stood in the nearest degree of kindred to him at his decease, or, having been of the like degree of kindred to him, died before him, leaving lineal descendants who survived him; and one of such shares shall be allotted to each of the lineal descendants who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at his decease; and one of such shares shall be allotted in respect of each of such deceased lineal descendants; and the share allotted in respect of each of such deceased lineal descendants shall belong to his surviving child or children or more remote lineal descendants, as the case may be, such surviving child or children or more remote lineal descendants always taking the share which his or their parent or parents would have been entitled to respectively if such parent or parents had survived the intestate.

Where the intestate leaves lineal descendants not all in the same degree of kindred to him, and those through whom the more remote descend are dead

Illustrations.

(a) A had three children, John, Mary, and Henry; John died, leaving four children, and Mary died, leaving one, and Henry alone survived the father. On the death of A intestate, one third is allotted to Henry, one-third to John's four children, and the remaining third to Mary's one child.

(b) A left no child, but left eight grandchildren and two children of a deceased grandchild. The property is divided into nine parts, one of which is allotted to each grandchild, and the remaining one-ninth is equally divided between the two great-grandchildren.

(c) A has three children, John, Mary, and Henry. John dies leaving four children, and one of John's children dies leaving two children. Mary dies leaving one child. A afterwards dies intestate. One-third of his property is allotted to Henry; one-third to Mary's child; and one-third is divided into four parts, one of which is allotted to each of John's three surviving children, and the remaining part is equally divided between John's two grandchildren.

(b) Where the Intestate has left no lineal descendants

Rules of distribution where the intestate has left no lineal descendants.

35. If the intestate's father be living, he shall succeed to the property.

Where intestate's father is living.

36. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and there are also brothers or sisters of the intestate living, and there is no child living of any deceased brother or sister, the mother and each living brother or sister shall succeed to the property in equal shares.

Where intestate's father is dead, but his mother, brothers, and sisters are living.

Illustration.

A dies intestate, survived by his mother and two brothers of the full blood, John and Henry, and a sister Mary, who is the daughter of his mother, but not of his father. The mother takes one-fourth, each brother takes one-fourth, and Mary, the sister of half blood, takes one-fourth.

37. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and if any brother or sister, and the child or children of any brother or sister who may have died in the intestate's life-time are also living, then the mother and each living brother or sister, and the living child or children of each deceased brother or sister, shall be entitled to the property in equal shares, such children (if more than one) taking in equal shares only the shares which their respective parents would have taken if living at the intestate's death.

Where intestate's father is dead, and his mother, a brother or sister, and children of any deceased brother or sister are living.

Illustration.

A, the intestate, leaves his mother, his brothers John and Henry, and also one child of a deceased sister Mary, and two children of George, a deceased brother of the half blood, who was the son of his father but not of his mother. The mother takes one-fifth, John and Henry each take one-fifth, the child of Mary takes one-fifth, and the two children of George divide the remaining one-fifth equally between them.

38. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and the brothers and sisters are all dead, but all or any of them have left children who survived the intestate, the mother and the child or children of each deceased brother or sister shall be entitled to the property in equal shares, such children (if more than one) taking in equal shares only the share which their respective parents would have taken if living at the intestate's death.

Where intestate's father is dead and his mother and the children of any deceased brother or sister are living.

Illustration.

A, the intestate, leaves no brother or sister, but leaves his mother and one child of a deceased sister Mary, and two children of a deceased brother George. The mother takes one-third, the child of Mary takes one-third, and the children of George divide the remaining one-third equally between them.

39. If the intestate's father is dead, but the intestate's mother is living, and there is neither brother nor sister, nor child of any brother or sister of the intestate, the property shall belong to the mother.

Where intestate's father is dead, but his mother is living and there is no brother nor sister nor nephew.

40. Where the intestate has left neither lineal descendant nor father nor mother, the property is divided equally between his brothers and sisters and the child or children of such of them as may have died before him, such children (if more than one) taking in equal shares only the share which their respective parents would have taken if living at the intestate's death.

Where intestate has left neither lineal descendant nor father nor mother.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the intestate, has left a grandfather and a grandmother, and no other relative standing in the same or a nearer degree of kindred to him. They, being in the second degree, will be entitled to the property in equal shares, exclusive of any uncle or aunt of the intestate, uncles and aunts being only in the third degree.

(b) A, the intestate, has left a great-grandfather or great-grandmother, and uncles and aunts, and no other relative standing in the same or a nearer degree of kindred to him. All of these being in the third degree shall take equal shares.

(c) A, the intestate, left a great-grandfather, an uncle, and a nephew, but no relative standing in a nearer degree of kindred to him. All of these being in the third degree shall take equal shares.

(d) Ten children of one brother or sister of the intestate, and one child of another brother or sister of the intestate, constitute the class of relatives of the nearest degree of kindred to him. They shall each take one-eleventh of the property.

42. Where a distributive share in the property of a person who has died intestate shall be claimed by a child, or any descendant of a child of such person, no money or other property which the intestate may during his life have paid, given, or settled to or for the advancement of the child by whom or by whose descendant the claim is made, shall be taken into account in estimating such distributive share.

Children's advancements not to be brought into hotchpot.

Part VI.

Of the Effect of Marriage and Marriage Settlements on Property.

43. The husband surviving his wife has the same rights in respect of her property, if she die intestate, as the widow has in respect of her husband's property, if he die intestate.

Rights of widower and widow respectively.

44. If a person whose domicile is not in British India marries in British India a person whose domicile is in British India, neither party acquires by the marriage any rights in respect of any property of the other party not comprised in a settlement made previous to the marriage which he or she would not acquire thereby if both where domiciled in British India at the time of the marriage.

No rights to property not comprised in an antenuptial settlement acquired by marriage between a person domiciled and a person not domiciled in British India.

45. The property of a minor may be settled in contemplation of marriage, provided the settlement be made by the minor with the approbation of the minor's father, or if he be dead or absent from British India, with the approbation of the High Court.

Settlement of minor's property in contemplation of marriage.

Part VII.

Of Wills and Codicils.

Persons capable of making Wills.

46. Every person of sound mind and not a minor may dispose of his property by Will.

Explanation 1.—A married woman may dispose by Will of any property which she could alienate by her own act during her life.

Explanation 2.—Persons who are deaf, or dumb, or blind are not thereby incapacitated for making a Will if they are able to know what they do by it.

Explanation 3.—One who is ordinarily insane may make a Will during an interval in which he is of sound mind.

Explanation 4.—No person can make a Will while he is in such a state of mind, whether arising from drunkenness, or from illness, or from any other cause, that he does not know what he is doing.

Illustrations.

(a) A can perceive what is going on in his immediate neighbourhood, and can answer familiar questions, but has not a competent understanding as to the nature of his property, or the persons who are of kindred to him, or in whose favor it would be proper that he should make his Will. A cannot make a valid Will.

(b) A executes an instrument purporting to be his Will, but he does not understand the nature of the instrument nor the effect of its provisions. This instrument is not a valid Will.

(c) A being very feeble and debilitated, but capable of exercising a judgment as to the proper mode of disposing of his property, makes his Will. This is a valid Will.

Testamentary guardian.

47. A father, whatever his age may be, may by Will appoint a guardian or guardians for his child during minority.

Will obtained by fraud, coercion or importunity.

48. A Will or any part of a Will the making of which has been caused by fraud or coercion, or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator, is void.

Illustrations.

(a) A falsely and knowingly represents to the testator that the testator's only child is dead, or that he has done some undutiful act, and thereby induces the testator to make a Will in his, A's favor; such Will has been obtained by fraud and is invalid.

(b) A by fraud and deception prevails upon the testator to bequeath a legacy to him. The bequest is void.

(c) A, being a prisoner by lawful authority, makes his Will. The Will is not invalid by reason of the imprisonment.

(d) A threatens to shoot B. or to burn his house, or to cause him to be arrested on a criminal charge, unless he makes a bequest in favor of C. B in consequence makes a bequest in favor of C. The bequest is void, the making of it having been caused by coercion.

(e) A being of sufficient intellect, if undisturbed by the influence of others, to make a Will, yet being so much under the control of B. that he is not a free agent, makes a Will dictated by B. It appears that he would not have executed the Will but for fear of B. The Will is invalid.

(f) A being in so feeble a state of health as to be unable to resist importunity, is pressed by B. to make a Will of a certain purport, and does so merely to purchase peace, and in submission to B. The Will is invalid.

(g) A being in such a state of health as to be capable of exercising his own judgment and volition, B uses urgent intercession and persuasion with him to induce him to make a Will of a certain purport. A, in consequence of the intercession and persuasion, but in the free exercise of his judgment and volition, makes his Will in the manner recommended by B. The Will is not rendered invalid by the intercession and persuasion of B.

(h) A with a view to obtaining a legacy from B, pays him attention and flatters him, and thereby produces in him a capricious partiality to A. B, in consequence of such attention and flattery, makes his Will, by which he leaves a legacy to A. The bequest is not rendered invalid by the attention and flattery of A.

Will may be revoked or altered.

49. A Will is liable to be revoked or altered by the maker of it at any time when he is competent to dispose of his property by Will.

Part VIII.

Of the Execution of unprivileged Wills.

Execution of unprivileged Wills.

50. Every testator, not being a soldier employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or a mariner at sea, must execute his Will according to the following rules:—

First.—The testator shall sign or shall affix his mark to the Will, or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction.

Second.—The signature or mark of the testator or the signature of the person signing for him shall be so placed that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a Will.

Third.—The Will shall be attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom must have seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the Will, or have seen some other person sign the Will in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or have received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses must sign the Will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary.

Incorporation of papers by reference.

51. If a testator, in a Will or Codicil duly attested, refers to any other document than actually written, as expressing any part of his intentions, such document shall be considered as forming a part of the Will or Codicil in which it is referred to.

Part IX.

Of Privileged Wills.

Privileged Will.

52. Any soldier being employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or any mariner being at sea, may, if he has completed the age of eighteen years, dispose of his property by a Will made as is mentioned in the fifty-third Section. Such Wills are called privileged Wills.

Illustrations.

(a) A, the surgeon of a regiment, is actually employed in an expedition. He is a soldier actually employed in an expedition and can make a privileged Will.

(b) A is at sea in a merchant ship, of which he is the purser. He is a mariner, and being at sea can make a privileged Will.

(c) A, a soldier serving in the field against insurgents, is a soldier engaged in actual warfare, and as such can make a privileged Will.

(d) A, a mariner of a ship in the course of a voyage, is temporarily on shore while she is lying in harbour. He is, in the sense of the words used in this clause, a mariner at sea and can make a privileged Will.

(e) A, an admiral who commands a naval force, but who lives on shore, and only occasionally goes on board his ship, is not considered as at sea and cannot make a privileged Will.

(f) A, a mariner serving on a Military expedition, but not being at sea, is considered as a soldier and can make a privileged Will.

53. Privileged Wills may be in writing, or may be made by word of mouth. The execution of them shall be governed by the following rules:—

Mode of making, and rules for executing privileged Wills.

First.—The Will may be written wholly by the testator with his own hand. In such case it need not be signed nor attested.

Second.—It may be written wholly or in part by another person and signed by the testator. In such case it need not be attested.

Third.—If the instrument purporting to be a Will is written wholly or in part by another person, and is not signed by the testator, it shall be considered to be his Will, if it be shewn that it was written by the testator's directions, or that he recognized it as his Will. If it appear, on the face of the instrument, that the execution of it in the manner intended by him was not completed, the instrument shall not, by reason of that circumstance, be invalid, provided that his non-execution of it can be reasonably ascribed to some cause other than the abandonment of the testamentary intentions expressed in the instrument.

Fourth.—If the soldier or mariner shall have written instructions for the preparation of his Will, but shall have died before it could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his Will.

Fifth.—If the soldier or mariner shall, in the presence of two witnesses, have given verbal instructions for the preparation of his Will, and they shall have been reduced into writing in his life-time, but he shall have died before the instrument could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his Will although they may not have been reduced into writing in his presence, nor read over to him.

Sixth.—Such soldier or mariner as aforesaid may make a Will by word of mouth by declaring his intentions before two witnesses present at the same time.

Seventh.—A Will made by word of mouth shall be null at the expiration of one month after the testator shall have ceased to be entitled to make a privileged Will.

Part X.

Of the Attestation, Revocation, Alteration, and Revival of Wills.

54. A Will shall not be considered as insufficiently attested by reason of any benefit thereby given, either by way of bequest or by way of appointment, to any person attesting it, or to his or her wife or husband; but the bequest or appointment shall be void so far as concerns the persons so attesting, or the wife or husband of such person, or any person claiming under either of them.

Effect of gift to attesting witness.

Explanation.—A legatee under a Will does not lose his legacy by attesting a Codicil which confirms the Will.

55. No person, by reason of interest in, or of his being an executor of, a Will is disqualified as a witness to prove the execution of the Will or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof.

Witness not disqualified by interest or by being executor.

56. Every Will shall be revoked by the marriage of the maker, except a Will made in exercise of a power of appointment, when the property over which the power of appointment is exercised would not, in default of such appointment, pass to his or her executor, or administrator, or to the person entitled in case of intestacy.

Revocation of Will by testator's marriage.

Explanation.—Where a man is invested with power to determine in the disposition of property of which he is not the owner, he is said to have power to appoint such property.

Power of appointment defined.

57. No unprivileged Will or Codicil, nor any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than by marriage, or by another Will or Codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which an unprivileged Will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Revocation of unprivileged Will or Codicil.

Illustrations.

(a) A has made an unprivileged Will; afterwards A makes another unprivileged Will which purports to revoke the first. This is a revocation.

(b) A has made an unprivileged Will. Afterwards A, being entitled to make a privileged Will, makes a privileged Will, which purports to revoke his unprivileged Will. This is a revocation.

58. No obliteration, interlineation, or other alteration made in any unprivileged Will after the execution thereof shall have any effect except so far as the words or meaning of the Will shall have been thereby rendered illegible or undiscernible, unless such alteration shall be executed in like manner as hereinbefore is required for the execution of the Will, save that the Will, as so altered, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin or on some other part of the Will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of, or opposite to, a memorandum referring to, such alteration, and written at the end of some other part of the Will.

Effect of obliteration, interlineation, or alteration in unprivileged Will.

59. A privileged Will or Codicil may be revoked by the testator by an unprivileged Will or Codicil or by any act expressing an intention to revoke it, and accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged Will, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Revocation of privileged Will or Codicil.

Explanation.—In order to the revocation of a privileged Will or Codicil by an act accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged Will, it is not necessary that the testator should, at the time of doing that act, be in a situation which entitles him to make a privileged Will.

60. No unprivileged Will or Codicil, nor any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a Codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and shewing an intention to revive the same; and when any Will or Codicil which shall be partly revoked, and afterwards wholly revoked, shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shewn by the Will or Codicil.

Extent of revival of Will or Codicil partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked.

PART XI.

Of the Construction of Wills.

61. It is not necessary that any technical words or terms of art shall be used in a Will, but only that the wording shall be such that the intentions of the testator can be known therefrom.

Wording of Will.

62. For the purpose of determining questions as to what person or what property is denoted by any words used in a Will, a Court must inquire into every material fact relating to the persons who claim to be interested under such Will, the property which is claimed as the subject of disposition, the circumstances of the testator and of his family, and into every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words which the testator has used.

Enquiries to determine questions as to object or subject of Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A, by his Will, bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to his eldest son, or to his youngest grandchild, or to his cousin Mary. A Court may make inquiry in order to ascertain to what person the description in the Will applies.

(b) A, by his Will, leaves to B "his estate called Black Acre." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what is the subject-matter of the bequest, that is to say, what estate of the testator's is called Black Acre.

(c) A, by his Will, leaves to B "the estate which he purchased of C." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

63. Where the words used in the Will to designate or describe a legatee, or a class of legatees, sufficiently shew what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect. A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son, whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C." C has no legimitate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect although they are illegitimate.

(d) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "his seven children," and proceeding to enumerate them mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e) The testator having six grandchildren, makes a bequest to "his six grandchildren," and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names mentions one twice over, omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f) The testator bequeaths "1,000 Rupees to each of the three children of A." At the date of the Will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 Rupees.

64. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted it may be supplied by the context.

When words may be supplied.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred Rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred Rupees.

65. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the Will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of subject.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, but had no marsh lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous and the marsh lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b) The testator bequeaths to A "his zamíndárí of Rampore." He had an estate at Rampore, but it was a taluk and not a zamíndárí. The taluk passes by this bequest.

66. If the Will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this Section, any words which would be liable to rejection under the sixty-fifth Section are to be considered as struck out of the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b) A bequeaths to B "his marsh lands lying in L and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 beegahs of land." The testator had marsh lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the Will, and such of the testator's marsh lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

67. Where the words of the Will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications, one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to shew which of these applications was intended.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in case of latent ambiguity.

Illustrations.

(a) A man having two cousins of the name of Mary bequeaths a sum of money to "his cousin Mary." It appears that there are two persons, each answering the description in the Will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to shew which of the two applications was intended.

(b) A, by his Will, leaves to B "his estate called Sultánpur Khurd." It turns out that he had two estates called Sultánpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to shew which estate was intended.

68. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the Will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in cases of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a) A man has an aunt Caroline and a cousin Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his Will he bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "his aunt Caroline" and 1,000 Rupees to "his cousin Mary," and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 Rupees to "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." There is no person to whom the description given in the Will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to shew who was meant by "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under the seventy-sixth Section.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to , leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to shew what name the testator intended to insert.

(c) A bequeaths to B Rupees, or "his estate of ." Evidence is not admissible to shew what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

69. The meaning of any clause in a Will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other, and for this purpose a Codicil is to be considered as part of the Will.

Meaning of any clause to be collected from entire Will.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the death of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life, and after his decease in B, it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b) Where a testator having an estate, one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his Will bequeaths Black Acre to B, the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first, as if he had said. "I give Black Acre to B, and all the rest of my estate to A."

70. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the Will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear where it may be collected from the other words of the Will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

When words may be understood in a restricted sense, and when in a sense wider than usual.

Illustrations.

(a) A testator gives to A "his farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all his marsh lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh lands in L. The general words, "all his marsh lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including that portion of the farm which consists of marsh lands in L.

(b) The testator, a sailor on ship-board, bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons, and chest of clothes, and to his friend A, (a shipmate) his red box, clasp-knife, and all things not before bequeathed The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c) A, by his Will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures, and all other goods of whatever kind, and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

71. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings, according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other it can have none, the former is to be preferred.

Where a clause is open to two constructions, that which has some effect is to be preferred.

72. No part of a Will is to be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

No part of Will to be rejected if reasonable construction can be put on it.

73. If the same words occur in different parts of the same Will, they must be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense unless there appears an intention to the contrary.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of Will.

74. The intention of the testator is not to be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

Illustration.

The testator, by a Will made on his death-bed, bequeathed all his property to C D for life, and after his decease to a certain hospital. The intention of the testator cannot take effect to its full extent because the gift to the hospital is void under the hundred and fifth Section, but it shall take effect so far as regards the gift to C D.

75. Where two clauses or gifts in a Will are irreconcileable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator, by the first clause of his Will, leaves his estate of Rámnagar "to A," and by the last clause of his Will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b) If a man, at the commencement of his Will, gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

76. A Will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty.

Illustration.

If a testator says—"I bequeath goods to A;" or "I bequeath to A," or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in a Schedule," and no Schedule is found; or "I bequeath 'money,' 'wheat,' 'oil,' or the like," without saying how much, this is void.

77. The description contained in a Will of property the subject of gift shall, unless a contrary intention appear by the Will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

Words describing subject refer to property answering that description at testator's death.

78. Unless a contrary intention shall appear by the Will, a bequest of the estate of the testator shall be construed to include any property which he may have power to appoint by Will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power; and a bequest of property described in a general manner shall be construed to include any property to which such description may extend which he may have power to appoint by Will to any object he may think proper, and shall operate as an execution of such power.

Power of appointment executed by general bequest.

79. Where property is bequeathed to or for the benefit of such of certain objects as a specified person shall appoint, or for the benefit of certain objects in such proportions as a specified person shall appoint, and the Will does not provide for the event of no appointment being made; if the power given by the Will be not exercised, the property belongs to all the objects of the power in equal shares.

Implied gift to the objects of a power in default of appointment.

Illustration.

A, by his Will, bequeaths a fund to his wife for her life, and directs that at her death it shall be divided among his children in such proportions as she shall appoint. The widow dies without having made any appointment. The fund shall be divided equally among the children.

Bequest to "heirs," &c., of a particular person without qualifying terms.

80. Where a bequest is made to the "heirs," or "right heirs," or "relations," or "nearest relations," or "family," or "kindred," or "nearest of kin" or "next of kin," of a particular person, without any qualifying terms, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

Illustrations.

(a) A leaves his property "to his own nearest relations." The property goes to those who would be entitled to it if A had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(b) A bequeaths 10,000 Rupees "to B for his life, and after the death of B, to his own right heirs." The legacy after B's death belongs to those who would be entitled to it if it had formed part of A's unbequeathed property.

(c) A leaves his property to B, but if B dies before him, to B's next of kin. B dies before A, the property devolves as if it had belonged to B and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of such property.

(d) A leaves 10,000 Rupees "to B for his life, and after his decease to the heirs of C." The legacy goes as if it had belonged to C and he had died intestate, leaving assets for the payment of his debts independently of the legacy.

Bequest to "representatives," &c., of a particular person.

81. Where a bequest is made to the "representatives," or "legal representatives," or "personal representatives," or "executors or administrators" of a particular person, and the class so designated forms the direct and independent object of the bequest, the property bequeathed shall be distributed as if it had belonged to such person and he had died intestate in respect of it.

Illustration.

(a) A bequest is made to the "legal representatives of A." A has died intestate and insolvent. B is his administrator. B is entitled to receive the legacy, and shall apply it in the first place to the discharge of such part of A's debts as may remain unpaid; if there be any surplus, A shall pay it to those persons who at A's death would have been entitled to receive any property of A's which might remain after payment of his debts, or to the representatives of such persons.

Bequest without words of limitation.

82. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the Will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Bequest in the alternative.

83. Where property is bequeathed to a person, with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons;—if a contrary intention does not appear by the Will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy if he be alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he be then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made to A or to B. A survives the testator. B takes nothing.

(b) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the Will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the Will. The legacy goes to B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

(f) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. A and B survive the testator. B dies in A's lifetime. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

(g) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B or his heirs. B dies in the testator's lifetime. A survives the testator. Upon A's death the bequest to the heirs of B takes effect.

Effect of words describing a class added to a bequest to a person.

84. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons, but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequest is made—

to A and his children,
to A and his children by his present wife,
to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives,
to A and his personal representatives,
to A, his executors and administrators.

In each of these cases A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

(c) A bequest is made to A for life, and after his death to his issue. At the death of A the property belongs in equal shares to all persons who shall then answer the description of issue of A.

Bequest to a class of persons under a general description only.

85. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

Construction of terms.

86. The word "children" in a Will applies only to lineal descendants in the first degree; the word "grandchildren" applies only to lineal descendants in the second degree of the person whose "children," or "grandchildren," are spoken of; the words "nephews" and "nieces" apply only to children of brothers or sisters; the words "cousins" or "first cousins," or "cousins-german" apply only to children of brothers or of sisters of the father or mother of the person whose "cousins," or "first cousins," or "cousins-german" are spoken of; the words "first cousins once removed" apply only to children of cousins-german or to cousins-german of a parent of the person whose "first cousins once removed" are spoken of; the words "second cousins" apply only to grandchildren of brothers or of sisters of the grandfather or grandmother of the person whose "second cousins" are spoken of; the words

"issue" and "descendants" apply to all lineal descendants whatever of the person whose "issue" or "descendants" are spoken of. Words expressive of collateral relationship apply alike to relatives of full and of half blood. All words expressive of relationship apply to a child in the womb who is afterwards born alive.

Words expressing relationship denote only legitimate relatives, or failing such, relatives reputed legitimate.

87. In the absence of any intimation to the contrary in the Will, the term "child," "son," or "daughter," or any word which expresses relationship, is to be understood as denoting only a legitimate relative, or where there is no such legitimate relative, a person who has acquired, at the date of the Will, the reputation of being such relative.

Illustrations.

(a) A, having three children, B, C, and D, of whom B and C are legitimate and D is illegitimate, leaves his property to be equally divided among "his children." The property belongs to B and C in equal shares, to the exclusion of D.

(b) A, having a niece of illegitimate birth, who has acquired the reputation of being his niece, and having no legitimate niece, bequeaths a sum of money to his niece. The illegitimate niece is entitled to the legacy.

(c) A, having in his Will enumerated his children, and named as one of them B, who is illegitimate, leaves a legacy to "his said children." B will take a share in the legacy along with the legitimate children.

(d) A leaves a legacy to the "children of B." B is dead and has left none but illegitimate children. All those who had, at the date of the Will, acquired the reputation of being the children of B are objects of the gift.

(e) A bequeathed a legacy to "the children of B." B never had any legitimate child. C and D had, at the date of the Will, acquired the reputation of being children of B. After the date of the Will, and before the death of the testator, E and F were born and acquired the reputation of being children of B. Only C and D are objects of the bequest.

(f) A makes a bequest in favor of his child by a certain woman, not his wife. B had acquired at the date of the Will the reputation of being the child of A by the woman designated. B takes the legacy.

(g) A makes a bequest in favor of the child to be born of a woman who never becomes his wife. The bequest is void.

(h) A makes a bequest in favor of the child of which a certain woman, not married to him, is pregnant. The bequest is valid.

Rules of construction where a Will purports to make two bequests to the same person.

88. Where a Will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of, or in addition to, the first; if there is nothing in the Will to shew what he intended, the following rules shall prevail in determining the construction to be put upon the Will:—

First.—If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same Will, or in the Will and again in a Codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

Second.—Where one and the same Will or one and the same Codicil purports to make in two places a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

Third.—Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same Will, or in the same Codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

Fourth.—Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a Will and the other by a Codicil, or each by a different Codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In the four last rules the word Will does not include a Codicil.

Illustrations.

(a) A having ten shares, and no more, in the Bank of Bengal, made his Will, which contains, near its commencement, the words, "I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." After other bequests, the Will concludes with the words, "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Bank of Bengal.

(b) A having one diamond ring, which was given him by B, bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. A afterwards made a Codicil to his Will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond ring which was given to A by B.

(c) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and afterwards, in the same Will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 Rupees only.

(d) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and afterwards, by the same Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 Rupees. B is entitled to 11,000 Rupees.

(e) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B 5,000 Rupees, and by a Codicil to the Will he bequeaths to him 5,000 Rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 Rupees.

(f) A, by one Codicil to his Will, bequeaths to B 5,000 Rupees, and by another Codicil bequeaths to him 6,000 Rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 Rupees.

(g) A, by his Will, bequeaths "500 Rupees to B because she was his nurse," and in another part of the Will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with his children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 Rupees.

(h) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and also, in another part of the Will, an annuity of 400 Rupees B is entitled to both legacies.

(i) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 Rupees, and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 Rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 Rupees, and takes a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 Rupees.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

89. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that shew an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

Illustrations.

(a) A makes her Will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, &c., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to" B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b) A makes his Will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my "banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I "hereby desire B to do and keep the residue for her own "use and pleasure." B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

Property to which a residuary legatee is entitled.

90. Under a residuary bequest the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Illustration.

A by his Will, bequeaths certain legacies, one of which is void under the hundred and fifth Section, and another lapses by the death of the legatee. He bequeaths the residue of his property to B. After the date of his Will B purchases a zamíndárí, which belongs to him at the time of his death. B is entitled to the two legacies and the zamíndárí as part of the residue.

Time of vesting of legacy in general terms.

having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

In what case a legacy lapses.

92. If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appear by the Will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person. In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator bequeaths to B "500 Rupees which B owes him." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator, or happens to be dead when the Will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c) A legacy is given to A, and in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(d) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator; B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e) A sum of money is bequeathed to A on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year, and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f) The testator and the legatee perished in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to shew which died first. The legacy will lapse.

A legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before the testator.

93. If a legacy be given to two persons jointly, and one of them die before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

Illustration.

The legacy is simply to A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

Effect in such a case of words shewing testator's intention that the shares should be distinct.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B, and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

95. Where the share that lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the Will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B, and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one-third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

When a bequest to testator's child or lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

96. Where a bequest shall have been made to any child or other lineal descendant of the testator, and the legatee shall die in the lifetime of the testator, but any lineal descendant of his shall survive the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the Will.

Illustration.

A makes his Will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son B for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son C, who survives A, and having made his Will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow D. The money goes to D.

Bequest to A for the benefit of B does not lapse by A's death in testator's lifetime.

97. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Survivorship in case of bequest to a described class.

98. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as shall be alive at the testator's death.

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a class of persons described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but their possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator, by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise, the property shall at that time go to such of them as shall be then alive, and to the representatives of any of them who have died since the death of the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the Will, leaving three children, C, D, and E. E died after the date of the Will, but before the death of A. C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death B has no children. The bequest is void.

(c) A lease for years of a house was bequeathed to A for his life, and after his decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator B had two children living, C and D, and he never had any other child. Afterwards, during the lifetime of A, C died, leaving E his executor. D has survived A. D and E are jointly entitled to so much of the leasehold term as remains unexpired.

(d) A sum of money was bequeathed to A for her life, and after her decease to the children of B. At the death of the testator B had two children living, C and D, and after that event, two children, E and F, were born to B. C and E died in the lifetime of A, C having made a Will, E having made no Will. A has died, leaving D and F surviving her. The legacy is to be divided into four equal parts, one of which is to be paid to the executor of C, one to D, one to the administrator of E, and one to F.

(e) A bequeaths one-third of his lands to B for his life, and after his decease to the sisters of B. At the death of the testator B had two sisters living, C and D, and after that event another sister E was born. C died during the life of B; D and E have survived B. One-third of A's lands belongs to D, E, and the representatives of C in equal shares.

(f) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to be divided equally among the children of C. Up to the death of B, C had not had any child. The bequest after the death of B is void.

(g) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to "all the children born or to be born" of B, to be divided among them at the death of C. At the death of the testator B has two children living, D and E. After the death of the testator, but in the lifetime of C, two other children, F and G, are born to B. After the death of C another child is born to B. The legacy belongs to D, E, F, and G to the exclusion of the after-born child of B.

(h) A bequeaths a fund to the children of B, to be divided among them when the eldest shall attain majority. At the testator's death B had one child living, named C. He afterwards had two other children, named D and E. E died, but C and D were living when C attained majority. The fund belongs to C, D, and the representatives of E to the exclusion of any child who may be born to B after C's attaining majority.

PART XII.

Of void Bequests.

Bequest to a person by a particular description who is not in existence at the testator's death.

99. Where a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Exception.—If property is bequeathed to a person described as standing in a particular degree of kindred to a specified individual, but his possession of it is deferred until a time later than the death of the testator by reason of a prior bequest or otherwise; and if a person answering the description is alive at the death of the testator, or comes into existence between that event and such later time, the property shall, at such later time, go to that person, or if he be dead, to his representatives.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to the eldest son of B. At the death of the testator B has no son. The bequest is void.

(b) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son is born to C. Upon B's death the legacy goes to C's son.

(c) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to B for life, and after his death to the eldest son of C. At the death of the testator C had no son. Afterwards, during the life of B, a son named D is born to C. D dies, then B dies. The legacy goes to the representative of D.

(d) A bequeaths his estate of Green Acre to B for life, and at his decease to the eldest son of C. Up to the death of B, C has had no son. The bequest to C's eldest son is void.

(e) A bequeaths 1,000 Rupees to the eldest son of C, to be paid to him after the death of B. At the death of the testator C has no son, but a son is afterwards born to him during the life of B and is alive at B's death. C's son is entitled to the 1,000 Rupees.

Bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest.

100. Where a bequest is made to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death, subject to a prior bequest contained in the Will, the later bequest shall be void, unless it comprises the whole of the remaining interest of the testator in the thing bequeathed.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his eldest son for life, and after the death of the latter to his eldest son. At the time of the testator's death A has no son. Here the bequest to A's eldest son is a bequest to a person not in existence at the testator's death. It is not a bequest of the whole interest that remains to the testator. The bequest to A's eldest son for his life is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters. A survives the testator. A has daughters some of whom were not in existence at the testator's death. The bequest to A's daughters comprises the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The bequest to A's daughters is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to his daughters, with a direction that if any of them marries under the age of eighteen her portion shall be settled, so that it may belong to herself for life and may be divisible among her children after her death. A has no daughters living at the time of the testator's death, but has daughters born afterwards who survive him. Here the direction for a settlement has the effect in the case of each daughter who marries under eighteen of substituting for the absolute bequest to her a bequest to her merely for her life, that is to say, a bequest to a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund is void.

(d) A bequeaths a sum of money to B for life, and directs that upon the death of B the fund shall be settled upon his daughters, so that the portion of each daughter may belong to herself for life, and may be divided among her children after her death. B has no daughter living at the time of the testator's death. In this case the only bequest to the daughters of B is contained in the direction to settle the fund, and this direction amounts to a bequest, to persons not yet born, of a life-interest in the fund, that is to say, of something which is less than the whole interest that remains to the testator in the thing bequeathed. The direction to settle the fund upon the daughters of B is void.

Rule against perpetuity.

101. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the lifetime of one or more persons living at the testator's decease, and the minority of some person who shall be in existence at the expiration of that period, and to whom, if he attains full age, the thing bequeathed is to belong.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life; and after B's death to such of the sons of B as shall first attain the age of 25. A and B survive the testator. Here the son of B who shall first attain the age of 25 may be a son born after the death of the testator; such son may not attain 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed from the death of the longer liver of A and B, and the vesting of the fund may thus be delayed beyond the lifetime of A and B, and the minority of the sons of B. The bequest after B's death is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and afer his death to B for his life, and after B's death to such of B's sons as shall first attain the age of 25. B dies in the lifetime of the testator, leaving one or more sons. In this case the sons of B are persons living at the time of the testator's decease, and the time when either of them will attain 25 necessarily falls within his own lifetime. The bequest is valid.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B for his life with a direction that after B's death it shall be divided amongst such of B's children as shall attain the age of 18; but that if no child of B shall attain that age, the fund shall go to C. Here the time for the division of the fund must arrive at the latest at the expiration of 18 years from the death of B, a person living at the testator's decease. All the bequests are valid.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to trustees for the benefit of the testator's daughters, with a direction that if any of them marry under age her share of the fund shall be settled so as to devolve, after her death, upon such of her children as shall attain the age of 18. Any daughter of the testator to whom the direction applies must be in existence at his decease, and any portion of the fund which may eventually be settled as directed must vest not later than 18 years from the death of the daughter whose share it was. All these provisions are valid.

Bequest to a class some of whom may come under the rules in the Sections 100, 101.

102. If a bequest is made to a class of persons with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the two last preceding Sections, or either of them, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to all his children who shall attain the age of 25. A survives the testator and has some children living at the testator's death. Each child of A's living at the testator's death must attain the age of 25 (if at all) within the limits allowed for a bequest. But A may have children after the testator's decease some of whom may not attain the age of 25 until more than 18 years have elapsed after the decease of A. The bequest to A's children, therefore, is inoperative as to any child born after the testator's death; and as it is given to all his children as a class, it is not good as to any division of that class, but is wholly void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to B, C, D, and all other the children of A who shall attain the age of 25. B, C, D are children of A living at the testator's decease. In all other respects the case is the same as that supposed in Illustration (a). The mention of B, C, and D by name does not prevent the bequest from being regarded as a bequest to a class, and the bequest is wholly void.

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under Sections 100, 101, or 102.

103. Where a bequest is void by reason of any of the rules contained in the three last preceding Sections, any bequest contained in the same Will, and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest, is also void.

Illustrations.

(a) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25 for his life, and after the decease of such son, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect after the bequest to such of the sons of A as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under Section 101. The bequest to B is void.

(b) A fund is bequeathed to A for his life, and after his death to such of his sons as shall first attain the age of 25 and if no son of A shall attain that age, to B. A and B survive the testator. The bequest to B is intended to take effect upon failure of the bequest to such of A's sons as shall first attain the age of 25, which bequest is void under Section 101. The bequest to B is void.

104. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void, and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Effect of direction for accumulation.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death, and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a) The Will directs that the sum of 10,000 Rupees shall be invested in Government securities and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B, and C. A, B, and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 Rupees at the end of the year from the testator's death.

(b) The Will directs that 10,000 Rupees shall be invested, and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 Rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c) The Will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultánpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive at the end of one year from the testator's death the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

(d) The Will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultánpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulations shall then be paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator A has no son. The bequest is void.

(e) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B, and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the Will, but in consequence of B's minority.

105. No man having a nephew or niece or any nearer relative shall have power to bequeath any property to religious or charitable uses, except by a Will executed not less than twelve months before his death, and deposited, within six months from its execution, in some place provided by law for the safe custody of the Wills of living persons.

Bequest to religious or charitable uses.

Illustration.

A having a nephew makes a bequest by a Will not executed nor deposited as required—

For the relief of poor people;
For the maintenance of sick soldiers;
For the erection or support of a hospital;
For the education and preferment of orphans;
For the support of scholars;
For the erection or support of a school;
For the building and repairs of a bridge;
For the making of roads;
For the erection or support of a church;
For the repairs of a church;
For the benefit of ministers of religion;
For the formation or support of a public garden.

All these bequests are void.

PART XIII.

Of the Vesting of Legacies.

106. Where, by the terms of a bequest, the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the Will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy. And in such cases the legacy is, from the testator's death, said to be vested in interest.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed.

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that if a particular event shall happen the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B 100 Rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b) A bequeaths to B 100 Rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18, and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f) A fund is bequeathed to A, B, and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18 respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator the shares vest in interest in A, B, and C, subject to be divested in case A, B, and C shall all die under 18, and upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

107. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible. In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Date of vesting when legacy is contingent upon a specified uncertain event.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the Will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B, and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B, and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18," or, "when he shall attain the age of 18." A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall then be living, but if B shall not be then living, to C. A, B, and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other shall have happened.

(d) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that if she shall not attain 18, or marry under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy, although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by A's marrying.

(g) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of the Act.

(h) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 Rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 Rupees to B.

(i) A leaves his farm of Sultânpur Khurd to B if B shall convey his own farm of Sultânpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.

(j) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence, within that period, of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by Will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l) A bequeaths to B 500 Rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m) A bequeaths to B 500 Rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum out of another fund shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

Vesting of interest in a bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age.

108. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

Illustration.

A fund is bequeathed to such of the children of A as shall attain the age of 18, with a direction that while any child of A shall be under the age of 18 the income of the share to which it may be presumed he will be eventually entitled shall be applied for his maintenance and education. No child of A who is under the age of 18 has a vested interest in the bequest.

PART XIV.

Of Onerous Bequests.

Onerous bequest.

109. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Illustration.

A having shares in (X) a prosperous joint stock company and also shares in (Y) a joint stock company in difficulties in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies. B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and the other refused.

110. Where a Will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

Illustration.

A having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

PART XV.

Of Contingent Bequests.

Bequests contingent upon a specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned for its occurrence.

111 Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned in the Will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Illustrations.

(a) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death to B. If A survives the testator the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children, to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and "in case of B's death without children," to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B shall die without children during the lifetime of A.

(e) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and "in case of B's death," to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B shall die in the lifetime of A."

Bequests to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

112. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period, but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as shall be alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appear by the Will.

Illustrations.

(a) Property is bequeathed to A and B, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

(c) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, or the survivor, with a direction that if B should not survive the testator, his children are to stand in his place. C dies during the life of the testator; B survives the testator, but dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of B.

(d) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, with a direction that in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

PART XVI.

A bequest may be made to any person with the condition superadded that in case a specified uncertain event shall happen the thing bequeathed shall go to another person; or, that in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen, the thing bequeathed shall go over to another person. 123. Where a bequest is made with a condition superadded that, unless the legatee shall perform a certain act, the subject-matter of the bequest shall go to another person, or the bequest shall cease to have effect, but no time is specified for the performance of the act, if the legatee takes any step which renders impossible or indefinitely postpones the performance of the act required, the legacy shall go as if the legatee had died without performing such act.

Inventory and account.

277. An executor or administrator shall, within six months from the grant of probate or letters of administration, exhibit in the Court by which the same may have been granted an inventory containing a full and true estimate of all the property in possession, and all the credits, and also all the debts owing by any person or persons to which the executor or administrator is entitled in that character, and shall in like manner, within one year from the date aforesaid, exhibit an account of the estate, shewing the assets that may have come to his hands, and the manner in which they have been applied or disposed of.

Duty of executor or administrator as to property of, and debts owing to, the deceased.

278. The executor or administrator shall collect, with reasonable diligence, the property of the deceased and the debts that were due to him at the time of his death.

Expenses to be paid before all debts.

279. Funeral expenses to a reasonable amount, according to the degree and quality of the deceased, and death-bed charges, including fees for medical attendance, and board and lodging for one month previous to his death, are to be paid before all debts.

Expenses to be paid next after such expenses.

280. The expenses of obtaining probate or letters of administration, including the costs incurred for, or in respect of, any judicial proceedings that may be necessary for administering the estate, are to be paid next after the funeral expenses and death-bed charges.

Wages for certain services to be next paid, and then the other debts.

281. Wages due for services rendered to the deceased within three months next preceding his death by any labourer, artizan, or domestic servant are next to be paid, and then the other debts of the deceased.

Save as aforesaid, all debts to be paid equally and rateably.

282. Save as aforesaid, no creditor is to have a right of priority over another by reason that his debt is secured by an instrument under seal, or on any other account. But the executor or administrator shall pay all such debts as he knows of, including his own, equally and rateably, as far as the assests of the deceased will extend.

Application of moveable property to payment of debts where the deceased's domicile was not in British India.

283. If the domicile of the deceased was not in British India, the application of his moveable property to the payment of his debts is to be regulated by the law of the country in which he was domiciled.

Illustration.

A dies, having his domicile in a country where instruments under seal have priority over instruments not under seal, leaving moveable property to the value of 10,000 Rupees, immoveable property to the value of 5,000 Rupees, debts on instruments under seal to the amount of 10,000 rupees, and debts on instruments not under seal to the same amount. The debts on the instruments under seal are to be paid in full out of the moveable estate, and the proceeds of the immoveable estate are to be applied, as far as they will extend, towards the discharge of the debts not under seal. Accordingly, one-half of the amount of the debts not under seal is to be paid out of the proceeds of the immoveable estate.

Creditor paid in part under Section 283 to bring such payment into account before sharing in proceeds of immoveable property.

284. No creditor who has received payment of a part of his debt by virtue of the last preceding Section shall be entitled to share in the proceeds of the immoveable estate of the deceased unless he brings such payment into account for the benefit of the other creditors.

Illustration.

A dies, having his domicile in a country where instruments under seal have priority over instruments not under seal, leaving moveable property to the value of 5,000 Rupees and immoveable property to the value of 10,000 Rupees, debts on instruments under seal to the amount of 10,000 Rupees, and debts on instruments not under seal to the same amount. The creditors holding instruments under seal receive half of their debts out of the proceeds of the moveable estate. The proceeds of the immoveable estate are to be applied in payment of the debts on instruments not under seal until one-half of such debts has been discharged. This will leave 5,000 Rupees which are to be distributed rateably amongst all the creditors without distinction in proportion to the amount which may remain due to them.

Debts to be paid before legacies.

285. Debts of every description must be paid before any legacy.

Executor or administrator not bound to pay legacies without indemnity.

286. If the estate of the deceased is subject to any contingent liabilities, an executor or administrator is not bound to pay any legacy without a sufficient indemnity to meet the liabilities whenever they may become due.

287. If the assets, after payment of debts, necessary expenses, and specific legacies, are not sufficient to pay all the general legacies in full, the latter shall abate or be diminished in equal proportions, and the executor has no right to pay one legatee in preference to another, nor to retain any money on account of a legacy to himself or to any person for whom he is a trustee.

Abatement of general legacies.

Executor not to pay one legatee in preference to another.

288. Where there is a specific legacy, and the assets are sufficient for the payment of debts and necessary expenses, the thing specified must be delivered to the legatee without any abatement.

Non-abatement of specific legacy when assets sufficient to pay debts.

289. Where there is a demonstrative legacy and the assets are sufficient for the payment of debts and necessary expenses, the legatee has a preferential claim for payment of his legacy out of the fund from which the legacy is directed to be paid until such fund is exhausted, and if after the fund is exhausted part of the legacy still remains unpaid, he is entitled to rank for the remainder against the general assets as for a legacy of the amount of such unpaid remainder.

Right under demonstrative legacy when the assets are sufficient to pay debts and necessary expenses.

290. If the assets are not sufficient to answer the debts and the specific legacies, an abatement shall be made from the latter rateably in proportion to their respective amounts.

Rateable abatement of specific legacies.

A has bequeathed to B a diamond ring valued at 500 Rupees, and to C a horse valued at 1,000 Rupees. It is found necessary to sell all the effects of the testator, and his assets, after payment of debts, are only 1,000 Rupees. Of this sum Rupees 333-5-4 are to be paid to B, and Rupees 666-10-8 to C.

291. For the purpose of abatement, a legacy for life, a sum appropriated by the Will to produce an annuity and the value of an annuity when no sum has been appropriated to produce it, shall be treated as general legacies.

Legacies treated as general for purpose of abatement.

Part XXXV.

Of the Executor's Assent to a Legacy.

292. The assent of the executor is necessary to complete a legatee's title to his legacy.

Executor's assent necessary to complete legatee's title.

(a) A, by his Will, bequeaths to B his Government paper which is in deposit with the Bank of Bengal. The Bank has no authority to deliver the securities, nor B a right to take possession of them, without the assent of the executor.

(b) A, by his Will, has bequeathed to C his house in Calcutta in the tenancy of D. C is not entitled to receive the rents without the assent of the executor.

293. The assent of the executor to a specific bequest shall be sufficient to devest his interest as executor therein, and to transfer the subject of the bequest to the legatee, unless the nature or the circumstances of the property require that it shall be transferred in a particular way. This assent may be verbal, and it may be either express or implied from the conduct of the executor.

(e) A person to whom a specific article has been bequeathed takes possession of it and retains it without any objection on the part of the executor. His assent may be presumed.

Conditional assent.

Illustrations.

(a) A bequeaths to B his lands of Saltánpur, which, at the date of the Will and at the death of A, were subject to a mortgage for 10,000 Rupees. The executor assents to the bequest on condition that B shall, within a limited time, pay the amount due on the mortgage at the testator's death. The amount is not paid. There is no assent.

(b) The executor assents to a bequest on condition that the legatee shall pay him a sum of money. The payment is not made. The assent is nevertheless valid.

295. When the executor is a legatee, his assent to his own legacy is necessary to complete his title to it in the same way as it is required when the bequest is to another person, and his assent may in like manner be express or implied. Assent shall be implied if in his manner of administering the property he does any act which is referable to his character of legatee and is not referable to his character of executor.

300. Where there is a direction that the first payment of an annuity shall be made within one month or any other division of time from the death of the testator, or on a day certain, the successive payments are to be made on the anniversary of the earliest day on which the Will authorizes the first payment to be made; and if the annuitant should die in the interval between the times of payment, an apportioned share of the annuity shall be paid to his representative.

Procedure when no fund is charged with or appropriated to an annuity.

303. Where an annuity is given and no fund is charged with its payment or appropriated by the Will to answer it, a Government annuity of the specified amount shall be purchased, or, if no such annuity can be obtained, then a sum sufficient to produce the annuity shall be invested for that purpose in such securities as the High Court may, by any general rule to be made from time to time, authorize or direct.

Transfer to residuary legatee of amount of contingent bequest.

305. Where the testator has bequeathed the residue of his estate to a person for life without any direction to invest it in any particular securities, so much thereof as is not, at the time of the testator's decease, invested in such securities as the High Court may, for the time being, regard as good securities, shall be converted into money and invested in such securities.

Investment of residue bequeathed to a person for life, with direction to invest in specified securities.

307. Such conversion and investment as are contemplated by the two last preceding Sections shall be made at such times and in such manner as the executor shall in his discretion think fit; and until such conversion and investment shall be completed, the person who would be for the time being entitled to the income of the fund when so invested shall receive interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum upon the market value (to be computed as of the date of the testator's death) of such part of the fund as shall not yet have been so invested.

Interest payable until investment.

Procedure where minor is entitled to immediate payment or possession of bequest, and there is no direction to pay to any person on his behalf.

308. Where, by the terms of a bequest, the legatee is entitled to the immediate payment or possession of the money or thing bequeathed, but is a minor, and there is no direction in the Will to pay it to any person on his behalf, the executor or administrator shall pay or deliver the same into the Court of the District Judge, by whom the probate was, or letters of administration, with the Will annexed, were granted, to the account of the legatee, unless the legatee be a ward of the Court of Wards; and if the legatee be a ward of the Court of Wards the legacy shall be paid into that Court to his account, and such payment into the Court of the District Judge, or into the Court of Wards, as the case may be, shall be sufficient discharge for the money so paid; and such money when paid in shall be invested in the purchase of Government securities, which, with the interest thereon, shall be transferred or paid to the person entitled thereto, or otherwise applied for his benefit, as the Judge or the Court of Wards, as the case may be, may direct.

PART XXXVIII.

Of the Produce and Interest of Legacies.

309. The legatee of a specific legacy is entitled to the clear produce thereof, if any, from the testator's death.

(c) The testator bequeaths all his four per cent. Government promissory notes to A when he shall complete the age of 18. A, if he complete that age, is entitled to receive the notes, but the interest which accrues in respect of them between the testator's death and A's completing 18 forms part of the residue.

Residuary legatee entitled to produce of residuary fund from testator's death.

310. The legatee under a general residuary bequest is entitled to the produce of the residuary fund from the testator's death.

Exception.—A general residuary bequest contingent in its terms does not comprise the income which may accrue upon the fund bequeathed between the death of the testator and the vesting of the legacy. Such income goes as undisposed of.

Exceptions. (1.)—Where the legacy is bequeathed in satisfaction of a debt, interest runs from the death of the testator.

(2.)—Where the testator was a parent or a more remote ancestor of the legatee, or has put himself in the place of a parent of the legatee, the legacy shall bear interest from the death of the testator.

Part XXXIX.

Of the Refunding of Legacies.

316. When an executor has paid a legacy under the order of a Judge, he is entitled to call upon the legatee to refund in the event of the assets proving insufficient to pay all the legacies.

No refund if legacy paid voluntarily.

317. When an executor has voluntarily paid a legacy, he cannot call upon a legatee to refund in the event of the assets proving insufficient to pay all the legacies.

Refund when legacy has become due on performance of a condition within further time allowed under Section 124.

318. When the time prescribed by the Will for the performance of a condition has elapsed without the condition having been performed, and the executor has thereupon, without fraud, distributed the assets; in such case, if further time has been allowed under the one hundred and twenty-fourth Section for the performance of the condition, and the condition has been performed accordingly, the legacy cannot be claimed from the executor, but those to whom he has paid it are liable to refund the amount.

When each legatee is compellable to refund in proportion.

Distribution of assets.

320. Where an executor or administrator has given such notices as would have been given by the High Court in an administration suit for creditors and others to send in to him their claims against the estate of the deceased, he shall, at the expiration of the time therein named for sending in claims, be at liberty to distribute the assets, or any part thereof, in discharge of such lawful claims as he knows of, and shall not be liable for the assets so distributed to any person of whose claim he shall not have had notice at the time of such distribution; but nothing herein contained shall prejudice the right of any creditor or claimant to follow the assets, or any part thereof, in the hands of the persons who may have received the same respectively.

Creditor may follow assets.

Within what period a creditor may call upon a legatee to refund.

321. A creditor who has not received payment of his debt may, within two years after the death of the testator, or one year after the legacy has been paid, call upon a legatee who has received payment of his legacy to refund, whether the assets of the testator's estate were or were not sufficient, at the time of his death, to pay both debts and legacies, and whether the payment of the legacy by the executor was voluntary or not.

When a legatee who has not received payment or who has been compelled to refund under Section 321 cannot oblige one who has received payment in full to refund.

322. If the assets were sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy, or who has been compelled to refund under the last preceding Section, cannot oblige one who has received payment in full to refund, whether the legacy were paid to him with or without suit, although the assets have subsequently become deficient by the wasting of the executor.

When an unsatisfied legatee must first proceed against executor if solvent.

323. If the assets were not sufficient to satisfy all the legacies at the time of the testator's death, a legatee who has not received payment of his legacy must, before he can call on a satisfied legatee to refund, first proceed against the executor if he is solvent; but if the executor is insolvent or not liable to pay, the unsatisfied legatee can oblige each satisfied legatee to refund in proportion.

Limit to the refunding of one legatee to another.

324. The refunding of one legatee to another shall not exceed the sum by which the satisfied legacy ought to have been reduced if the estate had been properly administered.

Illustration.

A has bequeathed 240 Rupees to B, 480 Rupees to C, and 720 Rupees to D. The assets are only 1,200 Rupees, and if properly administered would give 200 Rupees to B, 400 Rupees to C, and 600 Rupees to D. C and D have been paid their legacies in full, leaving nothing to B. B can oblige C to refund 80 Rupees, and D to refund 120 Rupees.

Refunding to be without interest.

325. The refunding shall in all cases be without interest

326. The surplus or residue of the deceased's property after payment of debts and legacies shall be paid to the residuary legatee when any has been appointed by the Will.

THE following Bill, as settled by the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 8th April 1865, is hereby published for general information, and will be re-considered on the 22nd instant:—

A Bill to amend the law for the sale of such Under-tenures as by the Title Deeds or established usage of the country are transferable by sale or otherwise for the recovery of arrears of rent due in respect thereof.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen in consequence of the repeal of Section XVI of Regulation VII of 1832, as to the authority by whom Putnee Talooks and other saleable Under-tenures of the nature defined in Section I of Regulation VIII of 1819 are to be sold for arrears of rent due to the proprietor on account thereof; and whereas it is expedient to amend the law for the sale of such Under-tenures for the recovery of arrears of rent due in respect thereof; It is enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

I. The word "Collector" as used in this Act shall include all Officers exercising the full powers of a Collector of a District.

Meaning of the Term "Collector."

Words used in the singular number include the plural.

Laws repealed.

II. Section XVI of Regulation VIII of 1819 of the Bengal Code, Act VIII of 1835, and Section X of Act VI of 1853, are repealed, except in so far as any other Regulation or law is repealed thereby.

Sale by whom to be conducted.

III. The sale for the recovery of arrears of rent of such Under-tenures as by the Title deeds or established usage of the country are transferable by sale or otherwise, shall be conducted by the Collector of Land Revenue in whose jurisdiction, as defined by Act VI of 1853, the lands lie, or by his Deputy or Assistant exercising the powers of a Deputy Collector, and all acts preparatory to or connected with the sale of such Under-tenures as aforesaid, which, by Regulations VIII of 1819 and I of 1820, the Judge is required to perform, shall be performed by the said Collector, his Deputy, or Assistant; and no Under-tenure shall henceforth be sold in execution of a decree for the recovery of rent due in respect thereof, otherwise than as hereinafter provided.

Notice of sale where to be hung up.

IV. Whenever any person shall obtain a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect of any such Under-tenure as aforesaid, he may apply for the sale thereof to the Collector, Deputy or Assistant Collector by whom the decree was passed, or, in his absence, to the person in charge of his Office, who shall thereupon cause a notice of the sale of the Under-tenure to be hung up in his own Court, in that of the Collector, and the Judge of the District within which the Under-tenure to be sold is situated, and at some conspicuous place on the lands comprised in the Under-tenure itself or immediately adjacent thereto.

Notice of sale what to contain.

V. The notice shall be for the sale of the Under-tenure on some fixed date not less than fifteen days from the date of the notice, and shall specify, in the words used in the plaint in the suit in which the decree was given, the name of the village, estate, and Pergunnah or other local division in which the Under-tenure is situate, the yearly rent of the Under-tenure, and the amount of the arrear due in respect thereof.

How the sale may be stopped.

VI. If the sum due under the decree, together with interest to date of payment and all costs of process be paid into Court at any time before the sale commences, whether by the defaulting tenant or any one interested in the protection of the Under-tenure, such sale shall not take place; and the provisions of Section XIII of Regulation VIII of 1819, for the recovery of sums paid by other than the defaulting tenant to stay the sale of the Under-tenure, shall be applicable to all similar payments made under this Section.

Sale to be to the highest bidder.

VII. The Under-tenure shall be sold to the highest bidder in open Court. Provided, however, that no bid made by or on behalf of the defaulting tenant shall be accepted.

Purchaser to deposit 25 per cent.

VIII. The party who shall be declared to be the purchaser shall be required to deposit immediately, in cash or Government Currency Notes, twenty-five per cent. of the amount of his bid, and in default of such a deposit the Under-tenure shall be put up again and sold forthwith, or on the next ensuing office day.

Deposit to be forfeited if balance of purchase money be not paid up in time.

IX. The full amount of the purchase money shall be made good by the purchaser before sunset of the eighth day from that on which the sale of the Under-tenure took place, reckoning that day as one of the eight, or, if the eighth day be a Sunday or other close holiday, then on the first office day after the eighth day; and, in default of payment within the prescribed period as aforesaid, the deposit shall be forfeited to the Government, and the Under-tenure shall be resold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claims thereto or to any part of the sum for which the said Under-tenure may be subsequently sold. If the proceeds of the sale, which may be eventually consummated, be less than the price bid by the defaulting purchaser, the difference shall be leviable from him under the law for enforcing the payment of money in satisfaction of a decree for arrears of rent.

Provisions as to sales to apply to all re-sales.

X. The provisions of all the preceding Sections with regard to sales shall also be applicable to all re-sales under this Act, which may be rendered necessary by the default of any purchaser.

Certificate and possession to be given to purchaser on payment by him in full.

XI. When the purchase money shall have been paid in full, the Officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a Certificate, in the form prescribed in the Schedule annexed to this Act, and shall further, on the purchaser making application and depositing the requisite costs, depute an Officer or Ameen to put him in possession of the Under-tenure in the customary manner, and to publish the fact of the purchase to the cultivators of the lands comprised therein.

Proceeds of sale how to be dealt with.

XII. From the proceeds of the sale of the Under-tenure, the Officer holding such sale shall repay to the judgment-creditor the necessary expenses incurred by him in procuring it; and, after satisfying the decree in execution of which the sale was made, shall hold the residue, if any, in deposit on account of the defaulting tenant.

Appeal.

XIII. An appeal shall lie to the Collector from any proceedings of a Deputy or Assistant Collector, if made within fifteen days; and to the Commissioner from any original proceedings of a Collector, under this Act, if made within thirty days from the date of the sale: but no proceedings under this Act shall be reversed or modified in appeal, except upon the ground of irrelevancy of the law, or of such an irregularity in procedure as, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, has caused injury to the interests of one of the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed.

XIV. No appeal as of right shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this Act; but a Commissioner, in any case in which an appeal has been heard by a Collector, and the Board of Revenue, in any case in which an appeal has been heard by the Commissioner, may call for the proceedings at any time within six months from the date thereof, and pass thereon such orders as they may think proper.

Power of revision.

XV. If any sale of an Under-tenure shall under either of the two preceding Sections be set aside, the purchaser shall be entitled to recover the purchase money in such manner as the appellate or revising authority may in each instance direct.

Purchaser to recover purchase money in such manner as appellate or revising authority may direct, if sale be set aside.

XVI. The purchaser of an Under-tenure sold under this Act shall acquire it free of all incumbrances, whether by engagements, gift, sale, or otherwise, which may have accrued thereon by any act of the original holder of the Under-tenure, his representatives, or assignees; and no mortgage or other limited assignment shall be permitted to bar the indefeasible right of the Zemindar or other landholder to hold the tenure of his creation answerable, in the state in which he created it, for the rent; unless the transfer or assignment shall have been made with a condition to that effect under express authority obtained from such Zemindar or other landholder.

Purchaser to acquire the Under-tenure free of incumbrances.

XVII. The purchaser of an Under-tenure sold under this Act shall apply to the Zemindar or other landholder, within fifteen days from the day of sale, to have his name registered in the Zemindar or other landholder's books as the purchaser, and to execute a kubooleut on the same terms and conditions on which the Under-tenure was held by the defaulter; and if such application be not made within fifteen days, it shall be lawful for the Zemindar or other landholder to sue the said purchaser under the provisions of Act X of 1859.

Zemindar how to proceed if purchaser do not register.

XVIII. The provisions of Section III shall be applicable to all sales held under Regulation VIII of 1819, previous to the passing of this Act; and no suit shall lie in respect of such sales on the plea of want of jurisdiction of the Officer by whom they were conducted.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Financial Department.

Read a Report on the above by the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, Bengal, No. 51, dated 28th March 1865.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to resolve that the Return of Uncovenanted Servants (European and East Indian) required by the Right Hon'ble the Secretary of State shall be prepared in future in the following form:—

With regard to the enquiry whether any record should be kept of the age of Uncovenanted Servants (European, East Indian, and Native) the Governor General in Council observes that it should be kept in the Leave Registers in the Civil Pay Master's Office from information furnished by Heads of Offices, who should be careful to note in the Pay Abstract in which pay may, for the first time, be drawn for an Uncovenanted Officer eligible to pension, his age on his first admission into the service.

Ordered, that a copy of the above Resolution be sent to the Military and Public Works Departments for information and guidance in respect of Uncovenanted Servants under the control of those Departments.

Ordered, also, that a copy of the Resolution be sent to the Civil Pay-Masters, Madras, Bombay, N. W. Provinces, and the Punjab, the Deputy Auditors and Accountants-General, Bengal, British Burmah, Hyderabad, and Central Provinces, and the Accountant-General to the Government of India, for information and guidance.

Papers relating to the Opium Revenue.

Minute by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

The letters from the Board of Revenue, No. 50, dated the 23rd January, and No. 60, dated the 27th idem, should be forwarded to the Government of India. Also the Board's letter No. 523, dated 24th September last, together with the detailed Statement therein enclosed.

2. Comparing the area under cultivation with the produce for the fourteen years ending with 1863-64 as shewn in this Statement, it appears that the average yield per beegah is a fraction above 5 seers, and that it has varied from 6¼ seers in 1853-54 to 3¼ seers in 1858-59. It is to be observed, however, that since 1853-54 the average has never been above 6 seers, the highest point having been reached in the extraordinarily prolific season of 1863-64. The Returns of cultivation are now prepared with greater care than they used to be; and we may assume, therefore, that a yield of 5 seers a beegah is for all practical purposes a sufficiently correct average.

3. Now the object of Government is to realize from Bengal Opium the largest net revenue possible, and at the same time to keep the selling price within such limits that it shall not fall so low as to affect the pass duty of Rupees 600 a chest on Malwa Opium, or rise so high as to encourage competition in the China market. How to accomplish this is the problem to be solved.

4. From 1851-52 to 1854-55 inclusive, the produce varied from 33,500 to 53,500 chests, the price paid to the cultivators from Rupees 3-10 to 3-8 a seer; the selling price from Rupees 1,109 to Rupees 736 a chest; and the net revenue from 227 lakhs to 233 lakhs of Rupees.

5. In 1855-56 the provision fell from 44,400 to 43,900 chests, the price paid to the cultivators having been reduced from Rupees 3-8 to Rupees 3-4 a seer; but the selling price rose from Rupees 944 to Rupees 1,090 a chest, and the net revenue took an upward jump from 272 to 366 lakhs.

6. Under the influence of the low price paid to the cultivators, and owing also to two bad seasons, the provision fell to 32,693 chests in 1856-57, to 27,175 chests in 1857-58, to 21,367 chests in 1858-59, and to 21,427 chests in 1859-60. But the average selling price during these years rose to Rupees 1,444, Rupees 1,639, Rupees 1,760, and Rupees 1,846, successively, so that, notwithstanding the diminution of produce, the net revenue was as follows:—

1856-57	...	...	Rs. 3,85,00,000
1857-58	...	...	„ 3,67,00,000
1858-59	...	...	„ 3,17,00,000
1859-60	...	...	„ 3,33,00,000

8. A revulsion of policy accordingly took place. The price paid to the cultivators was raised in 1860-61 to Rupees 4 and in 1861-62 to Rupees 5 a seer, and has continued at the latter rate ever since. The consequence of these measures has been to extend the cultivation in three years from 4,35,000 to 8,32,000 beegahs, and to raise the provision to 29,358 chests in 1860-61, to 39,656 in 1861-62, to 49,727 in 1862-63, and to 64,269 in 1863-64. The selling prices during these four years have fallen inversely to Rupees 1,449, Rupees 1,372, and Rupees 1,002, and now the average price realized at the first two sales of the provision of 1863-64 is only Rupees 850. The net revenue continued to keep up during the first two of these four years, and in 1861-62, when the selling price was Rupees 1,372, stood so high as 379 lakhs, but the large provision of nearly 50,000 chests in 1862-63, while it added 40 lakhs to the charges, brought down the selling price by a sudden fall of Rupees 370, from Rupees 1,372 to Rupees 1,002, and reduced the net revenue to 299 lakhs, that is, to less than it had been since 1854-55.

9. The full effect of the further increase in the provision of 1863-64 to 64,249 chests remains to be seen. At present all we know is that it has raised the charges by 55 lakhs more, and that the average selling price realized at the first two sales of the year is Rupees 850. At this rate (if it be maintained) the net revenue will not be more than 292 lakhs.

10. Thus the measures of 1860-61 and 1861-62, while no doubt they have served to stimulate in an extraordinary degree the cultivation of the Poppy in Bengal, and have brought a great deal of money into the country, scattering it broadcast among the agricultural population of the Opium producing Districts, and have also had the effect of reducing prices in China so as effectually to discourage competition from Opium either of native or of foreign growth, have most seriously diminished the net revenue from Bengal Opium, and have already directly affected the public finances during the year ending with December 1864 to the extent of nearly a million and a half Sterling.

11. At the same time the selling price of Bengal Opium in 1865 has been brought so low that (its cost being at the rate of about Rupees 400 a chest) the duty amounts to no more than Rupees 450 a chest, that is to say, less by Rupees 150 a chest than the duty on Opium exported from Bombay.

12. It is clear, therefore, that in seeking to avoid one extreme we have fallen into the other; that we have, as it were, been burning the candle at both ends; and that, while we have paid the cultivators a much higher price than was necessary to induce them to take to the cultivation of the Poppy in preference to other crops, we have so extended the cultivation, and in consequence so increased the production of Opium, that the market is glutted, and the selling price has fallen, not only far below the rate at which competition is practically impossible, but to a point which threatens the maintenance of the present duty on Malwa Opium, and has caused a serious financial deficit.

13. Now, in order to arrive at a correct conclusion as to the number of chests of Opium which ought to be made in any one season and sold in the course of the following year, so as to realize the largest net revenue at a moderate price, we cannot do better than consider the conditions under which this result was attained in 1861-62.

14. In that year a net revenue of 379 lakhs was realized from a provision of 39,656 chests, the average price being Rupees 1,372 a chest.

15. It is true that a net revenue of 385 lakhs was realized in 1856-57 from a provision of 32,693 chests, but the cost price was then Rupees 3-4 a seer, while the average selling price was Rupees 1,444 a chest. These are conditions which it is neither desirable nor indeed practicable to restore, and, as there is no doubt that the demand in China has considerably increased during the last seven years, it may be concluded that the experience of 1856-57 is not so safe a guide as that of a later year, while the difference in the net revenue of the two years is only 6 lakhs.

16. Now, if in 1861-62 the price paid to the cultivators had been Rupees 4-8 a seer instead of Rupees 5, and if the extent of cultivation and the number of chests manufactured had remained the same, the charges would have been diminished by about 15 lakhs of Rupees, and the net revenue would have been 394 lakhs.

17. But the yield in that year was only 4½ seers the beegah. Let us suppose it had been at the average of 5 seers a beegah. The provision would then have been about 41,000 chests, and the charges would have been about 154 lakhs; but the average selling price would probably have not been more than Rupees 1,335 a chest.* The gross revenue would, therefore, have been about 547 lakhs, and the net revenue about 393 lakhs.

18. Whether, therefore, the provision be 40,000 or 41,000 chests, the probable net result is nearly the same.

19. If the provision be 45,000 chests, and the cost price paid for it be Rupees 4-8 a seer, the charges would be about 167 lakhs, and, taking the selling price at Rupees 1,187, (the mean of the averages of 1864 and 1865,) the net revenue about 363 lakhs.

If, however, the provision be 50,000 chests, and the cost price Rupees 4-8 a seer, the charges would amount to about 186 lakhs, and, as the selling price may in that case be expected to go down as it did in 1862-63 to Rupees 1,002 a chest, the net revenue would not exceed 322 lakhs.

* NOTE.—The average selling price of about 40,000 chests was Rupees 1,372, and that of about 50,000 chests Rupees 1,002. It may, therefore, be assumed that the average selling price of 41,000 chests, all other arrangements being the same, would be $1,372 - \frac{370}{10} = 1,335$ Rupees.

20. If, on the other hand, the provision were to be reduced to 35,000 chests, and the cost price were still Rupees 4-8 a seer, the average selling price would probably go up to about 1,410* a chest, while the charges would be about 135 lakhs, and the net revenue only about 365 lakhs.

* The mean of the averages of 1862 and 1863, when about 30,000 and 40,000 chests were sold respectively.

21. Thus it appears that if the cost price be Rupees 4-8 a seer a provision of 40,000 chests is calculated to give the highest amount of net revenue, but only in combination with a selling price of Rupees 1,372 a chest, which is likely to encourage competition in China; and that a provision of 45,000 chests, though calculated to yield a net revenue less by 30 lakhs than the maximum, gives upwards of 3½ millions Sterling and reduces the selling price somewhat below Rupees 1,200 a chest, a rate which is believed to bar competition, and which at the same time renders it quite safe to maintain a duty of Rupees 600 a chest on Malwa Opium.

22. Assuming, therefore, as I have no doubt we may, that the cost price may be reduced to Rupees 4-8 a seer without thereby greatly reducing the area now under Poppy cultivation, it would seem that we ought to aim by that and other means to bring the cultivation within such limits as at an average yield of 5 seers the beegah will give about 45,000 chests. If the consumption and consequent demand should hereafter increase in China, and prices should rise, it may be advisable to extend the provision hereafter, but at present we ought not to maintain an area under cultivation much beyond what it was in 1861. Seven hundred thousand beegahs in both Agencies is apparently the utmost prudent limit to which we ought to go; and as the cultivation in 1863-64 covered an area of 830,000 beegahs, a reduction of 130,000 should be effected as soon as possible.

23. In the above calculations I have taken no account of the Opium which is made up for Abkaree purposes, but the quantity is comparatively so small that it does not practically affect the results.

24. The Board have gone carefully into the question as to whether the cultivation of the poppy and the sale of Opium at less than Rupees 5 a seer is remunerative to the cultivator comparatively with other crops. I do not, however, think that we can place much reliance upon the data on which the Board's conclusions are formed, or put calculations of this sort against the broad fact that under the stimulus of such a price as Rupees 5 a seer the cultivation increased nearly 100 per cent. in three years. At the same time I quite agree with the Board in thinking that it would not be expedient to reduce the price either next year or in future years below Rupees 4-8 a seer. If the provision be hereafter limited to an average of 45,000 chests, financial exigencies will demand no further reduction, and there is manifest justice in paying the cultivators somewhat more than is absolutely needed to make the cultivation remunerative, seeing that they are debarred under heavy penalties from cultivating Opium except on account of Government and from delivering their produce to any one but the public monopolist. I desire, therefore, to support the Board's recommendation that the ryots be assured that no further alteration in the cost price shall take place for the next two years.

25. The orders conveyed to the Board in the Junior Secretary's letter No. 2925, dated the 25th August last, (which has been communicated to the Government of India,) have already had the effect of arresting all further extension of cultivation in the Benares Agency during the current season, and of reducing the area under cultivation in the Behar Agency by 20,000 beegahs. But as the cost of Behar Opium is less than that of Benares, while the selling price of the former is considerably greater, it is obvious that further reduction should be effected chiefly, if not entirely, in the Benares Agency. While, therefore, the cultivation in Behar may be left to the natural operation of the reduction in cost price, and the Agent be still restricted from taking up new lands, in Benares some more stringent measures of reduction are required; and the Board should be desired to warn the Agent accordingly, and to submit, as soon as possible, the Report promised in the last paragraph of their Secretary's letter No. 50, dated the 23rd ultimo.

26. It will be seen that, as regards the extent of the annual provision, I entirely agree with the conclusions already formed by the Government of India, and that in my opinion the cultivation ought to be restricted to the extent which may be expected to produce an average provision of 50,000 chests in 1865-66 and of 45,000 chests in future years.

27. I am further of opinion that the cultivation in the Benares Agency ought to be reduced until the average yield of that Agency bears nearly the same proportion to that of the Patna Agency as it bore in 1859-60 when the selling prices of the two kinds of Opium was nearly equal, and that while a total cultivation of 700,000 beegahs is maintained in both Agencies, the area under cultivation in Behar should be about 450,000 beegahs, and in Benares about 250,000 beegahs.

28. The prospects of the current season, so far as I have been able to ascertain, are not such as to lead me to suppose that the provision to be brought forward for sale in 1866 will exceed 50,000 chests. If this be so, it may be expected that the selling price of the year's provision now in course of disposal will begin to rise at the May sale, and that this, in combination with a reduction of cost price next season, will tell favorably on the finances of 1865-66, though it will not be till the following year that the full effects of the reduction in price and restriction of cultivation will be apparent.

CECIL BEADON.

BELVEDERE,
The 21st February 1865.

From T. B. LANE, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 190, dated the 22nd March 1865.)

IN reply to your letter No. 997, dated the 8th instant, I am directed by the Board of Revenue to report on the injury sustained by the present Poppy crop during the late unfavorable weather.

2. In the Behar Agency the produce had, in the Return for February, been estimated at maunds

47,031, exclusive of the Tehta Sub-Division, from which no report had been received. The rain and hail which fell in many Districts during the early part of this month are considered by the Principal Assistant Agent in charge to have done much damage. That Officer states that "the extent of loss can scarcely be estimated correctly, but from reports from the District Officers he concludes that the outturn will fall short of the above estimate by about 7,000 maunds."

3. The Benares Agent reports as follows:—"As far as we can judge at present (15th instant) this Agency is not likely to produce more than about 40,000 maunds of Opium, and from 20 to 25 thousand provision chests during this season." As, however, the weather was then still very cloudy and there was a probability of more rain, Mr. Hamilton desires that this estimate may be considered liable to variation.

4. From these estimates the Board are led to conclude that the provision of the season will not exceed 50,000 chests.

Report of the Cultivation of Cinchonæ at Darjeeling during the Month of February 1865.

From T. Anderson, Esq., M. D., Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, and in charge of Chinchona Cultivation in Bengal, to S. C. Bayley, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 71, dated the 13th March 1865.)

I have the honor to submit the Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of February 1865.

The month has been less favorable for growth than January, as the cold, which has been quite as great as in January, has been accompanied by a very dry state of the atmosphere. Hail fell on the 3rd of the month and rain on five days, but, with the exception of the 25th and 26th of the month, only in slight showers, which did no benefit whatever to the Cinchona. The slight increase that appears in the Table of growth took place almost entirely during the last five days of the month, with the exception of the lowest plantation, where, about the 17th, the plants began to shew the first symptoms of the return of Spring. At the first plantation (5,500 feet above the sea) the temperature has been very low, causing the destruction of at least three plants of Cinchona Pahudiana, and affecting a few of Cinchona Officinalis. At the second plantation (4,350 feet above the sea) hoar frost occurred in several nights in February, but no damage has been done to any plants at this elevation. No frost was observed below this plantation. Observations on the temparture of the air have been made with more or less regularity during the month at the third, fourth, and fifth plantations. At the fourth plantation (2,500 feet above the sea) the maximum and minimum temperature in the shade was recorded every twenty-four hours during the month. The mean maximum temperature for the month at this elevation was 66·18, the mean minimum 47·93, and the monthly mean temperature 57·05. At the fifth, the lowest plantation, altitude 1,825 feet, fewer observations were made, as the plantation was not visited daily by the person observing; the results from the detached observations there give 71·56 as the mean maximum, and 47·77 as the mean minimum, and 59·5 as the mean temperature of the month.

The number of plants in the open ground for yielding bark has been increased by 220 plants of Cinchona Officinalis taken from the number of plants intended to be kept for cuttings. The 9,820 cuttings made during last month have all rooted without a single exception, and have accordingly been transferred to the column of rooted cuttings. They will be planted during March in the beds for stock-plants and for permanent plantations.

No cuttings were made during the month, as no room could be provided until the cuttings made in January are disposed of, and besides the plants from which the cuttings are to be made have only recently been planted in the open air beds; after so sudden a change it is not advisable to run the risk of injury by removing leaves and branches, as must be done in preparing cuttings.

The work done during the month consists of making roads, clearing and preparing jungle land for the permanent plantations, making terraced beds for nurseries, erecting sheds for Coolies employed on the plantation, and temporary houses for the Europeans engaged in the cultivation. All the stores left at Lebong pending the erection of godowns at Rungbee have been removed during the month, and the temporary nursery at Lebong, where the cultivation has been carried on since 1st April 1863, has been entirely abandoned.

Abstract of Mr. G. Mann's Report.

At the middle plantation 220 plants of Cinchona Officinalis have been planted out permanently during the month, and continue to grow as much as could be expected this season, which has been so unsually dry that in many of the Tea Estates a large proportion of the young Tea plants have been destroyed, and which has rendered the operation of transferring plants from frames in the open ground more laborious than usual, as constant watering was required.

No cuttings have been made during the month, as it was considered advisable to remove the plants from the frames into the open beds for stock plants undisturbed.

The cuttings made during the month of January are all rooted without exception and without any loss, but remain still in the frames to be gradually hardened for the transfer into open beds.

A frame has been planted with twenty-two Cinchona Officinalis, and the same number of plants of exactly the same size have been planted out at the same time in an open bed to obtain results regarding the difference in the condition and number of cuttings obtained by the different methods of cultivation to be able to judge if it would be advisable to keep all the stock for propogation under glass.

During the month three plants of Cinchona Pahudiana were killed by frost at the highest plantation, which, however, must partly be ascribed to their small size, as larger and sturdier plants on the same spot suffered, but were not killed.

The 2,100 plants of Cinchona Officinalis planted out last November have been planted further apart, viz. from 6 inches to 18 inches, and in addition to the 8,759 plants which were in the open beds at the end of January 2,500 more have been planted out on thirty-eight terraces and are doing remarkably well, and would have done better if we had had rain in December, as is usual here in the hills.

The condition of the plants is excellent, and the greater suitability of Rungbee, than of those places, where the cultivation had to be carried on formerly until we gained access to Rungbee, vouchsafes much more rapid progress in the experiment this year than it was possible to make before.

The following Act of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council received the assent of His Honor on the 11th April 1865, and having been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General on the 15th idem, is hereby promulgated for general information:—

Act No. VI of 1865.

An Act to provide for the regulation and enforcement of Contracts for Labor at places to which, by virtue of such Contracts, the Laborer is to be conveyed at the expense of the Employer.

Whereas it is expedient to provide for the due protection of native Laborers who have been or shall hereafter be conveyed at the expense of their Employers under the provisions of Act III of 1863, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, (An Act to regulate the transport of Native Laborers to the Districts of Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet), or of any other Law, to Districts other than the Districts to which they belong; and for the due enforcement of the Contracts entered into by such Laborers with the persons whom they shall have engaged to serve for hire; It is enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

I. Throughout this Act the word "Laborer" means a Laborer who has heretofore entered or shall hereafter, under the provisions of Act III of 1863 or of any other Law, enter into a contract by which he has been or shall be conveyed to the place of labor at the expense of the Employer contracting.

Interpretation. "Laborer."

The term "Protector" includes any Officer appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to perform all or any of the duties of a Protector under this Act.

"Protector."

Words used in the masculine gender include the feminine, and the singular number includes the plural.

Number and Gender.

II. If, upon any examination made in accordance with Section XI of the said Act III of 1863 or any other Law, it shall appear that any Laborer, belonging to any District in the Provinces under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, brought before the Magistrate by a recruiter, or otherwise, does not belong to the District in which the examination has been conducted, and has not resided there a reasonable time for purposes of his own, or come there of his own accord to seek for employment, but has been brought thither from another District in the said Provinces with the view of prevailing upon him to enter into an engagement there, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate to fine the recruiter such sum as in the judgment of the Magistrate may be sufficient to enable the Laborer to return to the District to which he belongs, and to apply such fine to the re-conveyance of such Laborer to such District.

Recruiter, bringing Laborer to engage in a District to which he does not belong, may be fined.

III. The provisions of the preceding Section shall not apply to any Laborer who shall come from any Province or District not under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, for the purpose of entering into an engagement in a District under such control. Any Laborer recruited in any such Province or District as last aforesaid, shall be taken by the recruiter, for the purpose of registry under Section II of the said Act, before a Magistrate of that District, subject to the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, into which such Laborer shall first come after his engagement.

Previous Section not to apply to recruiters bringing Laborers from a District not within Bengal.

It shall be the duty of the Superintendent before whom any future contract is executed by the Laborer, before he attests the same, to explain fully to the Laborer the minimum rate of wages to which he is entitled, and what is the rate fixed in his contract, and under what circumstances alone the Laborer's title to wages can be forfeited or suspended as hereinafter mentioned, and what is the period of time for which he is bound to serve.

On transfer of an estate, the contract shall be valid against, and enure to the benefit of, the new owner.

V. If, during the currency of any contract as aforesaid, the estate on which the Laborer shall have engaged to work shall be sold or transferred, by the party contracting with such Laborer, to some other person, or if some other person shall become proprietor thereof by reason of the death of such party, the contract shall, by such event, become null and void as regards the party originally contracting, and shall be valid to all intents in law as between the new proprietor and the Laborer, and shall enure in the same manner as if such new proprietor had been named in the contract as the party contracting; and so in the case of any subsequent transmission of interest by sale, transfer, or death.

Penalty for breach of last Section.

VIII. If, on any estate in which Laborers are employed, it shall at any time be found that there is not such hospital accommodation as aforesaid, or that that there is not provided for the use of such Laborers medicine of such quality and descriptions and according to such scale as aforesaid, the chief person in charge of such estate shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred Rupees. And if there shall be three hundred or more Laborers employed on such estate, and it shall be found that there is no such Medical Officer as aforesaid, such chief person as aforesaid shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred Rupees. XL. It shall be lawful for the Employer, or any person authorised to act for the Employer, of any Laborer imprisoned for any offence under this Act, to apply to the Magistrate, at any time previous to the expiry of such sentence, that such Laborer be made over to him for the purpose of completing his contract, and the Magistrate shall, in such case, make over such Laborer, and shall cancel the remainder of the sentence passed on him, and shall endorse such cancelment, under his own signature, on the contract of such Laborer.

Conviction not to operate as a release, but, on expiry of sentence, Laborer to be made over to Employer.

XLI. On the expiry of any sentence of imprisonment for any offence under this Act, it shall be the duty of the Magistrate to make over such Laborer to any person appointed on the part of his Employer to receive charge of him; and no conviction under this Act, or imprisonment under such conviction, shall be held to operate as a release to any Laborer from the terms of his contract. Provided, nevertheless, that the period of imprisonment shall in no case be prolonged by reason of no person being present on the part of the Employer to take charge of the Laborer at the expiry of his sentence, but the prisoner shall, in that case, be sent to the Employer's estate, and the expense of such conveyance shall be levied from the Employer in the manner provided for the realisation of fines under this Act.

Sentences to be endorsed on contract. Periods of imprisonment and unlawful absence to be added to term of service.

XLII. Every sentence of fine imposed for unlawful absence from labor, and every sentence of imprisonment for any offence under this Act, shall be endorsed on the contract, at the time of its being passed, by the Officer passing it, and no such period of imprisonment or unlawful absence so endorsed shall be reckoned as part of the term for which the Laborer is bound to serve; but such term shall extend to such further period as shall be equivalent to the aggregate amount of the imprisonments and unlawful absences so endorsed.

Imprisonment in default of payment of fine.

XLIII. In every case in which a fine is imposed under this Act, or under the said Act III of 1863, it shall be competent to the Court imposing such fine to direct by the sentence that, in default of payment of the fine, the offender shall suffer imprisonment for a certain term, and such term of imprisonment shall be regulated in accordance with the provisions of Sections 67, 68, and 69 of the Indian Penal Code.

If the Protector believe any estate or part thereof to be unfit for habitation, a Committee shall be summoned.

XLIV. If a Protector of Laborers shall at any time have reason to believe that any estate or portion of an estate, situated within the limits of his jurisdiction, is, by reason of of climate or situation, unfit for human habitation, such Protector shall give notice in writing of his opinion to the Magistrate of the District, and such Magistrate shall forthwith summon a Committee to enquire into the fitness of such estate or portion thereof for human habitation. Such Committee shall consist of the Magistrate, the Protector of Laborers, the Medical Officer of the District, and at least one Employer of Laborers resident in the District. Such Committee shall proceed, with as little delay as possible, to inquire into the healthiness of the estate or portion thereof to which the Protector's report has reference, and shall hear such evidence on the subject as the owner of such estate or portion of the estate as aforesaid or the Employer or Protector, may desire to place before it; and, if such Committee shall be of opinion that such estate or portion thereof is unfit for human habitation, it shall record a finding to that effect; and the contract of every Laborer who shall have contracted to serve on such estate shall thereupon be null and void as regards such estate or such portion thereof. Provided, however, that every such contract shall continue valid with regard to any other portion of such estate, or to any other estate of the same Employer.

Construction of Act.

XLV. This Act shall be read with and taken as part of the said Act III of 1863.

ACT No. VII OF 1865.

An Act to make provision for the better regulation and supervision of Public Slaughter-Houses in the Suburbs of Calcutta, and for the adoption of proper Conservancy arrangements connected therewith.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is necessary to make provision for the better regulation and supervision of Public Slaughter-Houses and Markets for the sale of meat and fish in the Suburbs of Calcutta and for the adoption of proper Conservancy arrangements connected therewith; It is enacted as follows:—

No place within the Suburbs to be used as a Slaughter-House without a license.

I. No place within the jurisdiction of the Municipal Commissioners of the Suburbs of the Town of Calcutta appointed under the provisions of Act III of 1864, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, (the District Municipal Improvement Act), shall be used as a Slaughter-House, unless a license in writing for the use thereof as a Slaughter-House has been obtained from the Municipal Commissioners, who are hereby empowered, at their discretion, from time to time, to grant such licenses; and whoever, without such license, uses as a Slaughter-House any place within the limits aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred Rupees, and to a penalty, not exceeding fifty Rupees, for every day after the conviction for such offence, during which the said offence is continued. Provided that nothing in this Act shall apply to any Hindoo or Mahomedan place of worship.

Municipal Commissioners may provide places for Slaughter-Houses, and may make Bye-laws for the management and regulation thereof.

II. The Municipal Commissioners may, from time to time, if they shall think fit, with the sanction of the Government of Bengal, provide places for the purpose of being used as Slaughter-Houses, and they may make Bye-Laws for, and with respect to, the management, regulation, and charges for the use of such places.

Licensed Slaughter-Houses to be properly drained.

III. Every owner or occupier of any licensed Slaughter-House, within the limits aforesaid, shall cause such drains to be made therein as shall be considered sufficient by the Municipal Commissioners, and (if required so to do by the Municipal Commissioners) shall cause all the floors and drains to be paved with stone or burnt brick, and shall also cause a supply of water to be provided, sufficient for keeping such Slaughter-Houses, or any place used as a Meat Market, in a clean and wholesome state; and if such owner or occupier, after notice in writing given to him by the Municipal Commissioners that such Market or Slaughter-House is defective in any of the said particulars and requiring him to remedy the defect specified within not less than thirty days, makes default therein, he shall be liable to a penalty, not exceeding fifty Rupees, for every day during which such default is continued.

Commissioners may make Bye-laws for the inspection of Markets and Slaughter-Houses.

IV. The Municipal Commissioners may, in the manner prescribed and under the conditions laid down in Section LXXXIV of the said Act III of 1864, make Bye-laws for the inspection of all Markets for the sale of meat or fish within the limits aforesaid and for the management and conduct of the business therein, and for keeping the same in a cleanly and proper state, and for removing filth at least once in every twenty-four hours.

Commissioners may enter and inspect Slaughter-Houses, shops, &c., and may seize unwholesome articles exposed for sale.

V. The Municipal Commissioners, or any person appointed by them for that purpose, may at all reasonable times, with or without assistants, enter into and inspect any market, building, shop, stall, or place used for the sale of butcher's meat, poultry, or fish, or as a Slaughter-House, and may examine any animal, carcase, or meat which may be therein; and in case any animal, carcase, meat, or fish appear to be intended for the food of man and to be unfit for such food, may seize the same; and if it appear to a Magistrate, upon the evidence of a competent person, that such animal, carcase, meat, or fish, is unfit for the food of man, he shall order the same to be destroyed, or to be so disposed of as to prevent its being exposed for sale or used for such food; and the owner thereof, or the person in whose possession the same is found, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding one hundred Rupees.

Suspension or revocation of license.

VI. The Magistrate before whom any person is convicted of an offence contrary to the provisions of this Act, relating to Slaughter-Houses, or of the non-observance of any of the Bye-laws relating thereto, may, in addition to the penalty imposed on such person under the authority of this Act, suspend such license for any period not exceeding two months, and upon conviction for a second or other subsequent like offence, such license may, in addition to the penalty imposed under the authority of this Act, be revoked.

Penalty for using Slaughter-Houses during suspension or revocation of license.

VII. Whoever, during the period for which any such license is suspended, or after the same is revoked as aforesaid, slaughters cattle, or allows cattle to be slaughtered in the Slaughter-House to which such license relates, shall be liable to a penalty, not exceeding one hundred Rupees, for every day, after the conviction for such offence, during which the said offence is continued.

Certain provisions of Act III of 1864 rendered applicable.

VIII. The provisions of the said Act III of 1864, in regard to prosecutions for offences and the enforcement of fines and forfeitures, shall be applicable to all prosecutions for offences, and the recovery of fines and forfeitures under this Act; and the Magisterial powers conferred upon the Municipal Commissioners by Section VI of the above Act shall be exercised by them for all the purposes of this Act.

The provisions of this Act may be extended to places under Act III of 1864.

IX. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to extend, by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, the provisions of this Act, or of any specific portion thereof, to any Towns or places in which the said Act III of 1864 may be in force.

Resolution.—By these Reports the Government of India has been put in possession of the opinions of the several Local Governments and Administrations and of all the Officers of Account except those of Calcutta. The opinions of these latter have been otherwise obtained, and the following orders are in general accordance with their views.

2. The Report of the Commissioners is chiefly occupied with a criticism of defects in the existing system of Audit and Account, and as their remarks on this head were suggested, mainly, by an inspection of the Books in the Offices at Calcutta, merely, some of the criticisms have proved inapplicable, more or less, to one or other of the Provinces or Presidencies which the Commissioners have not visited.

3. The chief defect in the present system is the total untrustworthiness of the monthly accounts, in consequence of their including numerous entries requiring subsequent adjustment, so that the Financial Department possesses no means of keeping itself acquainted with the progress of the current income and expenditure. Another defect is the delay in closing the annual books of account. The remedy for these defects is the main object of the recommendations of the Commissioners.

4. The procedure in framing and sanctioning the annual Budget Estimates has necessarily been considered along with the accounts.

5. The Budget Estimates as submitted to the Government of India in the Financial Department are in great detail, and on the several recommendations for condensing them the Governor General in Council is pleased to pass the following orders:—

I. Hitherto, the Budget Estimate has shewn the figures proposed by the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, and the Local Government, respectively, but in future only one set of figures for the new year shall be submitted to the Government of India in the Financial Department, viz., those which the Local Government may settle in communication with the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, and with any Heads of Departments whom the Government may consult. Should the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General differ he will record his reasons in a paper to be annexed to the Estimate.

II. The grants for Salaries, Establishments, and Contingencies, even when relating to appointments and Establishments for different Districts, will be given in totals for the Presidency or Province for each Department. District details will be omitted, for both Revenue and Charge, in the Estimates for the Financial Department; but they will be obtained for the use of the Local Government or Administration, under such rules as it may lay down, subject only to a strict conformity to the classification of Receipts and Charges prescribed by the Government of India.

III. At present, the Budget Estimates shew the Estimate for the new year, the Budget and the Regular Estimates for the current or expiring year, and the Actuals of the previous year. These details must be retained in the Estimates for the Local Governments and Administrations; but in those submitted to the Financial Department the figures for the new year should be contrasted with the Budget Estimate, merely, of the current or expiring year, any considerable difference between them, as also any large increase in the provision for contingencies and temporary Establishments, and in other items, being fully explained in the transmitting letter.

6. The Forms of Estimates and Finance Accounts, proposed by the Commissioners, are approved, with the modifications in the following paragraphs, viz.:—

I. All receipt and payment entries under Income, Charge, and Debt, which are peculiar to the Home Accounts of the Secretary of State for India, will be omitted from the Indian portion of the accounts, pending the assent of the Secretary of State to the proposition for establishing counterpart books of account in England and India for the revenues and charges of India.

II. In the distribution of charges among Presidencies and Provinces, the expenditure of the Army will be shewn under General and Political for the Bengal Army, and under Madras and Bombay for the Armies of those Presidencies.

III. The head "Marine," which is proposed by the Commissioners as an independent head, on the footing of Military, Public Works, and Civil, will continue as a subordinate head in the Civil Estimates, where it will be inserted after "Police."

IV. Allowances and Assignments under Treaties and Engagements should be entered before Miscellaneous.

V. "Allowances, Refunds, and Drawbacks" should be retained under Expenditure.

VI. There will be one entry for Guaranteed Interest, less net Traffic Receipts of Railways, no re-payments by Railways being shewn on the receipt side.

VII. The loss by Exchange on Railway Transactions will be shewn at net, i. e., after deduction of the similar gain by Exchange.

VIII. All transactions on Capital and Revenue Accounts of Railways will be treated in the accounts of the Civil Department in India as Supplies to London.

IX. The present practice of crediting to the Opium Department the cost of its supply of Opium to the Abkaree Department by a debit to Abkaree at the time of supply, and subsequently crediting the whole proceeds of sale of the Opium to Abkaree, will continue.

7. In the General Abstract of the Revenue and Expenditure of India, which forms the first of the proposed series of Estimates, a column for Actuals will be provided, the figures being supplied from the accounts in the Financial Department.

8. The forms of Finance Accounts should also be altered under the following heads:—

APPENDIX.

Revenue and Receipts.

Opium.

Instead of "Proceeds of Sale by Auction"—shew—

Opium—Behar.
" Benares.

Expenditure.

Land Revenue.

Settlement charges should be shewn as a distinct item.

Opium.

Sub-divide—Behar.
Benares.

Add—

Transit charges to Presidency.
Presidency Expenses.

Administration and Public Departments.

Add—

Military Secretariat.
Public Works Secretariat.

Law and Justice.

Instead of "Law Officers and Courts of Small Causes"—shew—

Small Cause Courts.
Law Officers of High Courts.
Justice of the Peace, Coroners, and Sheriffs at the Presidency Towns.

Marine.

For "Lighthouses and Establishments at outports"—read "Lighthouses."

Public Works.

Pensions should be transferred to the Civil Estimates.

9. In issuing the revised forms of Estimates and Finance Accounts items of sufficient importance to be shewn separately, which may be peculiar to any Presidency or Province, will be added in the forms for that division of territory in communication with the Local Government.

10. On some of the suggestions for reducing work, the following orders are passed:—

I. The Cash Requirement Estimate should be continued.

II. In the Treasury Accounts rendered to the several Deputy Auditors and Accountants-General, Collections of Land Revenue will be credited without distinction of past, current, and future years, and a Return thereof will be furnished, by the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, to the controlling Revenue authority for verification of the aggregate of realizations shewn in the Return of Demands, Realizations, and Balances of past, current, and future years, which is furnished to those authorities by the Collectors of Revenue.

III. The cost of any Establishment under Civil Administration which can be distinctly referred to any Branch of Revenue is to appear under the head of that branch: supervising Officers (such as Boards of Revenue and Financial and Divisional Commissioners) who administer several branches of Revenue should be shewn under "Administration and Public Departments." The cost of Establishments in the Bombay Presidency which are common to both Customs and Salt, including the charge for the Commissioner of Customs, Salt, and Opium, should be shewn under Customs. In the North-Western Provinces and the Central Provinces the cost of the Customs Line, which principally collects the Salt Revenue, should be shewn under Salt. The existing division of the charge for Collectors, &c., between Land Revenue and Law and Justice, must, however, continue, save that the division will not be made on the individual bills, but all these charges will, in the first instance, be carried in the detail books to a subordinate head under Land Revenue, and a monthly transfer of a moiety of the total amount will be made to the proper subordinate head under Law and Justice.

11. The fundamental changes of system proposed by the Commissioners are—

1*st*.—The preparation of the Finance Accounts from audited receipts and charges as recorded in the books.

2*nd*.—The separation of Cash from Store Accounts and of the accounts of the Civil Department from those of the Military and Public Works Departments.

3*rd*.—The consolidation of these separate Cash Accounts, by a central Office, into a general account for India.

4*th*.—The abolition of pre-audit and the amalgamation of the offices of Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General and Civil Pay-Master.

5*th*.—Unclassified Treasury Accounts.

12. Orders adopting the recommendations under the first two heads have been issued already, and the third, also, must be adopted of necessity.

13. The procedure in consolidating the accounts for India will be as follows:—

I. The Receipts and Disbursements of each Presidency and Province, and of the Military and Public Works Departments, will be written up monthly after audit and posted.

II. An audited monthly account of Revenue and Receipts, and of Expenditure and Disbursements, will be furnished to the Central Office of Account in Calcutta by the several Deputy Auditors and Accountants-General, and by the Military and Public Works Departments, for consolidation in monthly and annual accounts for India.

III. The same Officers, and the Military and Public Works Departments, will prepare, from their own Ledgers, annual accounts as at present; the Finance Accounts for Parliament will be prepared from the books of the Central Office.

14. The Commissioners have recommended that there should be but one Office, viz., the Central Office of Account in account current with London. Pending the orders of the Secretary of State on this recommendation, the Account Current with London, kept by the Civil, Military, and Public Works Accountants, will be consolidated in one Account Current for the three Departments, by the Local Civil Accountants, for transmission to London.

15. The Commissioners recommend that revenues and charges belonging to one Presidency, received and paid, respectively, in another Presidency, be treated in the accounts as appertaining to the Presidency in which the receipt or payment occurs. This recommendation has been noticed in some of the replies. The subject affects principally the head of expenditure. The only receipts of any magnitude that would be affected by the recommendation are certain tributes from Native States, realized through Treasuries subordinate to the Accountant, North-Western Provinces, which are now credited to the Government of India.

16. The Government of Madras is of opinion that "the Budget of each Presidency should provide for all disbursements which it has to make. On this principle, the Central Provinces, British Burmah, &c., should provide for the Military expenditure incurred in them, but debited to Madras."

17. Inasmuch, however, as the administration of the Madras Army is under the Government of Madras, and as at is indispensable, for a proper check of Military expenditure, that each of the three Armies, in the three Presidencies, should be estimated for as a whole, the above opinion, as regards the treatment of Military expenditure in the accounts, cannot be adopted.

18. There is no objection, however, to the Military Account Department furnishing to each Local Government, for insertion in its Administration Report, a statement of the proportion of total Military charges which can be allotted, rateably to strength, for the Military force in the territories under such Local Government.

19. With regard to Civil charges that are disbursed in other than the Presidency or Province to which they in strictness appertain, it is well observed by the Government of the Punjab and the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, Madras, that the largest of such payments, viz., Pensions and Allowances and Assignments under Treaties and Engagements, are already adjusted as charges of the territory in which the payments occur, and that it will be decidedly advantageous to apply the same rule to all other items, such as salaries, the substantive pay of Officers on deputation, &c. The substantive pay of Officers on deputation is a fair charge of the appointments in which they officiate, i. e., of the place where the payment is made, while the amount disbursed as salaries to Officers absent from their own Province on leave is too unimportant to be a ground for setting aside a wholesome general rule.

20. The Budget difficulty, viz., insufficient provision in one Presidency for salaries of another Presidency, is met by the remark of the North-Western Provinces Government, that an estimate for the full charge, at the sanctioned scale for salaries, will cover all payments of civil charges on account of other Governments, especially as such payments by one Province will be compensated in a measure by similar payments on its account in another Province.

21. On these grounds, the Governor General in Council directs that the adjustment of receipts and charges between Presidencies and Provinces shall cease, with the following exceptions:—

22. All local receipts and disbursements in the Berars on account of other Governments, and all similar transactions elsewhere on account of the Berars, shall be recorded finally in the accounts of erritory in which they occur, as receipts and ges of the Governments or of the Berars to h they may appertain.

. The tour charges of the Governor General, the payments to the Secretariat and other olishments that accompany His Excellency the Presidency, will form another exception e general rule.

. According to the system of account recom-led by the Commissioners, the Office of unt of each Province will prepare a classified t or abstract of all the receipts and payments n in the monthly account of each Treasury, eby the materials for statistical returns of ict details will be preserved in a form con-nt for tabulation when required; but these s will be carried through the abstract or books for the regular accounts in a way will bring out one total for all Districts each head of service.

The Government of the Punjab remarks, ver, that "that seems quite indispensable to its own receipts and expenditure to each Dis-in the Auditor's accounts."

There is a misapprehension here of the n recommended by the Commissioners. The for Salaries, Establishments, and Contin-es will be given in totals for the Province; s salaries and establishments are passed under rules, District details are not required to keep within Budget limits; while the grant for ating expenditure, or that for temporary ishments, allowances, and contingencies will oted to Districts and supervised by the Head Department. The Treasury Officer and the ty Auditor and Accountant-General being ned of this allotment, any insufficiency of the ion in a particular District would be noticed ould be met from a surplus upon some other ct; but to this end it is not necessary to ber the accounts with a District detail of the essive expenditure under each head of service the year, the post-audit registers will e all needful information; or, in other ex-nal cases, it can be collected when required.

The several Local Governments and Ad-rations, as also some of the Deputy Auditors ccountants-General, agree to the abolition of dit, the assent being qualified in some cases stipulation for the issue of simple codes of or leave of absence, and deputation and tra-allowances, so that the existing checks t erroneous payments may not be relaxed. aterials for such a code have been collected, will be issued in the course of the year.

The objections to the abolition of pre-audit tly founded on the supposition that there ot be an efficient post-audit, such as will a proper sense of responsibility in those who ills, and in the Heads of Departments who rsign them. But this is a misapprehension. The Hon'ble the Governor of the North-n Provinces, while assenting to the amalga-of the Civil Pay-Master's with the Deputy r and Accountant-General's Office, yet ob-from "a not inconsiderable experience of has been, and may therefore again occur," looking to the character and calibre of sub-te Native Clerks, their powers of combina-heir talent for intrigue, and the extent of the tions to which they occasionally may be d, His Honor regards, with not unnatural nce, the abandonment of that system of double check by means of the independant Offices of Examiner of Claims, and Auditor of Accounts, which seems to His Honor almost an essential in the constitution of our administration in India."

30. It is overlooked that this double check was abandoned some years since in the Public Works Department, where the Controllers of Public Works Accounts both examine claims and adjust payments. Moreover, it has not prevailed in the Madras Presidency, and in the Bombay Presidency "the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General does not, at present, critically re-examine vouchers passed by the Civil Pay-Master, nor keep a register of Establishments." Furthermore, the post-audit, under the new system, will be promptly made under competent supervision.

31. On these grounds, and having regard to the imperative necessity of obtaining prompt Accounts based upon audited charges, and to the preponderance of opinion and argument in favour of abolishing pre-audit, and amalgamating the Establishments of the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, and the Civil Pay-Master, it has been determined to give effect to those measures as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made.

32. Apprehensions of two opposite kinds have been expressed with regard to the responsibility to be thrown on the Treasury Officer who is to disburse salaries and allowances without pre-audit. In the 213th paragraph of their Report the Commissioners proposed the issue of a permanent order to the Officer in charge of the Treasury as his guide in discharging regular monthly bills for salaries and establishments. This permanent order would indicate the sanctioned rate and net amount admissible, and, with regard to contingencies, it would shew the monthly limit within which they may be allowed. The Government of Madras requests that it may "be remembered that in this Presidency the Collector is in entire charge of the District Treasury; and the Government strongly object to any measure tending to lessen this responsibility, or to render the Collector's subordinates in any way independent of him." No such measure was intended by the Commissioners in their recommendation.

33. On the other hand, it has been urged in other quarters that the responsibility of the Treasury Officer with regard to over-payments should be clearly defined.

34. Under the system now to be introduced, equally as under the present system, the privilege of drawing pay abstracts or bills for salary, allowances, or contingent expenses will be restricted to responsible Officers, and the drawer of the bill will be held answerable for any overcharge. The responsibility of the countersigning Officer will be that which attaches to all controlling Officers, and which brings them under a liability to make good any loss arising from their culpable negligence. The Treasury Officer who makes payments without pre-audit will be responsible for checking any palpable errors, and (in case of change of office, or of rate of salary, of gazetted Officers) for passing the new rate with due reference to the orders directing the change. In short, the responsibility for an overcharge will rest primarily with the drawer of the bill, and (failing recovery from him) the overcharge will be recovered from the Treasury Officer or the Countersigning Officer only in the event of culpable negligence in either of them.

35. In paragraph 373 of their Report the Commissioners observed that so long as payment is made by the Officer in charge of a Treasury on a proper voucher, the amount "should be passed in the Treasury Account, and any irregularity which may appear in the payment having been in excess of the Budget grant, or otherwise, should be met by calling on the Officer who authorized the payment to explain the cause, or make good the excess. In the case of computations, and other matters where the Treasury Officer has the means of exercising a check, any incorrect voucher or overpayment should be struck out of his account, and he should be directed to alter his balance accordingly."

36. The principle which guided the Commissioners was that when a payment is made on account of a completed service, on a proper voucher, the fact of the payment is not altered, because some portion of it may have been overpaid. The payment must be accepted, and must be recorded as a charge against the grant for which it was made. The amount overpaid, when subsequently recovered, would be credited as a re-payment to the grant, or, as would generally be the more convenient course, would be deducted from the amount due upon a succeeding bill for a similar service.

37. The Commissioners recommened that the work of Treasury Officers be simplified by requiring from them accounts unclassified as to charge, and classified, by simpler methods than hitherto, as to receipts of revenue, and in some other cases where receipts or payments of one class are very numerous. The recommendation is approved by the Governments and Administrations in the Bengal Presidency. The Government of the Punjab and the Board of Revenue, North-Western Provinces, testify that the unclassified account will immensely relieve Treasury Officers.

38. The Government of the North-Western Provinces, indeed, gives a qualified approval, hesitating only as to the ability of the Deputy Auditor General's Office to cope with the additional work in a Province where intelligent Clerks are scarce. In this objection the relief to that functionary from the compendious journal, and the simpler processes of the new system, has been overlooked, while also regard has not been paid to the consideration that the intelligent labour requisite for classification can be more readily collected in one Office than in above 30 Treasuries. Erroneous classification by the latter must add to the labour of the Central Office.

39. Accordingly, the unclassified Treasury Account, according to the forms which have been introduced into the Lower Provinces, will be adopted in the remaining Provinces of the Bengal Presidency.

40. In the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay the classified Treasury Account will be retained for the present in deference to the very strong representations of the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General, Bombay, and the Government of Madras; but as they have overlooked that through an unclassified account the post-audit, and the recording of the greater portion of the charges, will be expedited by a month, the Governor General in Council trusts that, after experience of the unclassified Treasury account in the Bengal Presidency, it may yet be extended throughout India.

41. Care will be taken to provide each Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General with an efficient Establishment for an intelligent and prompt audit, record, and compilation of accounts, but this will be readily effected within the present cost of the Establishments.

42. The Journals of the Deputy Auditor and Accountant-General will be considerably reduced by being disencumbered of District details and of the elaborate personal account of each gazetted Officer hitherto recorded in the books. That account will be kept, under the new system, in the post-audit Registers. The trouble of examining the Treasury Officer's classification of charges to the minutest detail, and of correcting errors in his classification, will also cease.

43. Having regard to the large reduction of work under these heads, which will more than compensate for the new work of classifying charges in the Deputy Auditor General's Office, the Governor General in Council feels assured that the unclassified Treasury Account may be introduced with safety into the Bengal Presidency.

44. Orders for the simplification of the Deposit Account have been separately issued, but the Governor General in Council notes the concurrence of the Government of the Punjab in the recommendation of the Commissioners, that all receipts on account of Land Revenue should be credited when paid into the Treasury, except those in dispute, or belonging partly to co-sharers with Government. These must still be placed in deposit.

45. His Excellency in Council also approves of the suggestion of the Chief Commissioner in Oude, that fines imposed in appealable cases be credited at once to revenue, subject to refund on the mere certificate of the Appellate Court.

46. Orders regarding the change in the official year of account are deferred.

47. The new system of Audit and Account in the Civil Department, recommended by the Commissioners, will, with the modifications directed in this Resolution, be introduced with the Accounts for 1865-66 inclusive.

Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be sent to the Foreign, Home, Military, and Public Works Departments, to the several Local Governments and Administrations, to Mr. M. H. Foster, and to the Officers of Account and Audit in the Civil Department.

Ordered, also, that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the Auditor General of India, with a view to the issue by him of such subsidiary instructions to the several Officers of Account as may be necessary for carrying out the above orders.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

THE following Act of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council received the assent of His Honor on the 11th April 1865, and having been assented to by His Excellency the Governor General on the 15th idem, is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. VI OF 1865.

An Act to provide for the regulation and enforcement of Contracts for Labor at places to which, by virtue of such Contracts, the Laborer is to be conveyed at the expense of the Employer.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the due protection of native Laborers who have been or shall hereafter be conveyed at the expense of their Employers under the provisions of Act III of 1863, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, (An Act to regulate the transport of Native Laborers to the Districts of Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet), or of any other Law, to Districts other than the Districts to which they belong; and for the due enforcement of the Contracts entered into by such Laborers with the persons whom they shall have engaged to serve for hire; It is enacted as follows:—

Interpretation. "Laborer."

I. Throughout this Act the word "Laborer" means a Laborer who has heretofore entered or shall hereafter, under the provisions of Act III of 1863 or of any other Law, enter into a contract by which he has been or shall be conveyed to the place of labor at the expense of the Employer contracting.

"Protector."

The term "Protector" includes any Officer appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to perform all or any of the duties of a Protector under this Act.

Number and Gender.

Words used in the masculine gender include the feminine, and the singular number includes the plural.

Recruiter, bringing Laborer to engage in a District to which he does not belong, may be fined.

II. If, upon any examination made in accordance with Section XI of the said Act III of 1863 or any other Law, it shall appear that any Laborer, belonging to any District in the Provinces under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, brought before the Magistrate by a recruiter, or otherwise, does not belong to the District in which the examination has been conducted, and has not resided there a reasonable time for purposes of his own, or come there of his own accord to seek for employment, but has been brought thither from another District in the said Provinces with the view of prevailing upon him to enter into an engagement there, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate to fine the recruiter such sum as in the judgment of the Magistrate may be sufficient to enable the Laborer to return to the District to which he belongs, and to apply such fine to the re-conveyance of such Laborer to such District.

Previous Section not to apply to recruiters bringing Laborers from a District not within Bengal.

III. The provisions of the preceding Section shall not apply to any Laborer who shall come from any Province or District not under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, for the purpose of entering into an engagement in a District under such control. Any Laborer recruited in any such Province or District as last aforesaid, shall be taken by the recruiter, for the purpose of registry under Section II of the said Act, before a Magistrate of that District, subject to the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, into which such Laborer shall first come after his engagement.

On transfer of an estate, the contract shall be valid against, and enure to the benefit of, the new owner.

V. If, during the currency of any contract as aforesaid, the estate on which the Laborer shall have engaged to work shall be sold or transferred, by the party contracting with such Laborer, to some other person, or if some other person shall become proprietor thereof by reason of the death of such party, the contract shall, by such event, become null and void as regards the party originally contracting, and shall be valid to all intents in law as between the new proprietor and the Laborer, and shall enure in the same manner as if such new proprietor had been named in the contract as the party contracting; and so in the case of any subsequent transmission of interest by sale, transfer, or death.

Contract may be transferred by mutual consent.

VI. Every such contract as aforesaid may, by mutual agreement of the parties thereto, be transferred by the Protector of Laborers to any other Laborer or Employer; but in such case the Protector shall endorse such transfer on the contract, and shall also register it in his own Office.

Penalty for breach of last Section.
